PORTLAND MARKET REPORT.
Portland, Ore., Jan. 16.—People who are inclined to be pessimistic as to what the new year will bring in the financial and industrial world, should, according to the Boston Herald, one of the leading financial publications of the country, withhold their fears for about three months. March, the paper says, is the best month of the business year and judgment as to what the business for the year 1908 is going to be should be suspended until the showing for March has been made. The Herald says:
"January and February are not especially significant months in the business world. The old business year has been completed and the new one not yet begun. These two months are times of comparative rest. Agriculture is suspended, mining is curtailed, railway traffic is smaller than during several other months, building operations are largely suspended, and manufacturers are not as busy as during the Spring and Fall months.
"But when March comes trade and transportation always become more active. March is nearly always the first month showing a heavy movement of merchandise in both foreign and domestic circles. By that time, merchants, manufacturers and traders are preparing in earnest for the year's business. Manufacturers are busy on their orders for spring and summer goods of all kinds; merchants are stocking up their shelves and warehouses; and the railroads are busy moving goods to market. Hence March will be the best month. If railroad tonnage is then light it will mean that the spring trade is going to be small and poor.
"If bank exchanges during March are way below normal it will mean that an unusually small amount of new business is being initiated. If imports of raw or crude material are small, it will mean that manufacturers are curtailing their output. The business now being done has little or no bearing upon the future. But if March is a poor month it will mean that trade and business will be depressed at least till September, when it will be stimulated by good crops.
Mixed Tone in Sugar.
While the tone of the sugar market is very firm and steady in the east and prices have recently advanced for both raw and refined, the Pacific coast situation is far from being in a good position. With three refineries now bidding for the trade of the Pacific states as compared with one a few years ago, prices can not be made and unmade at the whim of one party. The fact that the Honolulu Plantation company has recently completed one of the best Sugar Refineries, puts that concern in the front rank as far as price making is concerned. A little more than a year ago the Plantation company made an effort to secure a foothold on the coast but without the proper representation its efforts were futile. Now its business on the coast is being looked after by one of the biggest brokerage firms in the west and already it is making itself felt in sugar circles. While the sugar market naturally tends toward a higher range of values owing to the sharp improvement in eastern values, there is no telling what may develop in the Pacific situation overnight.
Prune Market Holding Steady.
Recent attempts to corner the prune crop of California and thereby control prices on the Pacific coast, have proven failures for the reason that Oregon has too great a crop and was not even considered by the parties manipulating the "corner." While prunes are moving somewhat better here, prices are far from satisfactory as compared with the news that ruled previous to the financial flurry.
New York advices state that a San Jose packer writes his local correspondent as follows: "The prune situation at this end is as follows: California has on hand about 15,000,000 or 17,000,000 pounds in the Santa Clara valley. Last year, during the month of December we shipped 18,000,000 pounds and during the spring months 20,000,000 pounds more. Up to the present time we have not shipped into the eastern markets one-half the amount we shipped last year up to December 2. The stocks carried on hand through the country will be less than ever known on January 1, therefore we think there will be a heavy demand and a stiffening of prices within the next thirty days, and I would advise you to get in, as you cannot possibly lose. We cannot state anything in regard to next year's crop of prunes at the present time, but should the "thrip" be as bad as increase proportionately over last year and the year before, it will affect the growing crop very materially. Our prices on peaches are 10 1-4c for choice, 11c for extra choice and 11 1-2c for fancy."

Oregon Eggs at 30c a Dozen.
While in some quarters a fractional advance is sometimes asked over 30c for strictly fresh local eggs, most of the sales are being made at that figure. It is stated that east here some long been offering northern eggs at this figure. Receipts are decreasing and this may help to cause improved buying but no great advance are at present expected in the price because of the enormous supplies of eastern which are being offered here under the local product.
Chickens remain dull with dealers offering 12c for live stock. Turkeys are not wanted at all and arrivals for the past few days are being held by receivers.
Brief Notes of the Trade.
Selling of hops continued heavy at country points with most transactions between 5 1-2 and 6c a pound. W. R. Scheerer of Butteville was in the city today and stated that local buyers were paying the full limits as only about 6c net could be obtained by shipping abroad.
Creamery butter market is holding its own; two creameries retaining the high figures. On account of the advance of the east and the general better feeling there, local handlers are not so weak in their views.
Chicago values will be noted in sack and vegetable today.
Apple movement continues to increase but values are holding stationary.
Rice markets are gaining firmness everywhere but trade was not very brisk during the past week. So say the coast trade journals.
Portland Livestock Market.
The local livestock market continues steady to strong in all lines at the prices that have prevailed for several days.
Cattle—Best steers $3.75 @ 4.25; medium $3.25 @ 3.75; cows $3.00 @ 3.25; fair to medium cows $2.50 @ 3.25; bulls $1.50 @ 2.25; calves $1.75 @ 2.25.
Sheep—Good, sheared $4.25 @ 4.75; full wool $4.50 @ 5.00; lambs $4.50 @ 5.25.
Hogs—Best $5.10 @ 5.35; lights, fats and feeders, $4.75 @ 5.25.
PORTLAND MARKET REPORT
Creamery Butter—30c @ 35c.
Eggs 30c.
Chickens 11c @ 12c.
Wheat—Valley 85c; bluestem 85c.
Oats—Per ton, $27 @ 31.
Barley—Timothy $18; cheat $13.
Hay—Timothy $14 @ 15.
Mohair—Choice, 29 @ 30c.
Wool—Valley 15c @ 20c.
Hops—Prime, 4 1/2 @ 7.
Potatoes—70c @ 80c.
Onions—New $1.60 @ 1.85.
Chittim bark—5 1-2c @ 7c.

MARKET NOTES.
The price of oats is advancing at San Francisco as a result of diminishing stocks.
Good creamery butter (extra) is selling at Eastern points at 27 to 30c per pound.
The price of butter is tending downward all along the coast owing to lower prices at San Francisco.
Ground alfalfa has become sufficiently a staple to be regularly quoted in San Francisco market reports. It sells there at about $5 less per ton than bran.
Good milk cows are selling in the east for $50 to $60 per head. The price of cows in sympathy with the prices of other kinds of live stock, has fallen in the past few weeks.
As potatoes are as high or higher in the Middle West as in Oregon there is no danger that they will be shipped to the Pacific coast or Arizona in any great quantities this winter.
Some idea of the extent of the canning industry in California may be obtained from the fact that the California Fruit Canners' Association has made a contract with the American Can Company for 300,000,000 cans to be used within five years.
San Francisco papers do not show as wide a margin between the prices on Oregon Burbanks and Selma's Burbanks as are shown in the reports of San Francisco markets which are sent to the Portland dailies. Moreover, the prices which local buyers give out as being paid to growers are below the figures they actually pay. The potato market is still in a rather unsatisfactory condition at San Francisco.
A dairyman in the East finds by comparison of market prices that the food cost of producing milk has increased 40 per cent in the New England states since 1904, and the labor cost has increased over 25 per cent. As a result quite a number of dairymen are selling their cows. It is evident that the present unusually high prices of butter and cheese in the greater part of the United States are the natural and inevitable result of a general advance in price.
While wool markets have been very dull for a few weeks, the outlook is fair for improvement. The American Wool and Cotton Reporter gives the amount of wool on hand at leading points in the United States, 96,697,430 pounds on the first of January of 1907. The stock on hand at the beginning of last year was considered small and manufacturers were active in buying it up. If there should be a revival of demand for woolen goods soon the same thing would happen again. The demand for wool during the past year was of a legitimate rather than a speculative nature, so that wool will be wanted as fast as woolen goods can be sold.
