MANAGER O'BRIEN WILL HAVE TO HURRY
 Manager O'Brien gave the Eugene delegation of business men absolute assurance that we should have a new depot and re-arranged grounds this year that would make the railroad yards "an credit to the city. Of course Mr. O'Brien intended to keep his word, which, he emphatically stated, he never broke, once it was given—but most of us believe he will have to make some mighty quick moves very soon in order to make good in this instance.

HOW TO BUILD UP OR KILL YOUR TOWN
 The following from the Medford Tribune is a good editorial, timely and to the point. It deals with a condition that is common to every growing town in Oregon, and is applicable to Eugene as to the metropolis of the Rogue River valley. The Tribune says:

"Did you ever stop to think that when you buy merchandise or products or spend money in Medford that you are helping build up Medford and that when you patronize out-of-town firms that you are indirectly injuring the city?"

"How do you expect to build up your own business if every one in town buys what you can supply out of town? A great deal of this sort of business is done to the detriment of local business interests. Outside firms pay no rent or taxes in Medford, and have no interest of any kind in the city or its upbuilding. Therefore, by patronizing such, you are injuring yourself.

"Yesterday the writer met a well known business man. He asked him for an advertisement, and was told that he had been in business so long a time that advertising was superfluous. He knew better than to advertise. The writer then broached the subject of job printing, and was told that in the 14 years the merchant had been in business here he had never had a dollar's worth of printing done in Medford, but had sent it all to Portland. Furthermore, he did not intend to have any of it done in Medford. Yet he looks to the people of Medford and vicinity for the patronage to keep his business alive. Where would this merchant get off if people determined to buy products he sells in Portland?"

"A little later the writer saw a merchant close a contract with a vagrant painter for window and store signs. The painter was an admitted wanderer, who had no interest in the community. His work was second-class. There are painters in Medford who do good work and spend their money patronizing just such merchants as lined this tramp.

"Later the writer saw several packages of laundry, done up for shipment to Portland. Express must be paid both ways. Yet Medford boasts a modern, first-class and well-equipped laundry, which gives employment to many Medford people. The Portland laundries do not help Medford employ Medford people.

"The writer could enumerate fifty instances, the result of one day's observation, where work was sent out of town that could as well be done here. You can't build up a city by such methods."

WANTING SUPPLY OF HARDWOOD LUMBER
 Although the demand for hardwood lumber is greater than ever before, the amount of it is being cut is less than it was a few years ago.

and in this time the wholesale price of the different classes of hardwood lumber advanced from 25 to 65 per cent. The cut of oak, which in 1889 was more than half the total cut of hardwoods, has fallen off 38 per cent and elm has fallen off one-half. The cut of soft woods is over four times that of hard woods, and it is doubtful if a shortage in the former would cause dismay in so many industries. The cooperage, furniture and vehicle industries depend upon hardwood timber and the railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, agricultural implement manufacturers and builders use it extensively.

This leads to the question: Where is the future supply of hard woods to be found? The cut in Ohio and Indiana, which seven years ago led all other states, has fallen off one-half. Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and Wisconsin have also declined in hardwood production. The chief centres of production now lie in the Lake States, the lower Mississippi valley, and the Appalachian mountains. Yet in the Lake States the presence of hardwoods is an almost certain indication of rich agricultural land and when the hardwoods are cut the land is turned permanently to agricultural use. In Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi the production of hard woods is clearly in its extreme height, and in Missouri and Texas it has already begun to decline.

The answer to the question, then, would seem to lie in the Appalachian mountains. They contain the largest body of hardwood timber left in the United States. On them grow the greatest variety of tree species anywhere to be found. Protected from fire and reckless cutting, they produce the best kind of timber, since their soil and climate combine to make heavy stands and rapid growth.

Yet much of the Appalachian forest has been damaged in the past that it will be years before it will again reach a high state of productivity. Twenty billion feet of hardwoods would be a conservative estimate of the annual productive capacity of the 75,000,000 acres of forest lands in the Appalachians if they were rightly managed. Until they are we can expect a shortage in hardwood timber.

Maybe that Hearst-republican combine against Tammany is in the interest of good government, as those responsible for it claim, but to outsiders it looks like a deal to swipe a few profitable offices for men that Hearst has been carrying on his private pay roll.

