

WEAK FROM SUFFERING UNABLE TO PERFORM WORK

Discouraged After Spending Money Without Benefit—Found Help at Last

Mr. Earl McCoy, living at 1506 So. Branson street, Marion, Ind., has passed through an experience that is being duplicated every day in every city and town of any consequence in the United States. It furnishes abundant proof of the correctness of L. T. Cooper's theory in regard to the degeneracy of the human stomach, and shows conclusively the merit possessed by his New Discovery medicine to restore the weakened system to full strength and vigor.

Mr. McCoy says: "For a long time I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble. I was unable to retain any food, and became so weak and run down that I was compelled to stop work. My system was nearly a wreck, and I had tried so many remedies and spent so much money without deriving any benefit that I became discouraged and gave up all hope of ever being well again.

"I heard a great deal about Mr. Cooper's theory and medicine, and after much hesitation decided to try it. The result was a pleasant surprise. Before I had taken half of the first bottle I was able to retain all food eaten, and my strength began to return. I have taken six or seven bottles, and am feeling fine. I eat and sleep well, do not cough at night and am able to perform a hard day's work. I can cheerfully recommend Cooper's New Discovery, for it has done wonders for me."

The Cooper remedies are meeting with remarkable success wherever they are introduced. They are without a rival in toning up a weakened and run-down system. We sell them—Hull's Red Cross Drug Store.

NUMEROUS LOTS SOLD AT FRISSELLVILLE

SUMMER RESORT AT MCKENZIE BRIDGE EXPERIENCING REAL ESTATE BOOM

Frissellville is the name given to the new colony at McKenzie bridge. Many people have bought lots there and will build summer cottages and occupy them during the coming season. Among them are: Judge L. T. Harris, Mrs. E. B. Prentice, Mrs. L. L. Luckey, Miss Winifred Kerr, V. V. Harpham and O. B. Stubbs, the last named being a resident of Portland. L. N. Roney and F. M. Wilkins have also picked out lots, but as yet have not obtained deed to them.

The new colony lies adjoining the Log House Hotel property, and the lots extend from the county road back to the McKenzie river. The lots contain plenty of shade trees and are in an ideal location for summer cottages.

GEORGE FLEEMAN MOVES TO TACOMA

George C. Fleeman, formerly of Eugene, writes The Guard as follows from South Tacoma, Wash.:

"We are getting very anxious to get the Guard again. We have not seen one since we left Ogden, the 19th of January. The weather was fine there, with nine inches of ice, and arriving here we found grass—beautiful and green.

"I have not enjoyed good health any time. I was in Utah and was obliged to make a change of climate. I have been improving since I came here. Our sons, Frank and Hermann Kohler, are staying with us.

Walter Kohler is visiting his sister at Auburn, Washington."

MORE OBSERVATIONS FROM A NEW COMER.

(To the Editor.)
I wonder what would be thought of a man, who would hire another to represent him in a long race, where his life was at stake, as to results. Do you think for a moment that he would take cords and bind him hand and foot, and throw him on the race track, and say, "Now, one, two, three, go!" In reviewing the situation at the present time, in our city affairs, I can't see for the life of me, how our promoter, Mr. Hartog, is going to house the multitude that he will, through his efforts bring to our fair city.

