CURRENCY LEGISLATION THAT BANKERS WANT

The campaign of education which certain bankers and currency reformers are carrying on in favor of elasticity by means of credit notes so progressively taxed as to prevent inflation, and properly secured by a guarantee fund, is slowly bearing fruit. It is generally understood, of course, that serious and sectional divisions among the bankers themselves would be fatal, in a legislative sense, to any scheme of reform, however moderate and safe it might be considered by impartial students of the currency problem.

Senator Scott, of West Virginia, who claims to support a new presidential candidate every day in order not to commit himself to any one exclusively, says Taft was only a quarter horse at best. He need not expect any pull under a Taft administration.

By the time Japan gets through financing the mammoth world's exposition to be held in 1912, in which Uncle Sam has been most cordially invited to participate, she'll be in no condition to think of conducting a war.

Inasmuch as the Kaiser has been frequently quoted as favoring the extension of trusts, the gathering of royalty in England may be the first step toward the formation of a royal trust, to control the king business.

Non-voters must be getting very numerous in Michigan, where the constitutional convention is considering a proposition which provides jail as a penalty for not voting and allows a rebate to tax-paying voters.

Mrs. Hetty Green says "the politicians are eating the country up." Maybe so, but the trust magnates and money-lenders of the Green type seem to be getting their full share of the grub.

"Joe" Pulitzer is advocating more pomp and pageantry in our official ceremonies. Guess "Joe" never saw a governor's staff, weighted down with military titles and gold lace.

That beef trust announce got mixed. When he said there was to be a cut in prices, he meant to have said that there was a melon to be cut for the bosses.

If we understood some of the trust defenders, they would favor adding to the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," the two words, "unless incorporated."

Between the prohibition wave and the seizure of distilleries for revenue frauds, the southern distillers are up against it good and hard.

Did the evangelist who said, "there will be no automobiles in heaven," mean to imply that they would all go to the other place?

Nobody seems to be kicking because "in God we trust" was not printed on any of the clearing house certificates.

Time goes on, and little maiden. With the years has older grown; And a half a score of lovers Maiden shyly claims her own.

But the lad had changed his manner, Does the maid remember this?— As she were always so forgiving, And the fellow gets—the kiss.

Society's Thirst For Pleasure.

By Father BERNARD VAUGHAN, English Preacher.

OUR god is mammon. WE PRAISE, REVERENCE AND WORSHIP WEALTH; hence the rush for quick returns, for dividends, for ready money. Men and women alike admit that they measure happiness by wealth, and by wealth they measure respectability. And so down some of them drop IN PROSTRATE ADMIRATION BEFORE THE GOLDEN CALF, to which they are prepared to offer any sacrifice, provided only the oblation will secure for them an immediate return of gold.

WHAT IS THE EXPLANATION OF THIS RUSH FOR THE FLASH OF GOLD? DO PEOPLE WORSHIP WEALTH FOR ITS OWN SAKE AND SEEK IT FOR THE MERE EXCITEMENT OF MAKING IT? NO; BESIDES LIKING WEALTH SO MUCH FOR ITS OWN SAKE, WE PURSUE IT AS FIERCELY AS WE DO BECAUSE WE WANT PLEASURE MORE. THERE IS A FEVER THIRST FOR PLEASURE.

We are altogether too fond of amusement, and as we cannot have amusement without money people must have money, and, as money is mostly in the hands of men, WOMEN WILL DO ANYTHING TO GET SOME OF IT from them, and if you venture to exhort them to stand in the rear of their affections and to hold themselves a little DEARER they will calmly turn round and reply that seemly behavior is too dull, that LIFE IS NOT WORTH LIVING unless they can get into the swim and taste of what fruit they want and drink at whatever fountain they wish and stoop to any villainy that is handy.

Jim Hill says in effect that the only way for this country to become really and truly prosperous is for the people to let the railroads rule and ask no questions. Better idea would be for the country to own and operate the roads in the interest of the people. We'll leave it to Billy Bryan if that isn't right.

We take it that the Pittsburg worried woman, who claims to have been drugged and kidnapped by a member of her Chinese Sunday-school class, will hang a "Beware-the-good-Chinaman" placard where she can always see it; also that she will give up her class.

BURIED THE HATCHET

(Polk County Observer.) The Willamette and Hood River apple raisers have at last buried the hatchet, so it is said. Well, it was a harmless sort of battle, anyway, and its outcome has proved what the wise ones have known all along, namely, that the production of a first-class apple in Oregon depends upon environment, rather than upon location. The rivalry that has existed between Hood River and the Willamette valley has been of inestimable value to the orchardists of both districts, and has placed Oregon in the very front rank of the apple-growing states of the union. For the benefit of this important industry, even yet in its infancy, let us hope that this spirit of competition, with every trace of bitterness and malice removed, will be more keen in the future than it has been in the past. Let the rivalry be intense, but let it be of the friendly sort.

LOST VALLEY NEWS

(Special Correspondence.) Lost Valley, Nov. 19.—Rain has put a stop to nearly all fall seeding in this vicinity.

We forgot to mention last week that Alva Addington has moved out from the Rigdon station. He says the trade was good during the summer.

William Cruzan had the misfortune to almost cut his arm in two just above the wrist. He had been fixing the upper story window and had left a heavy two-inch chisel on top of the ladder. When he pulled the ladder out away from the building the chisel fell and struck his arm just above the wrist.

James Parvin was very ill last week, but is feeling as well as usual again.
