INCREASING POPULATION CALLS FOR INDUSTRIES

It has been discovered that since October seventy new houses have been built in Eugene in that half of the city lying west of Willamette street. This is the report of a member of the board of school trustees, made the inspection to secure information regarding the need of a schoolhouse. In the section lying west of Willamette street not so many houses have been built during the same period, probably due to the expense asked for lots, but it has been quite active and some fine residences are the result. In the business section of the city more buildings are in course of construction or on contract than ever before at this time of the year. This building activity indicates a rapid growth of population, and should be taken by the managers of the Commercial Club to mean that they must bend all their energies to securing industries which will employ the people. We must make an inducement of free sites and hustle for substantial additions. One enterprise in this character, the Weber-Bussell factory, seems to have dropped out of sight, and efforts should be made to locate it here assured.

PACKING PLANT HAS BIG MEANING

The establishment of the great packing plant at Portland by Swift company means much to that city as an industrial way, but it means more to the entire Northwest. It especially benefits the valley, by placing a market for the hogs and cattle at their very doors, placing them in the same relation as the farmers close to Chicago, Kansas City and other packing centers. In brief, it supplies a long-felt want in a way of opening for a stable market for the profitable products of Western Oregon. Furthermore, the establishment of this industry as this one indicates the future development of Oregon is certain to be, because it has undeniably attracted the attention of Eastern capital at last. Building of electric roads in this valley has fairly begun, and in five years each railway line will cut the time up in checker-board fashion between construction is comparatively cheap and the mountain streams afford abundant power sites close at hand. Electric roads mean small towns and more dense population, and in turn will call for factories and industries of varied character. The people read the signs of the times and are simply getting in the ground floor by establishing the plant in Portland ahead of competition. Eugene and every other live valley town will profit by the rapid growth of the country in population and productiveness. We have here a city of 20,000 people in the year, perhaps larger if we take advantage of every possible opportunity to secure industries that will promote growth and attract population.

EDITOR HOFER IS BAKED OVER THE COALS

A correspondent of the Albany Democrat calls attention to the fact that Col. E. Hofer, publisher of the Salem Journal, the principal newspaper in the state opposing the University of Oregon appropriation, sends his own son to Stanford University in California; that he gives as his reason for this act that the institution is better equipped than any Oregon college. Loyal citizenship, indeed!

The correspondent further says: "It is amusing from the fact that Salem is always in for all the appropriations that come in or near Salem, and never finds fault with them no matter how unjust or unreasonable they may be. Especially is it interesting for this man Hofer to talk about extravagance for he most always was found buttonholing members of the legislature to vote for this and that appropriation. For example when there was an effort being put forth to saddle the enormous expense of a mansion for the abode of the Governor, upon the people of this state this man Hofer 'bore the great burden and heat of the day' laboring for its passage when he knew the price was unreasonable and unnecessary."

"This is only one instance among many that this double dealer has worked for. This one of God's poor mortals gets his bread and patronage from the people of the state of Oregon, but when his masculine offspring has reached the maturer years of life and wishes to further develop his usefulness, or rather his capacity for usefulness, Mr. Hofer selects Stanford University in California, giving as his reasons that it is better equipped and up to date, more nearly than are the schools of Oregon, yet this same creature opposes improvements in the Oregon college."

"It seems only consistent that if the money of Oregon people is good enough to buy Mr. Hofer's paper, then the schools of this state ought certainly to be good enough to meet the intellectual demands of his children. "But this pitiable editor chooses to patronize a school that is thoroughly aristocratic, equipped with paraphernalia and apparatus to meet any line of thought, and then lays back and talks of extravagance in our legislature. But the place of his choice is one where plutocracy has its sway and the sons and daughters of the wealthy come to have a good time and 'finish their education.'"

One of the most novel schemes to keep a husband at home in the evening has been evolved by a Chicago woman, a bride of only a few weeks. The lady's lord and master was in the habit of going out to attend church against her wishes, because she thought he should remain at home, at least until the honeymoon had begun to wane. So when he left home recently to attend his religious devotions the lady stuffed a lot of rags in her mouth and tied herself to the sewing machine. In this position she was found later by her husband, and of course, when his wife told him she had been attacked by a couple of burglars he raised a big row over the incident. But the police thought they detected something wrong in the situation, and upon questioning the lady she admitted that the burglar story was all a sham and that she had put up the job in order to make the head of the household remain at home. It is further related that the ruse worked, and that one husband in Chicago is now thoroughly domesticated.

