NEW YEAR OPENS BRIGHT FOR EUGENE

The new year opens auspiciously for Eugene and Lane county. The general financial flurry has passed over and everywhere a feeling of confidence in the country's future is noted. Locally there is but one cloud upon the industrial horizon—the lumber rate hearing, the outcome of which means so much for the prosperity of the entire Northwest. Millmen are confident in the justice of the case they have presented to the interstate commerce commission, but until the final decision is handed down a feeling of uncertainty and doubt must prevail. This fact alone mars the bright outlook for a great year of progress during 1908, since on every hand there are evidences of increasing prosperity and substantial growth.

It will be some time in early spring that the work of street paving where it was stopped by the advent of winter, the new government building will be erected, and several large uncompleted structures will be finished; the S. P. Co. will build its new depot and improve the yards in keeping with the progress of Oregon's University city. Of these things and many more we are assured, including the construction of electric lines, not only to Springfield and up the McKenzie, but toward Portland.

Eugene has made great strides cityward during the year just closed, but in the next twelve months The Guard feels that it will eclipse the record of any previous year in its history.

HIGH LICENSE WORKED AN UNEXPECTED REFORM

When Chicago doubled its liquor license fee it hoped to gain two objects—the wiping out of the cheap saloons, notoriously the haunts of vice, and the breeding spots of crime, and an increase in the revenue which would permit the enlarging of the police force. But the increase of the license from $500 to $1000 seems to have wrought another and unexpected reform. It has reduced Chicago's consumption of liquor and inferentially its drunkenness.

As soon as the high license law was enacted the saloonkeepers set about to make it an objectionable to their patrons as themselves. They cut out the free lunch, abandoned the schooners, and began serving small glasses on the ground that they cannot afford under the new rate to be as generous as of old. The purpose is, of course, plain, as reproachfully stated by one saloonkeeper to his protesting customers: "We have got to make the drink fit the wishes of the community, which is not you fellows." It is thus put up to "you fellows" to get a majority and be the community.

But the saloonkeeper overlooks the fact that which a contemporary calls attention, that the reduction may be a double-edged object lesson. If doubling the license fee cuts the size of the drink in half it is not likely that the opponents of the saloon may be found asking how high the fee would have to be raised to cut out the drink altogether? This is a pertinent inquiry and it seems to be a logical one.

An Irish citizen of a town not ten thousand miles from Eugene is reported as having said that heretofore he wants the editors to mind their own business. My dear Christian friend, do you ever reflect, in your contemplative moments, when the moon is shining, when the whippoorwill sings, the tree, when the hired man snore in the loft, the yellow dog sleeps on the lawn and the mosquito gets his work—did you ever reflect in such times upon the idea that a paper containing only the accounts of the editor's private business would be apt to prove innoxious to the general public? They might stand it for a while, but in the end it would be a thorn in the side and a weariness to the flesh, and all that sort of thing. No, brother, the true editor's business is to make everybody else's business his business. That's business. So there's no use in making a chronic kicker of yourself for any one.

Another presidential candidate has the Methodist preachers on his trail. At the Philadelphia conference Dr. Perley A. Baker, head of the National Anti-Saloon League, made a vicious attack on Speaker Cannon, on account of his alleged profanity and protection of liquor interests. And Fairbanks—he "jes' grins."

Former Senator Pettigrew says: "Congress is owned body and soul by the corporations," and that he speaks from knowledge acquired by twelve years in the senate. That's further than Mr. Roosevelt has gone in words, but if congress continues to ignore his corporation recommendations it may not be.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, of Colorado, may not be able to make a "cross-of-gold-and-thorns" speech, but her ambition to place her father in nomination for the presidency at the Denver convention is laudable, though some of the boys may demand a pledge that she'll not ask a cabinet portfolio for it.

"The railroads of this country are short on equipment and virtually unable to handle the freight offered them," said J. J. Hill before the interstate commerce commission. Somehow that does not indicate that they are being put out of business by adverse legislation.

"Japan has taken the Hawaiian Islands," shouted Congressman Hobson, not from his seat in the house, but in a lecture before a social club. How? that for a "scop" on both the government and news gatherers. And it will be months before the battleships can possibly get there.

Among the thousands of reform bills introduced in congress there seems to be none to prohibit lying on a tombstone or in obituary notices, but maybe this important omission will be looked after when congress gets back on the job.

If the average wife acted on her real opinion, when hubby gets home at some small hour and handed out a story about sitting up with a sick friend, she would amend the adage, making it read, "The good husbands die young."

If Senator Foraker was right when he said that over-speculation had nothing to do with the money squeeze then all the bankers and financial experts who have given their views on the subject have been wrong.

Sam Gompers says the American Federation of Labor has about 3,000,000 members and is constantly growing, and of course everybody knows that Sam never, or at least hardly ever exaggerates.

