

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."
 Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."
 Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."
 Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."
 Dr. Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
 Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."
 Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

HIS PROOF OF COURAGE.

"No, Phil," said Stella Hopkins to Philip Woodman; "you are too prosaic. Now, if you would only knock some one down—some one who had insulted me."
 "But no one has insulted you."
 "Some one might, then what would I do for a protector?"
 Phil left her much depressed, and when a man is depressed about his love affairs it either takes away his appetite or makes him hungry. It made Phil hungry. He started for a restaurant, picking up his friend Sidney Searle by the way, to whom he told his troubles. Searle told him that the proper thing for him to do under the circumstances was to find some friends went into a cafe and ordered a brace of chops and a toy of ale for each. At a table near by were several young men in evening dress regaling themselves with oysters and champagne.
 "Phil," said Sidney, "that fellow with a molasses candy moustache is staring at you."
 "What do you think I'd better do?"
 "Go up to him and tell him that you'll give him a chance to stare at you over the muzzle of a pistol."
 Phil reluctantly dragged himself from his chair and went through the required performance. Cards were exchanged, the offender's pastebord bearing the name of Harold Littlefield. He explained that he thought Phil was an acquaintance of his, but the explanation was not accepted, and Sidney took it upon himself to arrange for a meeting. The principals were to fight at 6 o'clock the next morning at a lonely spot a few miles out of town on the bank of the river.
 Phil went home and to bed, first setting his alarm clock. He went to sleep at 3 o'clock, and the alarm went off at 4. It is hard to conceive of anything more uncomfortable than being awakened before daylight by a rasping sound to the consciousness of having to go out in the raw air to be shot at. Phil got up languidly, dressed himself slowly and started for the dueling ground. The nearer he approached it the weaker grew his resolution. The result was that 6 o'clock found him half a mile from the appointed spot, sitting on a log, looking very disconsolate.
 Then he was seized with a curiosity to go and, unobserved, take a look at the place and see how his friend and his enemy took his absence. So he got up and trudged on, stopping at a place where he could overlook the field from behind a tree. He saw the two seconds walking back and forth to keep off the morning chill, but there was not a principal in sight. It occurred to Phil that Harold Littlefield was as averse to being shot as himself. Here was the chance of a lifetime. Phil determined to hurry down to the seconds, trumping up by the way an excuse for being late, and bluster about the absence of the man who had agreed to fight him.
 Mr. Littlefield had suffered the same discomfiture as Phil to having the warm blood let out of his body on a cold morning. He had halted in a wood on the side of the field opposite to where Phil was in hiding and, seeing that his enemy had not appeared, resolved to go down and claim a victory by default. By a curious coincidence in time the two men started forward at the same moment. Unfortunately they caught sight of each other when it was too late to retreat. Both stopped and stared. Both half turned as if to flee, then simultaneously dragged themselves forward.
 The seconds looked at them sternly and asked the cause of their delay. Both gave very lame excuses, but so long as they were there to shoot each other the rest was unimportant. The seconds proceeded to get all in readiness, pacing off the ground and looking to the condition of the weapons.
 "What's the distance?" faltered Phil in a whisper to Sidney.
 "Twenty paces," replied his second.
 "Can't you make it forty?"
 "I'll see."
 Sidney marched up to the opposing second and asked the wishes of his principal as the challenged party concerning the distance.
 "My principal says sixty paces," replied the second.
 Sidney went back to Phil and reported the result.
 "Try for eighty," said Phil.
 "Eighty? Nonsense!"
 Phil insisted, and Sidney went back and succeeded in arranging for eighty paces on the ground that his man was fastidious. The men were placed in position, and Sidney was about to give the signal for firing when a clatter of horse's hoofs was heard on the road behind the rise from which Phil had started to claim a bloodless victory. The next minute a girl on horseback shot over the rise and, seeing the men in position to shoot at each other, gave a shriek. Hiding between them, she drew rein. She was Stella Hopkins.
 It was impossible that the duel should proceed. Phil threw down his pistol as though greatly agitated, the opposing parties looked relieved, while Sidney Searle turned his back and smiled. No one ever knew how Mrs. Hopkins became aware of the intended meeting except herself and Mr. Searle, and he would not tell because it was by his convenience. After the principals had left the field he discharged one of the pistols at a true center point and found the lead on the ground at the rear of the tree.
 Mrs. Woodman has always declared that she received it having just her husband's revenge before marriage though she risked two lives.

PHYSICIANS DISCUSS THE NEW THEORY

Cooper's Views of the Human Stomach Noted by Prominent Medical Men

A recent article in the New Orleans Item gives an account of the effect upon the medical profession of that city with regard to L. T. Cooper's theory that the human stomach is responsible for most ill health. The article is as follows:
 "The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparation in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity have been forced into open discussion of the man's theories and medicines.
 "The physicians seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in New Orleans—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad that will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.
 "In a statement recently obtained from a well-known physician of this city, the position of those in favor of Cooper is well voiced. The doctor said: 'I am not a believer in proprietary medicines, but I must admit that some of the facts presented to my attention concerning the medicine have gone far toward moving the prejudice I had against them when I first saw Cooper's new ideas and medicines. 'Numbers of my patients have treated for chronic diseases and stomach troubles and have accomplished wonderful results. I notice particularly cases of stomach trouble that have relieved several cases of years' standing and obstinate to treatment. 'I do not wish to stand in public good, simply because of social prejudice, and I wish to give Cooper and his credit as deserving it. The popular demonstration has been accorded them in this city. We sell the Cooper medicine, and are proving remarkably successful throughout the entire South.—Hull's Red Cross Drug Store.'

BEWARE OF PHYSICS
 Only Aggravates Stomach Trouble and Never Cures.
 The trouble with most people who have stomach trouble is that they do not like to take the time to get cured—they overeat and then take physic, which simply upsets the stomach and never cures.
 While relief follows one or two doses of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, chronic and long-standing cases need at least two or three weeks' treatment before the sick headache, dizzy spells, bloating, heartburn, constipation, nervousness and other symptoms that directly result from indigestion are banished never to return.
 Mi-o-na is entirely different from the ordinary stomach remedies. It is taken before meals, stimulating the secretion of digestive juices and strengthening the stomach so that it can do its proper work.
 With every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na Hull's drug store gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.
 Advice to mothers: Don't let your children waste away. Keep them strong and healthy during the winter with Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It is the greatest tonic for children. Pure and harmless. Does the greatest good. 35 Cents a Box.
