$4000 WAS PRICE ON HORACE G. M'KINLEY'S HEAD

TIENTSIN PAPER SAYS OREGON MAN WAS BETRAYED BY CONFEDERATE FOR REWARD—MADE MANY FRIENDS DURING RESIDENCE IN CHINA

Horace G. McKinley who has arisen to noble notoriety through his land-gobbling operations in Oregon, and who is now supposed to be on his way across the Pacific as the guest of the United States, occupied some space in the columns of the Tientsin Critic a few weeks ago, when he was captured and placed under arrest. In the issue of January 9, under the headline of "Recapture of Horace G. McKinley," the Critic gives the following account of the pursuit and apprehension of the fugitive:

"Horace G. McKinley, who escaped from the Chinese authorities at Mukden on November 11, and who was recaptured at Khabarovsk last, arrived in Tientsin on the 10th in custody of Miss American Consul March, and is being held in the jail of the British consular-general, where he will remain until arrangements have been made for his departure for America. He is expected to leave in a few days, probably under the escort of Robert Stevenson, the United States marshal there.

"McKinley is not only wanted as a witness, but is himself implicated in the noted Oregon land frauds, involving a United States senator, several congressmen and other men of note. Over 100 indictments have been issued, the cases now being up for trial.

"There being no extradition treaty between the United States and China, the American government sought to establish a precedent in McKinley's case, to ascertain whether or not China would cooperate in extraditing any criminals and adventurers who sought refuge in her territory, without a treaty.

"Had McKinley made good his escape it would undoubtedly have defeated this first attempt.

"As China was desirous of showing that she was in sympathy with the movement, and that her cooperation could be relied upon, and also because the provincial authorities suspected their subordinates of assisting in his escape, a special effort was made to effect his capture. They offered a reward of $4000 for his apprehension, which has since been paid, the informer turning out to be one of McKinley's confederates.

"He was captured at Khabarovsk railroad station just as he was about to board the train. He would have undoubtedly got away if his confederate had not given him away at the last moment.

"McKinley is a quiet and unassuming man, and during his residence has conducted himself in a steady and well-conducted manner. He made a large number of friends and was generous to a fault. It is said. He put more than one man on his feet where others had refused help. During the greater part of the past two years he has resided in Tientsin, being employed as manager of the Winter Gardens, and then on their closing went up into Manchuria.

had a severe spell of sickness. The doctor advised a change of abode. They have consequently moved out to Hadleyville, where they will also be better situated to send their children to school.
