INSTALLATION OF L. O. G. A. R. OFFICERS

Monday at 8:30 p. m. the doors of the hall were thrown open and the crowd which was waiting in the reception room, ante room and gymnasium for the installation of officers of Rich Mountain circle, L. O. G. A. R. The meeting was then turned over to installing officer Estelle Dimond, who installed the following officers: Mary S. Small, president; Mrs. E. A. Sylvester, S. V. P.; Mrs. Emma Buchholz, J. V. P.; Mrs. Mintie Heller, secretary; Mrs. Bertha Foster, treasurer; Mary Martin, chaplain; Hattie Keopke, conductress; Jennie Vogl, assistant conductress; Miss Archer, guard; Mrs. Cora Wood, assistant guard; Mrs. E. Horton, musician. Miss Simon and Mrs. Deal acted as conductresses, and they did their work in a very efficient manner. At the finish of the ceremony those present were treated to two choice selections on the Mandolin by Master Taylor. It being leap year, the ladies took the privilege it affords and escorted the veterans to supper. Here the good taste of the executive committee was apparent, both in hall and table decorations. The feast was sumptuous, and was partaken of by some hundred and fifty persons. Come again, old veterans; you know your own.

EUGENE HIGH TEAM

DEFEATS ALBANY

Saturday evening at Albany the Eugene high school basketball team defeated Albany high, 10 to 7, in a fast and exciting game. The deficiency of the Eugene five lay in inability to throw baskets, otherwise the score might have been larger. The boys are very much encouraged over the result, feeling that their chance for the W. O. I. A. pennant is very good.

This was the first league game for Eugene. Roseburg has defeated Salem, and Albany has forfeited one game to Salem. The league standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Eugene	1	0	1.000
Roseburg	1	0	1.000
Salem	1	1	.500
Albany	0	2	.000

The next game for Eugene will be with the high school's old rival, Ashland Athletic Club. For the last two years the local team has been defeated by the club. However, the boys are playing "good ball" this year and feel that they will have a good chance to even up old scores. For Ashland "Happy" Eastman, Robinson and the giant Spencer will play. These men have been with the club for five years and know the game "from a to z." The game promises to be fast. As a preliminary the audience will be amused by a game between the "fats" and "leans" of the high school.

HUNDREDS HEARD

MARTIN YESTERDAY

Yesterday was a great day at the Christian church. At Bible school 332 were present. In "The Christian and His Diseases," Dr. Martin most certainly located one or more of the nine diseases in the person of every one in attendance.

At 3 p. m. a great number of men assembled to hear the lecture on "Manhood and the Home." The lecture will without doubt prove to be the initiative in bringing and sustaining happiness in many a home. Long before the evening service began several hundred were present. Soon every seat in the three seating apartments was taken and many occupied standing room. "Prepare to Meet Thy God" was the theme and it was treated with thrilling power.

Come early this evening and hear the sermon on "Can a Man Be Saved Out of the Church?" Service begins at 7:30.

WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? ### EUGENE PROPERTY WILL GROW VALUABLE

Blair street addition property is sure to double in value within the next two years. Two electric rail-ways are coming up the valley from Portland and both of them must enter the city from the west, and the line that will tap the Sinclair country can not go out in any other direction. As sure as water runs down hill, Eugene must build down the valley--because the business is there.

There are both acreage tracts and large lots in this addition, only a mile from the business center and three blocks from the Geary public school.

Prices are very reasonable and you may make your own terms, a small payment down and monthly installments if you desire.

See the Oregon Land Co. at 412 Willamette street, or write them for particulars and prices.

A STROKE FOR CONFIDENCE.

The shah of Persia was chatting with his prime minister.

"Have a care of your women," said the minister. "They are treacherous and oftentimes as ambitious for power as men. Your majesty would do well to watch especially your concubine Mena. You are much under her influence. She will not hesitate to rob you even of your scepter if you give her an opportunity."

"What, Mena? She is devoted to me."

"Do not trust her." "You are a good adviser on affairs of state, but you know nothing of women, especially this woman. To show you that she is true to me I will put her in my place. You will see how readily she will resign it at my request."

"Your majesty"--

"I have spoken." The minister knew that to protest would cost him his head and with drew without another word. At the king's command the beautiful Mena came, and the shah said to her:

"You are my favorite of all my women, and I know how well you love me. To show my implicit trust in you I have resolved to resign my scepter to you. If I am not mistaken, you will surrender it when I call for it. If I trust you too well, you may rule so long as you live."

Mena gave the sovereign a reproachful look. "To test me is to doubt me, my lord. Nevertheless I know that when your royal word has passed no one is great enough to gainsay it."

So the shah signed an edict resigning his power to his concubine, and she was proclaimed in his stead. Mena was the daughter of one of the principal officers of the army, and the day after she was proclaimed the commanding general was dismissed and her father put in his place. The prime minister would have been spirited away by Mena's order, but he was nowhere to be found. The grand chamberlain of the palace was sent on a foreign mission. All the heads of departments were changed. The ex-shah saw these moves and trembled. Instead of asking for his scepter to be returned to him he began to make preparations to save his life by flight. He was too late. On the second morning after his abdication he was arrested by Mena's order and confined in his private rooms under guard. But this was not known to his people, who supposed their sovereign had gone into retirement.

Meanwhile Mena instituted several reforms that had been long wanted by the ex-shah's subjects, and they were received with great delight. Deputations began to pour in, congratulating her on her accession, and within a few days after assuming the royal authority she became the most popular sovereign Persia had had for many years. One day it came to her ears that the prime minister had been discovered in the guise of a private citizen and was plotting to restore the ex-shah. Mena sent an order for his arrest.

When she had become so enthroned in the hearts of her people that no enemy could displace her, she ordered that the shah and the prime minister be brought before her. At their entrance she was seated on her throne dressed in her richest robes and decked with the splendid jewels of the Persian monarchs. The shah supposed that he was being brought to her to have his head stricken off in her presence, but he walked erect, never once deigning to look at her. The prime minister, on the contrary, came in with bowed head.

"My lord," said Mena to the ex-shah, "you were pleased to put me to a test, since your minister warned me against all women, especially me. I have administered the affairs of your kingdom to my best ability. There cannot be two sovereigns, so I have deprived you of the power to resume a crown you have voluntarily relinquished. I have established my royal authority by placing those devoted to me in positions of trust and by pleasing the people. I have now sent for you to know if you are satisfied with my acts."

"Satisfied!" exclaimed the shah bitterly. "Was I not so dejected as to resign my crown, trusting to you to give it back to me when I called for it?"

"You have not called for it." The shah looked puzzled. "Not called for it! I do so now. I demand my kingdom."

Without a word Mena descended from the throne and, taking the crown from her head, placed it on that of the shah. Then she sank in reverence at his feet.

"Mena," he stammered, "what does this mean? Can it be possible that after making yourself absolute mistress of my kingdom you have returned it to me? Why have you done this thing?"

"My lord, it would have been no test for me to assume your crown so long as you could wrest it from me. I wished to give you a better proof of my love."

The shah bent down, raised her, took her in his arms and led her to the throne, where, seating himself, he placed her beside him.

"Reign with me as my wife," he said. "With such a wife I can never be deposed, and with such a woman's love I can never want that of another. But why did you do that which, if you had failed, would have cost you your life?"

"Because you doubted me." IRENE MILLS.