No wonder the most successful green goods and gold brick men feel like the cheapest of pikers when they compare their operations with the sale of a paper railroad to the Metropolitan Securities Company, of New York, for $965,000 by a bunch of real bunco artists.

Bishop Potter has just emulated Teddy by dining with a "nigger." The answer probably is that the bishop has received less than his accustomed newspaper attention of late and it was high time that he pulled off an extra good advertising stunt.

The steel trust, the Pullman Car Company and the Baldwin Locomotive works have contracts on hand and in course of negotiation with Japan for railroad rolling stock and rails which will make them pull hard for peace.

Academic discussions of who or what is responsible for the largely increased cost of living are not interesting to the man who has to pay the bills of a family—it's a condition, not a theory, that he's up against.

"Slow progress at The Hague" is the title of an editorial in the Washington Herald. Didn't know there had been any progress at all, except in spending the money of the nations represented in the conference.

Inasmuch as the Wall street bears have been so successful in hammering down the price of corporation securities, somebody ought to try to coax them into tackling the prices of living necessities.

makers are giving a fine demonstration of optimism.
 If the Chicago widower who failed to get a wife by advertising on a window placard will try a good newspaper he'll succeed, notwithstanding his six kids.

"Heineke is coming West," according to the headlines of a daily newspaper. Looks as if he might have to take the trip on the brake beams.

Probably one reason why the play, "A Fool and a Girl" was so quickly scorched by frost was that its title was too personal to many men.

If the telegraph operators had deposed President Small before they struck, things might have looked brighter for them just now.

More men are interested in how to dodge their own taxes than in finding out whether George Washington dodged his.

Present indications are that the time will soon come when an ambitious politician will dare take his booze in public.

RECOGNIZED BY THE GOVERNMENT.
 In these days of strenuous opposition to adulteration of goods and drugs we note that the U. S. Department of Agriculture has recognized Knapp-Curo as an official sheep dip, and inspectors have been notified to this effect. This action is certainly gratifying to the Prussian Remedy Company, of St. Paul, Minn., who have been putting Knapp-Curo on the market for years. Inasmuch as the general government and many of the states require that livestock shall be free from any sort of disease before shipment, the shipper may feel safe in using Knapp-Curo Prussian Sheep Dip, or the Prussian Hux and Chipp Dip. Lice, ticks, and all vermin are destroyed effectively by the preparations of the Prussian Remedy Co. The company is to be congratulated for obtaining recognition by the Agricultural Department.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC FILES ITS REPORT

According to the annual report submitted to the railroad commission Saturday morning, the total income of the entire lines of the Southern Pacific Company was $94,397,651, deducting $5,189,087.99 for operating expenses, etc., leaves a net income of $89,208,563.62. The surplus from operations for the year ending June 30, 1907, was $4,300,344.59, and the total surplus on hand at the close of the report was $22,206,859.91. The company paid two dividends during the year, 4 per cent on common and 7 per cent on preferred stocks, upon a capital stock of $300,000,000, which aggregated $13,150,000.00.

The report is a voluminous affair, and the tabulated statements given are somewhat complicated and involved in every instance where special data was asked by the commission and there is provision made all through for separate data covering lines in Oregon, the company studiously avoiding giving such information and the report, as a whole, is apparently merely a duplicate of that furnished to the interstate commerce commission. Whether the "State of Oregon" or "Lines in Oregon" are used they are scratched out and only general details are dealt in.

A PROCLAMATION
 Whereas, There was submitted to the legal voters of the city of Eugene, at a special election held thereon on the 14th day of October, 1907, an initiative proposal, made and ordained by the common council of said city, pursuant to Chapter 226 of the printed laws of Oregon for the year 1907, being "an act to provide for carrying into effect the initiative and referendum powers reserved by the people, etc.," filed in the office of the secretary of state of Oregon, February 25th, 1907, for amending sections 108 and 112 of the Charter of the city of Eugene, being Chapter 252 of the laws of Oregon for the year 1905, entitled "An act to re-incorporate the city of Eugene and to repeal all acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith," filed in the office of the secretary of state of Oregon, February 18th, 1905, and