It's all very well for able gentlemen to take the high ground that all subjects like the tariff and finance should be removed from politics, because they are business questions, but are not all questions pertaining to the policy of running the government, which is simply a big business, on precisely the same footing?

The Republican convention can now be called off. Three versatile and imaginative prophets give by states four ballots of the convention, the fourth showing the nomination of Hughes with 504 votes. Such wisdom is truly wonderful.

Pennsylvania must have a jim dandy bunch of bank examiners. The receiver for a small bank in one of its small towns says its books show 2000 irregularities, and the shortage is only a beggarly $70,000.

They say husbands do not count in feminine fashions. Maybe not, but it will be noticed that shirt waists that button up the front are again style.

GOES TO CLEAR SON OF CRIMINAL CHARGE

D. S. Wilhelm, of Lowell, left today for Lake county, where he will endeavor to secure evidence which he hopes will clear his son, Ellice Wilhelm, who was arrested in this county a few days ago, charged with stealing a horse at Silver Lake. The boy tells a straightforward story about trading horses and declares he is innocent of any crime. The many friends of the family hope for his speedy acquittal. Mr. Wilhelm goes by way of Portland and Bend. Deputy Sheriff C. D. Arthur, who was sent here from Lakeview to take the boy back there for trial, will start with him Saturday, going south by way of Klamath Falls.

DIED.

Miss Marcia Russell, who visited her brother, J. A. Russell, of this place, last summer, died at her home at Fairfield, Iowa, February 9, 1908. Mr. and Mrs. Russell were in attendance at the funeral, which occurred February 10.

IT ADVERTISES EUGENE

Roseburg has gotten the paving fever and a big excursion is to be run to Eugene to see how that city does things along the paving line. Here is a pointer for Albany. A city that will pave the way Eugene has paved desires to have excursions. It is time Albany got a paving action on and made a start. The rest will follow.

AN ALBANY OPINION

An ordinance has passed the city council of Eugene providing for free transportation of city officials on the street cars. This is on a par with the infamous free pass law of the last legislature.

THE DOCTOR OF OSTEOPATHY

What His Title Means—How He Gets It and the Peculiar Abilities Acquired in His Long Course of Training

The graduate of a recognized college of osteopathy, after a long and exhaustive study of the highest authorities in anatomy, physiology, pathology, diagnosis, therapeutics and all kindred branches, is awarded a diploma that gives him a legal right to the title of Doctor of Osteopathy. That is the only title that he wishes, for he makes no pretense of practicing medicine, the word medicine being generally accepted as meaning drugs.

The abbreviation of the title of Doctor of Osteopathy is D. O., and the province of the D. O. is to help nature in the human body, to right herself. He believes that drugs are not only unnecessary, but distinctly damaging, and that the body is a very perfect machine that will run along smoothly if supplied with the proper fuel (food), and if none of its parts get out of position.

Repairing the Structure. But, while the most perfect of machines, it is also the most delicate, and derangement of its parts can be brought about in scores of ways. Falls, jars, strains, undue exertions, and local contractions or relaxations due to changes in temperature, are only a few of the things that may cause trouble in this delicate mechanism. Sometimes the effects are immediately apparent, sometimes long delayed.

It is for the especial work of finding the derangement, and rectifying it that the osteopathic physician is trained. He is a master mechanic, and when anything is wrong with the machine it is the master mechanic whose services should be called in. If some little part has slipped out of place, the resulting trouble may be at a distant part of the mechanism, and but the trained expert would be likely to attempt repairs in the wrong place and work further damage. But the skilled workman does nothing until he has made thorough examination and found that little part that has slipped out of place: Then his training enables him to replace it. That is the work of the osteopathic physician.

If you want an opinion as to the value of osteopathic treatment do not make the mistake of consulting any one whose whole training has been along other lines. Ask some one who has had experience with the system and knows, or, better yet, go to a good osteopath and give him the opportunity to demonstrate the thing to you.
