FAIRMOUNT WILL SET OUT MANY TREES

REGULAR MEETING OF EAST EUGENE IMPROVEMENT CLUB HELD LAST EVENING

JOHN H. HARTOG, MANAGER OF COMMERCIAL CLUB, ADDRESSES CITIZENS ON SUBJECT OF TREE PLANTING AND OTHER MEANS OF BEAUTIFYING CITY

At the regular meeting of the East Eugene Improvement Club in Rein's hall last night the principal topic of the address and discussion was tree planting and other methods of beautifying the city of Eugene and Fairmount, or East Eugene, in particular. John H. Hartog, manager of the Commercial Club, was the principal speaker. He spoke of systematic tree planting and other means of making the streets more beautiful. After his address Senator I. H. Bingham, W. H. Dempster and M. Svarverud were called upon and they each made a few remarks along the same line.

It was the sense of the meeting that the citizens of Fairmount at once inaugurate a tree-planting campaign and it was decided to set out trees at once on the streets extending north and south, so that when they grow up the passengers on all passing Southern Pacific trains may look up the streets between two rows of magnificent shade trees and admire the symmetry and regularity with which they are set.

Mr. Hartog in his address said in part: "Civic improvement has been my hobby for years, and it goes hand in hand with promotion work. Is there any better advertisement than civic improvement? Is there anything that speaks more loudly and convincingly of a town's progressive spirit than civic beauty and neatness?"

"But you might select the tree planting item. You might appoint a committee of three of your ladies and get them to solicit subscriptions in the East End, everybody to give say 25 cents a week for four weeks, none more, none less, and with the fund thus raised for street planting. While Eugene has sublime scenery all around it, its streets lack the beauty of uniform tree-planting. It seems that where trees have been planted every man suited his own fancy, and the result is decidedly wrong. Some trees are inside, others outside the sidewalk line; some are evergreen, others deciduous, and others belong to the ground hog variety—they say their shadow and disappear, but if there is one single street, or even one block, planted uniformly to one species of trees, I have failed to locate it.

"Take Colusa on the other hand. A town without any surroundings to attract, and yet the foresight of its original settlers, who 40 or 50 years ago set out walnut trees, has made Colusa the prettiest town in the West.

"Besides tree-planting, there is the planting of flowers. I saw a little house nearby here—I do not know whom it belongs to—but I want you all to notice that little home and see if it doesn't beat all the others for homeliness and beauty—simply because it has flowers and vines all around it. You don't need a committee for that, but your club could be a power for good by encouraging the putting out of flowers and offering a prize to the child which raised the nicest flower bed. You should start competition—you should teach the children how beautiful nature is, and that all it asks is, like a shy maiden, to be coaxed.

"You'll be surprised to see what delight the little ones will take in seeing the seed that their little hands put in the ground, sprout up. It will make you take an interest in things, too. You'll prefer flowers in your yard to the carnations, and you'll have vines around you instead of weeds.

"I've looked many times a day at your hills and scenery and my heart has leaped for joy that I was allowed to live among so much beauty and I felt better for the thought. And now I have stopped on some rotten sidewalk, or forced through a mud crossing or come across an unsightly billboard, or a lot littered with tin cans and I wondered of this was really part of 'Beautiful Eugene.'

SPLENDID SERVICE AT M. E. CHURCH

Perhaps the most powerful service of the series so far was held at the M. E. church last night. The conviction was intense all over the house. A full house greeted Handenschield and his sermon was more convincing even than usual. His subject for tonight is "The One Condition of Entering Heaven." No meetings Saturday, except chorus and orchestra practice at night.

Three great services are planned for Sunday. The morning sermon is especially helpful to men, and they will be given preference to women in the seating.

10:30 a. m. "True Courage."
3 p. m. "The Presence of Christ."
7:30 p. m. "The Red Light."

Everyone is invited to all of these Sunday services.

This series of meetings will continue only a few days longer. Hear Handenschield the few remaining times he will speak.

My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery quickly relieves every attack."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE ONE NIGHT STAND.