As it might be called treason to doubt that congress has earned its fifteen-day holiday recess, let us content ourselves with wishing that this bunch of overworked men will enjoy it.

Whatever else you may get during 1908, make it a point to get a good reputation as a good excuse-maker. It's one of the most deadly handicaps known.

When Wu Ting Fang makes his re-entry into Washington as Chinese ambassador, his first question will probably be: "Is my queue hanging straight."

Foraker has been indorsed for president by the Washington Colored Ministers' Union, but the District of Columbia casts no electoral vote.

Well, suppose the new $20 gold coins won't stack up. A loose pile of them would look all right to most of us, wouldn't they?

James Mankin, a farmer on the Sterling road, three miles from Jacksonville, was killed in a duel with shotgun and rifle Saturday evening. C. H. Walsworth, a woodchopper, his assailant, was seriously wounded, but will recover, and his son, N. W. Walsworth, was slightly wounded. The fight followed the serving of a notice upon the Walsworths by Mankin to vacate the premises they occupied, bringing to the latter, Deputy Sheriff Grant placed the wounded man under arrest and brought them to Jacksonville. Dr. E. B. Pickle dressed their wounds.

THE PEOPLE'S SONG OF PEACE.

The grass is green on Bunker Hill; The water's sweet in Brandywine; The sword sleeps in the scabbard still; The farmer keeps his flock and sows; Then who would mar the scene today With vaunt of battlefield array?

The brave corn lifts its regiments; Ten thousand sabers in the sun; The ricks replace the battle tents, The bannered tassels toss and run; The neighing steers, the bugle's blast, These be but stories of the past.

The earth has healed her wounded breast; The cannons plow the field no more; But heroes rest! O, let them rest! In peace along the peaceful shore! They fought for peace, for peace they fell; They sleep in peace, and all is well.

The fields forget the battles fought; The trenches wave in golden grain; Shall we neglect the lessons taught? And tear the wounds as yet again? Sweet mother nature, nurse the land And heal the wounds with gentle hand.

Lo, peace on earth! Lo, flock and fold Lo, rich abundance, fat increase And valleys clad in sheen of gold O, rise and sing a song of peace! For Theasous roams the land no more, And Janus rests with rusted door. —Joquin Billou.

FIRST CAR RUNS OVER NEW RAILWAY.

R. L. Donald left Salem at 1 p. m. in a special car for Portland, the first electric car to run over the new line between the two cities. He made the trip in about three hours with light power. The full current for heavy cars will not be turned on until Wednesday, although the entire line has been formally turned over to the operating corporation, known as the Oregon Electric Railway Company.

Mr. Donald as chief engineer for Barstow & Co., the contracting firm of engineers, who have built the line in less than two years, has handled the entire construction from start to finish, and feels very proud of what has been accomplished. —Salem Journal.

HAUDENSCHILD GETTING GREAT GRIP

Notwithstanding the many counter attractions in town last night, the Methodist church was packed to hear Haudenschild. He is mighty good as a gospel preacher. His appeals to heart and conscience are irresistible. Seldom, indeed, has Eugene been visited by such a powerful evangelist. Combining a powerful personality, an excellent voice, a pleasing manner, and a logic on fire with earnestness, he holds his audience spell-bound. The subject last night was "Excuses" and those who were privileged to hear his treatment will not soon get over the impression.

The afternoon meetings are also well attended, and equally powerful. To these and all the services all interested people are invited. In addition to a chorus choir of about 40 voices, an orchestra was on the rustrum last night and did excellent service. Haudenschild is an exceptional congregational leader in music. To hear that great congregation sing as they do under his direction, is indeed an inspiration. He speaks tonight on "A Personal Question." Services at 2:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. each day this week.

THREE MEN LOSE LIVES AT GARDINER.

Chief Engineer Anderson of the steam schooner San Gabriel, and Con Anderson and August Isaacson, two Russian Finns, were the three men who were drowned in the accident on W. P. Reed's gasoline launch. The accident occurred on Christmas eve, on the Umpqua river, near Gardiner. Mr. Reed was not aboard as first reported. The launch, "The Midget," was enroute to Gardiner with a load of laborers, when the engine suddenly stopped. While trying to start it, someone dropped a lighted match on some waste which had become saturated with gasoline causing a blaze. This started a panic and the launch was capsized, resulting in the drowning of the three men named.—Roseburg Review.

EUGENE PROPERTY WILL GROW VALUABLE

Blair street addition property is sure to double in value within the next two years. Two electric railways are coming up the valley from Portland and both of them must enter the city from the west, and the line that will tap the Siuslaw country can not go out in any other direction. As sure as water runs down hill, Eugene must build down the valley—because the business is there.

There are both acreage tracts and large lots in this addition, only a mile from the business center and three blocks from the Geary public school. Prices are very reasonable and you may make your own terms, a small payment down and monthly installments if you desire. See the Oregon Land Co. at 412 Willamette street, or write them for particulars and prices.