God has given the instinct to all of his children, next to a good name, the love of a home. "Home, home, sweet home" is in the hearts of all families. "Be it ever so humble," it is a home. The wage earner, whether he carries the hod, digs in the ditch, a mechanic, or a bank clerk, loves his home, and if it is his own, then his joy is supreme. He becomes an interested citizen in all that is going on around him. He holds up his head, he feels himself a free man, thrifty and enterprising enters his soul, the love towards his family increases, for he is then interested in every part of the home, and becomes more as one of the family, for they are his, and it is his home, town now. He is an interested citizen, he is a desirable citizen, willing and ready to contribute, to die for his home, his town and his country. On the other hand, deprive him of a home, and all chance to make one, and he becomes a nonentity, loses all interest in politics; unless there is something in it (a bribe). He has no ambition for the town and is more inclined to knock than otherwise. In many instances he becomes an undesirable citizen. He becomes migratory, moving from place to place, has little love for his family, for they are his, and it is his home, town now. He is an interested citizen, he is a desirable citizen, willing and ready to contribute, to die for his home, his town and his country. On the other hand, deprive him of a home, and all chance to make one, and he becomes a nonentity, loses all interest in politics; unless there is something in it (a bribe). He has no ambition for the town and is more inclined to knock than otherwise. In many instances he becomes an undesirable citizen. He becomes migratory, moving from place to place, has little love for his family, for they are his, and it is his home, town now.

First, his lot must be sold to him for a reasonable price; not a boom, dishonest, fictitious price, set by selfishness. Then he must have the opportunity to build a house, according to his dictates or desires, and the city ordinances. Make him a builder for loan, at a reasonable rate of interest, arranged so that he can pay it out in monthly payments. Ninety-nine men out of every hundred will pay for that home. The city will grow and Jim Jones, who has no body of land, will gain, he will be richer by far, in money and property, and have not only self respect but the good will and honor of his fellow townsmen. Conscience clear, willing and ready to meet the eye of God. If he can't be persuaded by moral persuasion, then it is time for the city to force him to become an honest man, instead of a clog, a detriment to the interests and welfare of home, citizen, church and Eugene.

Jim Jones may consider himself a good honest, faithful citizen and in reading this article, the shoe will pinch, and he will exclaim, "Rot, all rot!" I am an American citizen, there is no one can say that I am a dishonest man, for I pay all my just debts; I am well thought of by society. The land is mine—I have a right to do with it as I please. I acquired it honorably and honestly. Jim Jones, you own the land, you know that. At one time many years ago Uncle Sam gave some one that land. Uncle Sam is every American citizen in the United States. He owned it, or they owned it, and it was given away with but very few restrictions. The homestead was entitled to it in every sense of the word. His hardships and endurance were great. But he enjoyed the task, or he wouldn't have been there. Other homesteads were taken up around him, all the land of value was taken. The homestead not only got his land from Uncle Sam but his wood, pasture and his living. Lucky for him, he had neighbors that were enterprising, who started a town, and encouraged its growth, by selling lots at a reasonable price. The town has grown all around the homestead; it is needed by the city for city purposes for homes. The city has made you and yours rich. Be man enough, as I honest enough to come forward, pay your taxes, allow the street and sidewalk improvements to go through it, and put at least one half of your lots on the market at honest value. Then you will become a booster, instead of a knocker as you are now. Please keep your seat, until I am through. Not intentionally are you a knocker; you are anxious to see Eugene become a city, a great city such as it is entitled to become. But way down in your heart, honestly, did you ever do a thing toward helping the growth of Eugene? If you didn't, you have been dishonest to your neighbors; for you have taken your advantages, through the work and expense that they have had to go to. A man starting to farm or any kind of a business, will invest his capital, and all of his energy, for a long time, before he can expect to reap a harvest. He must do it himself, he can't expect his neighbors to do all of his improvements and he reap the benefits. Well, you are either boosting for Eugene or you are knocking, and the history of the town shows that you have been knocking it. Quit it and be a man or a mouse.

In Nebraska City, Nebraska, there was in 1865 7500 inhabitants, the Union-Pacific R. R. was being agitated, and offered to start from Nebraska City, if they would raise $100,000. It was then a boy, but can remember very plainly, how wisely some of the property holders shook their heads, as they explained, "It ain't necessary for us to throw away our money for it, for they will have to start from here any how."

Omaha business men and property holders raised the money and the Union Pacific started from there. They also boosted and have kept on boosting, and today Omaha, instead of being a town of 3500 inhabitants, as it was then, has now 150,000. And Nebraska City has 7000. She had the natural resources for a city, but she lost her opportunity, and never regained it.