Christmas comes but once a year. The fellow who discovered that was not, as you perhaps had guessed. Converting lightly through his hat. No odds how loud is the encore. How large are the bouquets he threw. It will not come back to repeat. Again a portion of its show.

It's worse than useless to forecast Another Christmas for July. As soon might one expect to see The fat and staid porkers fly. Around the calendar on wings. It doesn't, like a magpie, sit; It only comes at Christmas time, So you should make the best of it.

It isn't like a telegram; It isn't like the summer rain Or like a poor relation who May come in on most any train. It's much more like a man who has A mortgage on your farm and soul. Who comes around just once a year To gather in his grudging toll.

And maybe it is better so. Eye faster when he loots the mill. Thinks once a year is quite enough For all the fathers and the frills. And, slating all its merits up. It gives when seldom is the date The stomach and the pocketbook A season to recuperate.

Like Cures Like.

"What in the world are you doing in there?" said the horrified one to his friend, whom he had discovered behind the bars. "Oh, taking the rest cure," said the other, with an attempt at nonchalance.

"The rest cure? What for?" "Well, to tell the truth, for arrest."

Liked the Changes. "He sent his wife south for the winter." "Did she get any benefit from the trip?" "Yes; the change did her good."

"Must have been expensive." "He sent her a one hundred dollar bill once a month."

"I suppose she got it broken the same day." "Yes; the change did her good."

Self Announcing. "When will you have a presidential campaign on in this country?" asked the newly arrived Britisher. "I do so want to see one."

"Never mind burdening your memory with the date," replied the man who had been through several. "You will hear it when it gets here."

Higher Game. When airships are succeeded By air balloons that fly. They can't run over chickens. But wild geese should be shy.

Her Weakness. "I can get on the good side of any woman." "How do you do it?" "Ask her how to cure a cold."

Verily. Philosophy's a comfort, too. In hour of distress. That misery has tread.

PERT PARAGRAPHS. A woman thinks that if she does all the quarrelling her husband should show his willingness to assist by doing all the making up.

Paying for what you get somehow does not seem to insure getting what you pay for.

See all the good you can in your neighbor and then raise him.

CURES S.S.S. BLOOD POISON A SAFE HOME TREATMENT

In S. S. S. nature has provided a certain, safe, home cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is a medicine made entirely of roots and herbs of recognized blood-purifying value, and is the one medicine which is able to get down to the root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus, and down to the root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus, and down to the root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus. No at the same time benefit and build up the system and general health. No harmful effects ever follow its use, as is so often the case when strong medicinal medicines are used. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. the disease begins to improve, and when the remedy has thoroughly purified the blood and driven out every trace of the poison, no signs of the purified blood are ever seen again. The general manifestations of Contagious Blood Poison such as falling hair, copper-colored spots, ulcerated mouth and throat, sores and ulcers, etc., are merely symptoms of the poisoned condition of the blood, and in most cases respond quickly to local treatment, while S. S. S. is doing the necessary work of cleansing the blood. Our "Home Treatment" book is of great assistance along this line. It is a complete guide for treating the trouble, containing instructions for the local different stages of the disease, and also valuable suggestions about the local treatment, that will be most helpful in effecting a cure. We will be glad to send a copy of this book, free of charge, to any who desire it, and if special medical advice is wanted our physicians will take pleasure in supplying it without cost to the patient. If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison you can cure yourself in the privacy of your own home by the use of S. S. S., an absolutely safe remedy.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKET BALL TEAMS TO ALBANY

Tomorrow forenoon the boys' and girls' basketball teams of the high school leave for Albany to play the respective teams of that city in the evening.

This being the first league game for Eugene, and but the second in the league, the first being between Roseburg and Salem, in which the latter was defeated, it is hardly possible to say much about the results of the games. However, the local boys should not be judged by the heavy score run up against them by the varsity team several weeks ago, as that was played before the team was even organized and had little practice.

The lineup of the boys' team is as follows: Centre, Mitchell; guards, Bean and Coeckelmeier; forwards, J. Watson and C. Watson; utility, young. For the girls: Centre, Mik-smith; forwards, Garrett and Goldsmith; forwards, Gilkey and Rhodes; utility, Emo Hendershott.
