

FACTS ABOUT NEW THEORY SECURED BY INTERVIEWS

People Tell the Reason for Their Faith in Mr. Cooper's Belief

Article from the Nashville Banner, published during L. Cooper's visit to that city, throws light on the remarkable success of the young man's theories and in various cities visited by the past year. The article follows:

"The enormous sale of preparations now going on and the intense interest Cooper has stirred up since a representative of the headquarters, watchman of humanity come and the afternoon the reporter saw many of the callers and statements from all who give them as to their experience with Cooper and his preparations.

"Following are selected from comments as being typical of the expression of the people:

B. Lassater, living at 1224 North Avenue, when interviewed said: 'I have been troubled with stomach for the past two years. Sometimes I walk and there were times I could not even move in bed. I would form on my muscles caused me intense pain. I was unable to eat. I gave me much pain and often I was restless and night, losing much sleep.

"Mr. Cooper and his medicine was accomplishing for others, I decided to try it. I have taken it about two weeks, and find myself in a greatly improved condition. My stomach is in good shape, and does not trouble me at all. My rheumatism has nearly disappeared and I expect to resume work shortly, for the first time in twelve months. Mr. Cooper certainly has a wonderful medicine and I am grateful for what it has done for me.'

"Another caller was Mrs. T. J. Smith, of 505 Hudson Street. She said: 'I have been a sufferer from bladder and kidney trouble for twenty five years. In that time I have tried many prescriptions, and various kinds of medicine, but received little or no benefit from them. I seldom had a sound night's sleep, my rest being broken at intervals throughout the night. I had pains in my back and burning sensations.

"I heard so much of Mr. Cooper that I came to the conclusion he might be able to afford me some relief. I have now been taking the medicine about a week, and feel better in every way. The pain has disappeared and I have no distress whatever. I have come here today to express my appreciation to Mr. Cooper for his wonderful medicine and what it has done in my case. I will take pleasure in recommending it to others.'

"In spite of assertions by various physicians that Cooper is a fad who will soon die out, the young man seems to be gaining even greater headway as his visit draws to a close. The agency for Cooper's celebrated medicines has been given to us. We are making a fine record with them.—Hull's Red Cross Drug Store.

BASKET BALL GAMES AT ARMORY TOMORROW NIGHT

TWO SPLENDID CONTESTS ARE DOWN ON THE BILL AND ONLY ONE ADMISSION PRICE WILL BE CHARGED—U. OF O. WILL MEET O. A. C. CHAMPIONS AND HOPE TO DEFEAT THEM

What promises to be one of the most closely contested games of basketball ever played in Eugene will be pulled off in the armory pavilion Saturday evening. Oregon has never won from the Farmers, but are counting on turning the trick this year, as she has the strongest team in her history. By comparative scores Oregon has a better team than the team from Corvallis did. Only two of the championship team turned out by the O. A. C. last year are with them this season, while the Oregon team remains practically intact. Big Loosely, the Oregon centre, is the tallest player in the Northwest, and Foster, the O. A. C. centre, is nearly as big. It will be a lively battle between the two big men. Coach Murphy says: "All the members of the Oregon team are in the best of shape, and are going into the game fully determined to win."

A fast preliminary will be pulled off between Company C and the U. of O. second team. Don't forget the date, Saturday evening, January 11, Armory hall. Admission, 35 cents.

SCHUEBEL FINDS JOB NOT BED OF ROSES

have to do anything I do not want to.

"Then things are not as represented to me," observed Schuebel.

"If you was told that I was to help you and make everything nice and soft for you by the crowd who have been fighting me in Washington, then you are mightily mistaken."

"Well, you won't help me?"

"Not by a jugful; and you can't use my library."

After a quantity of similar remarks Schuebel said he understood that Bristol had been carrying expense accounts for telegraph, telephone and other bills.

"I won't advance any money for such things," declared the newly appointed district attorney.

"You will," declared Bristol with equal fervor. "You've got to. There are eighty districts, and you need not imagine that one-eighth can attempt to tell the government how to run its business. Furthermore, there is a blue book which you will have to read and know by heart and follow to the letter or you will be jacked up by some dinky department clerk in Washington, and this book tells you what you must and what you must not do as district attorney."

"Gimme the book," said Schuebel.

"I'll give you—nothing. You are not a government officer yet and you won't be until you qualify, and you are not entitled to see the book until you are sworn in. Then, if you want to see the book, look for it in my office somewhere. And don't think for a moment that as district attorney you can go into court and file complaints as easily and in the way you would before a justice of the peace."

How Ben Hathaway Met the Financial Crisis.

Steven Hathaway, head of the firm of Hathaway & Co., Importers, desired that his son, aged seventeen, should succeed him in his business. Wishing, however, that he should be properly educated, he sent the boy to college. Before he left the father said to him: "Ben, since you are to take my place in the business, I wish you to choose elective studies that will be of benefit to you in mercantile pursuits, such as political economy and kindred subjects. Since your life will be devoted to peaceful work I trust you will not spend much time on athletics. You will have no opportunity in business to display your muscle."

