AN INDEPENDENT PAPER

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1908

this year. That's going some, but after all it's only following the example set by Eugene, which is the only city in Oregon, outside of Portland, with both paved streets and electric cars. By the end of this year this city expects that its paved district will comprise at least 40 blocks, and perhaps more.

Mighty hard to keep this patronage thing straight. In the same column of an exchange we find a dispatch denying that the administration is using patronage to help Taft, and another saying that the collector of customs at Plattsburg, New York, had been officially notified that he would not be reappointed, because he had been working for the nomination of Hughes. Now, what's the answer?

There were five suicides in Boston within twenty-four hours last week, and it is said that all of them were directly due to bad weather. All of which goes to prove that the people of Boston should come to Oregon, where climatic conditions tend only to happiness and contentment, instilling a desire to live always among its beautiful hills and valleys.

No dust in the eyes of the New York hotel proprietor who instructed his head waiter not to bar monkeys from the dining room—he knows where the most of his coin comes from.

Even the nery fakir who started the yarn of a legless man who personally runs a 90-acre farm did not dare add that the legless man ran himself, though he did make him an expert ladder-climber.

They are still indicting ex-bank presidents in New York, but not one of them has yet been convicted and sentenced. Given the command of money and it's a far cry from an indictment to a prison cell.

Well, suppose the steamship passenger rate war does cut the price of tickets to Europe to $10? Not many of us want to go to Europe just now.

HARTOG BETTER THAN TOM RICHARDSON
 (Albany Democrat)

Mr. Hartog, Eugene's $5,000 booster, is a genuine booster. He keeps the name of Eugene a going. He recently spoke at an ad. men's convention and referred to Eugene as a city of eight or ten thousand. He can't mention anything but what it's all right around Eugene. Her Royal Anne cherries are the best going—how will that sound to Salem and The Dalles—and Mary Ann and Sister Ann and the other Anns are not in it with Eugene's Royal Anns. Hartog can give Tom Richardson two acres and beat him on talk.

If everybody would get in in this valley and yell their home town the way Hartog yells for Eugene there would be something doing.

MONTHLY MARKET DAYS, HORSE AND CATTLE SHOWS PLANNED FOR EUGENE

Market days bring the farmers and their families to the city where they are held on a certain day in each month from a longer distance than any other attraction that was ever devised. The reason is that market days are wholly for the farmers' financial benefit, and are made so attractive by the promoters that they cannot resist the temptation to come and bring the entire family and the hired girl. He may come to the first one out of idle curiosity, but finding he has made money by simply coming and taking advantage of the bargains offered by the merchants, and seeing the crowds at the auction of livestock and every conceivable article used on the farm, brought in by his more enterprising neighbor, and the phenomenal prices received for the same, he returns to his home enthusiastic over the proposition, and begins to look around for implements, vehicles, harness and livestock, and ships the same to the next market day. Thus the proposition grows and gradually includes everything raised or used on the farm, bringing fame and trade from an unlimited territory to a city carrying them on.

Some thinking local man is selected by the merchants to conduct the market days. He is thoroughly drilled by the promoters in all the many details of conducting the same, which insures unbounded success. The merchants and local newspapers must cooperate with him from month to month, the latter by getting out special market day editions of their weekly papers in which the merchants should take liberal quantities of advertising space for the purpose of advertising market day bargains—real bargains on staple goods—bargains that the thrifty housewife will quickly recognize as such.

These genuine bargains are a great drawing attraction for market days, at which times thousands of dollars' worth of other goods are carried away on which the usual profit is made. The local manager is also furnished by the promoters with a list of livestock buyers throughout the Northwest, and when there is an attractive quantity of good livestock to be offered for sale at any future market day the buyers are notified of the approaching event and come from a long distance to attend the sales. Often there is more livestock sold at private sale on these market days than there is at auction. The general rule is, however, the same with market days as auctions held on farms, the principal buyers are farmers themselves. The local manager can in time have horses and young brood mares shipped to this city from a distance and disposed of at auction either to foreign buyers or local farmers until eventually your city can be made famous for miles as a great center for horse sales. Horse sales, however, is only one item of market day.