Eugene can hire a booster, and furnish all resources that goes to make up a city as large as Portland; you can do this and get thousands of people to come here, but unless you put your capital and energy—I mean every man and woman who owns property here—and make a business of it, that is, invest and reinvest; make it a business to build up business, you will fail and Eugene Oregon will have 7500 inhabitants or less. And some little hamlet with less resources will catch the western enterprise and right energy, and become a city of 50,000 or more.

Mr. Property Owner, awaken, make and grasp the opportunity. Eugene has very advantage for a manufacturing city. All raw products, a down hill pull, manufacture them here, and send the finished article down hill to the coast and in every direction. When a man wants to manufacture some article, help him, encourage, invest in it with him. I see that there is a soap manufacturing plant here; seems to be struggling for a living. I am not advertising him. I only know that I see the finished soap in his windows, but not on sale at grocery stores. There is no call for it. Why? Suppose that every Eugeneite would call for and demand home made soap; what would be the consequence? Can you guess? Chicago would quit sending her soap here, but that man would be compelled to employ at least twenty men or more. And if used here in Eugene, it would be used in the balance of the county, and that would mean at least fifty families, and a good pay roll, all spent here.

As a natural thing one manufacturing plant brings more, and larger ones, and the time wouldn't be far distant, before Eugene would have one that would employ five to ten thousand men, that alone would make a city larger than Eugene is at the present time.

The Editor criticized my last article (by the way, I want criticism), as having Henry George tendencies. Well I don't know, I'm sure I never studied his writings. I am not after any one's fads or fancies; I am for Eugene. I have cast my lot with her. I, like all other new comers, can see the trouble, can see what is holding Eugene back, and if I should happen to tread upon some one's toes, I am glad of it and hope that I will mash them enough, so that they will remove the corns; or, in other words, put all of their holdings on to the market, and take some of that money, and help intending manufacturing investors. F. T.

ANNUAL INSPECTION OF MILITIA COMPANIES

CO. A WILL BE INSPECTED BY GENERAL JACKSON TONIGHT AND CO. C TOMORROW NIGHT.

The annual inspection of Co. A will occur at the Armory tonight. Inspector General James Jackson will act as inspecting officer as usual. The members of the company have been preparing for this event for the past several weeks and hope to have an attendance of 100 per cent as they have during the past three years. Co. A, at the last annual inspection, proved to be the crack company of the state, securing the highest standing at the inspection, and the members hope to retain this position this year. Co. C will be inspected tomorrow night, and after the inspection the company will give a social dance.

SERIES OF SERMONS AROUSING INTEREST

During the past months Rev. D. H. Trimble, of the Methodist church, has delivered two series of sermons, giving Sunday evenings to these special subjects, the first being on "Questions About You," the second on "The Home."

These spicy addresses, interspersed with pointed illustrations, have proved very profitable. A third series has just been begun which promises to be the best of all. Remembering the efficiency of the former efforts the general public will be much interested in the present one.

Having for a general subject "Basil Boost for Eugene," Rev. Trimble last Sunday delivered a matchless discourse on "Type of Young Man We Need."

The enthusiasm and diction, the talent and genius put into that talk held the audience spellbound. Happy the young man who was so fortunate as to hear it.

Continuing the subject next Sunday evening, Mrs. Trimble will deliver an address on "Type of Woman We Need," being the second of the series. This will be Mrs. Trimble's first appearance before a general congregation in Eugene, although she has addressed the girls of the high school in assembly and some of the University sororities. But that she is eminently capable of handling the above theme is indicated by the excellent article from her pen which appeared in the January number of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Two more subjects will complete the series, being "Type of Fathers We Need" and "Types of Mothers We Need." The members of our Commercial Club, including Mr. Hartog, could get some exceedingly good suggestions by being present Sunday evening.