Ben went to college; but, having more taste for games than books, he graduated at the foot of his class in studies and at the head in athletics. He was celebrated in his time as right tackle in the football games and on several occasions turned an ignominious defeat into a brilliant victory. When he went home his father was by no means pleased with his son's record, but made the most of what he considered a failure and turned the boy into his counting room.

It was not long after this that the financial panic of 1907 came on, and every one was scrambling for ready cash to meet his obligations. Steven Hathaway exerted every means to keep the firm on its feet, but it was a long pull and a hard pull, and before the finish the old man was well nigh exhausted.

One day Ethan Bull of the firm of Lyon & Bull came into the office of Hathaway & Co. and demanded payment of $10,000 due his firm. When Mr. Hathaway senior begged for time, Bull stormed and blustered, threatening to put the firm into bankruptcy if the money was not paid within twenty-four hours. He left, saying that he would call the next day before bank closing and that if he did not receive a check for the whole amount he would execute his threat.

That night the head of the house of Hathaway & Co. went home physically and mentally in collapse. Ben went with him, put him to bed, sent for a doctor, and when he came asked him to forbid the invalid to go back to his office for several weeks at least. The doctor complied, and Ben breathed easier.

The next morning Ben walked into the office and announced that he would fill his father's place as manager. This did not lessen the dread with which the office force looked upon the situation, for the young man had never managed any business, certainly not in such trying times. It happened to be the worst day of the money squeeze. One hundred and fifty per cent was bid for money, and none to be had. About 2 o'clock, when securities on the stock market were crumbling and ruin stared everybody but tramps and beggars in the face, Mr. Bull walked into the counting room.

He stood six feet one, weighed 200 pounds and had a neck like his namesake. Ben knew well enough that his object had been and was to frighten his father into straining every nerve to raise the means with which to pay his account. The expression of the creditor's face was like that on Japanese images of their god of war.

"Where's Mr. Hathaway?" he asked in stentorian tones.

"In Mr. Hathaway," said Ben, rising from his father's desk and advancing with a pleasant smile. "I suppose you have called, Mr. Bull, for your account. I regret that owing to the locking up—"

"I want my money," roared Bull, "and if I don't get it I'll pull this house down on your heads."

Before the last word was out Ben had tackled him, and in an instant he was on the floor.

"One down!" said Ben.

Bull got up and, with red hot blood in his eyes, went for his assailant. In another moment he had resumed his place on the floor. This time his fall was aggravated by Ben's falling with all his weight on top of him.

"Two down!" cried Hathaway Junior, disengaging himself and jumping up.

Mr. Bull took more time than before to get up, but when on his feet made a drive at Ben with his right which, had Ben been there, would have hurt him. Without waiting for a second drive Ben gave his enemy his fist and landed him again on the floor. Then, jumping on him, he held him down.

"Three down!" he said.

His enemy made a few feeble attempts to rise, then lay still.

"See here, Mr. Bull," said Ben, "if you'll promise to leave this office peacefully I'll let you up."

"Yes, I'll leave this office," panted the prostrate man, "and I'll go straight to my lawyers, and this firm will have a receiver right off."

"In that case you may get your money in a few months or a few years, but there will be another account you'll have to settle with me as soon as the papers are served. I'll give you a thrashing compared with which this will be a passing zephyr. Get up!"

Ben jumped off him nimbly. Bull arose with difficulty and, instead of going for his enemy again, stood glaring for a moment at the office force looking on, then turned and went out, slamming the door behind him.

Whether Mr. Bull disliked the prospect of another settlement or concluded he had better wait for his money we do not know, but he did not press his claim.

In another week Mr. Hathaway senior returned to his office and resumed his place. He was from that time forward a strong advocate of athletics.

MRS. CRUZAN PLEADS GUILTY TO OLD CHARGE

Mrs. Alice Cruzan, the woman who was fixed up in the Nunn-Crowley murder case last summer and who was under arrest at the time for selling liquor in violation of the local option law, but who has been out of the city practically all of the time since, appeared in the Eugene justice court this forenoon and entered a plea of guilty to the charge. She was fined $100 and the amount was paid.

NOBODY SPARED Kidney Troubles Attack Eugene Men and Women, Old and Young Alike

Kidney ills seize old and young alike— Quickly come and little warning give. Children suffer in their early years— Can't control the kidney secretions. Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain. Women worry, can't do daily work. Robust men have lame and aching backs. Old folks weak, rheumatic, lame. Endure distressing urinary ills. The cure for man or woman or for child is to cure the cause—the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys— Cure all the varied forms of kidney suffering. Eugene testimony guarantees every box.

Mrs. A. J. McKinney, of 69 Lawrence street, Eugene, Or., says: "For several years I had attacks of kidney trouble at odd times and recently it became more acute. There was backache and more or less irregularity of the kidneys. Being induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills I found relief almost from the first dose. The backache soon left me and I felt better and stronger. As I continued their use every symptom of my trouble disappeared. Other members of our family have also had good results from using Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