What the Promoters Do.
 On the first market day the promoters pay all the expenses of the same, which includes 100 to 200 full sheet posters, and the posting of the same; 1000 to 3000 streamers and the mailing of the same to surrounding towns; the printing and mailing of 500 to 1000 circular letters to farmers in this and surrounding counties, explaining market days and asking them to list anything they have for sale with the local manager each month; postal cards notifying foreign livestock buyers of the approaching sale and also future sale dates for your city for a year; window cards for each merchant subscribing to the first market day inauguration fund, which he can use for all time; the services of an auctioneer; a brass band an hour before the sales in cities where there is an organized brass band; tag and number the articles to be sold; the services of a clerk; display advertising in the local papers and write-up.

What is disposed of at auction the first day is sold for the owner without cost to him; future sales a small percentage is charged for each article sold by the local manager, which pays him handsomely for conducting the same. Sales should begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and last until everything is disposed of. While the farmer is attending the sale, his family is purchasing a month's supply of necessities at the local stores and taking advantage of the many market day bargains offered by the enterprising local merchants.

The promoters have permission to quote the following opinion where they established a market day January 11, 1908:

Lee Teutsch, department store, Pendleton, Or.
 "I helped boost market day, but I never expected it would be the success it really is. I don't know where all the stuff that was sold came from nor the enormous crowd, either. There were thousands of people in town, and my business was exceptionally good. Every property owner is certainly under many obligations to your promoters for the permanent establishment of market days in Pendleton. They are just the things needed to pave our way to unlimited prosperity."

EUGENE PROPERTY WILL GROW VALUABLE

Blair street addition property is sure to double in value within the next two years. Two electric railways are coming up the valley from Portland and both of them must enter the city from the west, and the line that will tap the Siuslaw country can not go out in any other direction. As sure as water runs down hill, Eugene must build down the valley—because the business is there.

There are both average tracts and large lots in this addition, only a mile from the business center and three blocks from the Geary public school.

Prices are very reasonable and you may make your own terms, a small payment down and monthly installments if you desire.

See the Oregon Land Co. at 412 Willamette street, or write them for particulars and prices.

CLAIMS HUSBAND RAN AWAY WITH ANOTHER

Mrs. Lucretia Thomas, of Cottage Grove, today instituted suit in the circuit court against her husband, J. I. Thomas, for divorce. She alleges in her complaint, filed by her attorneys, Medley & Johnson, that they were married at Cottage Grove October 29, 1894, and that on September 15, 1906, her husband deserted her and has since associated and consorted with other women; that he has carried on a clandestine correspondence with one Mrs. Nelson, had his photograph taken with her and has traveled from place to place with her. The Thomas' have two minor children, Alta, aged 12, and Margaret, aged 5. She asks for their care and custody.

AS TO ACUTE DISEASES

In many quarters of the country osteopaths are not very numerous; as a result, the news of their good work having spread, they are kept busy treating patients who come to their offices suffering from diseases that have become chronic, so that the impression has grown that osteopaths treat chronic diseases only.

In many quarters of the country where osteopaths have become numerous the doctors of this new school have become the regular family physicians. They have been called in alike for the troubles of children and parents, and their marked success in the treatment of diseases of every character makes their services much sought after. Any one who wishes a thoroughly convincing demonstration of osteopathy's effectiveness should call in an osteopath when some member of the family is suffering from an acute attack; and it is quite certain that the osteopath will thereafter be the family physician.

NORMAL SCHOOL OFFERS SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

The Southern Oregon State Normal school at Ashland offers special opportunities for teachers to review for the teachers' examinations in February and August, and to take work in pedagogy and special methods in teaching the various grades of the training school. Since the public schools of Oregon are calling for teachers who can teach manual training, many are taking advantage of the industrial work lately installed in the school. Expenses of board and lodging and tuition nominal.

The State Normal School at Ashland is enjoying the largest appropriation of state funds ever granted a normal school in the history of Oregon. Catalogues sent on application to the president.
