DO YOU KNOW WHAT CAUSES SICKNESS

Modern People Have Manny Names for Same Disease, According to New Belief

Does human health depend on one organ alone? This question is becoming widely discussed since L. T. Cooper first advanced his theory that the stomach is the true seat of life and all health depeadent upon it.

Mr. Cooper, who has met with remarkable success in the sale of his new medicine, believes that the stomach is responsible for most sickness, and that this organ is weak in the present generation. While discussing this theory recently, he said: "I am asked time and again to tell why my medicine has made such a record wherever I have introduced it. My answer always is, "because it restores the stomach to a normal condition." No one will deny that today there are more half-sick men and women than ever before. Nothing critical seems to be the matter with them. They are just half-sick most of the time. They don't know really what is the matter with them. I have talked with thousands during the past two years and few indeed knew what their trouble was. One said nervousness, another said kidney trouble, another liver complaint, some constipation, or heart trouble or lung trouble. Many had treated, as they called it, for most of these diseases at different times. A very common complaint is 'all run down' or 'tired all the time,' or 'no appetite.'"

"I know positively that every bit of this chronic ill health is caused by stomach trouble, and nothing else. My New Discovery puts the stomach in sound condition in about six weeks. Mighty few people can be sick with a sound digestion. That is why my medicine is selling at such a tremendous rate. I have convinced many thousands of people that these things are so, and the number is growing by leaps and bounds."

Among more recent converts to Mr. Cooper's beliefs is Mr. Edgar L. Hinds, living at 6 Tappan Street, Everett, Mass. Mr. Hinds has this to say on the subject:

"I have suffered with stomach trouble for eight years. I was not sick enough to be in bed, but just felt bad all the time. My greatest trouble was that I always felt tired, would get up in the morning feeling as tired as when I went to bed.

"I had a very irregular appetite, and was troubled with dizzy spells. If I stood for any length of time, I would have a dull pain in the lower part of my back. I was nervous and felt all the time as though something terrible was going to happen. I tried many kinds of medicine, but nothing ever helped me.

"I had about given up all hope of ever being in good health again, when I heard so much of Cooper and decided to try his medicine. I took one bottle of his New Discovery and was greatly surprised at the result. I gained 12 pounds in a few weeks. I can now eat anything I wish, and feel like a new man. I cheerfully recommend this medicine to all sufferers from stomach trouble."

It is worth anyone's time, who is not enjoying good health, to learn of Mr. Cooper's wonderful preparations. We are selling them in large quantities.

REPORT THAT S. P. MILLS ORDERED SHUT DOWN

PERSISTENT RUMORS THAT THREE BIG PLANTS AT MARCOLA WILL SOON BE IDLE

Persistent rumors have been afloat in Eugene during the last few days to the effect that the three big sawmills owned and operated by the Southern Pacific Company at Marcola will at once be closed, orders having been received from headquarters to clean up the yards and prepare for a long shut down. The Guard has endeavored to trace these rumors down to their origin, but so far has been unable to do so. Men coming down on last evening's train from Marcola say they think the report is true, as the company has already laid off the fallers and buckers in the logging camps, and preparations are seemingly being made to close the mills down. On the other hand, J. D. Fields, of the Ax Billy department store, which conducts a branch store at Marcola, states that when he was there Sunday there were no indications of a shutdown aside from the laying off of these men in the woods. He said a large drum for one of the donkey engines used in the logging camps arrived there Saturday and is now being placed in position. It was Mr. Fields' opinion if there is an order to close the mills they cannot clean up for several weeks yet. Mr. Fields is a nephew of Superintendent L. R. Fields, of the Southern Pacific Company.

HOP MARKET WEAK, SEVERAL SALES MADE

Says the Salem Statesman: During the past week John Carmichael has bought the following hops: The Stearns crop at Oakland, 150 bales; Bent Jones, Salem, 260 bales; Joe Williams, Carlton, 300 bales. These are reported to have been choice hops. Mr. Carmichael is very reticent regarding the price paid. This morning's Oregonian had the following details of the hop market:

"In spite of the discouraging tone of cables and mail advices from London, there is a fair export inquiry for hops and a number of transactions for English account were reported yesterday. John Carmichael bought the Andrew Kan lot of 281 bales at Brooks at a price understood to be 5 3-4 cents. Kola Nels was also in the market, among his purchases being the Walling lot of 180 bales, at Lincoln, at about the same price. These buyers represent the two largest hop houses in London, and the fact that they have resumed buying lends color to the belief that the other English firms may soon come into the market."

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH

Given by Doctor Who Has Treated Thousands of Cases.

A physician who has made a life work of treating catarrhal troubles gives the following list of symptoms which indicate when catarrhal germs are present in the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, or tissues of the lungs:

Offensive breath, frequent sneezing, dryness of the nose, pain across the eyes, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose, huskiness of voice, tickling in throat, droppings in throat, a cough, pain in chest, stitch in side, losing in flesh, loss of strength, variable appetite, spasms of coughing, low spirited at times, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, loss in vital force.

If you have any of the above symptoms, begin the use of Hyomei at once. It is the only treatment for catarrh sold by Hull's drug store under an absolute guarantee to refund the money unless it cures.

The price of the complete outfit is but $1 if it cures, nothing if it fails.

APPRENTICE GIRLS WANTED

IN SEARCH OF A FATHER.

Years ago a man and his wife and boy baby settled in a village in New England and set up housekeeping in a small way. Why they chose to make the place their home no one knew. Neither worked for a living, but they did not appear to be in want of funds. Their station seemed to be that of upper servants.

The child, Arthur, as he grew from babyhood to boyhood, was of a widely different type from his parents. While they were homely, he was handsome; while they were dark, he was fair; while they were of a coarse grain, there was that about him akin to the manner born.

Finally the source from which they drew their income seemed to be failing them. The man—Trainor was his name—made frequent trips somewhere, no one knew where, and on his return the family's finances seemed to have improved, but only temporarily. At last the woman died. After her death the father disappeared, leaving his son, now about thirteen years old, to shift for himself. He had not been required to work and, now that he was thrown on his own resources, knew not what to do. He desired to find his father with a view to having his wants provided for, as before. He wandered about aimlessly, doing odd jobs and eking out a miserable existence.

Two years had passed in this way when one day while he was at work in a field he saw his father drive by in a buggy. The boy ran to the fence and called, but did not succeed in making himself heard. Running after the buggy, he followed it for miles, now losing it, now regaining sight of it, till at last he saw it turn into a handsome country place.

Arthur was by this time exhausted, so he sat down on a stone to catch his breath, keeping his eye on the place his father had entered. It was a sightly place, the house being large and the grounds spacious. He wondered who lived there and why his father went there. How beautiful life must be to one who could call such a place home! As soon as he had regained his wind he got up and ran on. The place was more than a mile away, and he was some time in reaching it. When he did he entered a large gateway with a massive stone pillar on either side and followed a winding driveway to the house. The horse his father had driven was hitched to a post before the front porch.

Suddenly the front door opened, and an old gentleman ushered Trainor out, saying:

"Not a cent! Find the child and I'll square the account with a thousand dollars, but till then never let me see your face again."

Suddenly Trainor caught sight of the boy.

"Why, Arthur!" he exclaimed. Then, turning to the old man, he said: "There he is. Now you may atone for your villainy."

The old man stood staring at the handsome boy, all ragged as he was, and gasped:

"Is that my grandson?"

"He is. He's your daughter's son and your grandson." Then to Arthur: "My boy, I'm not your father. This old gentleman will tell you who you are."

The old man took the boy in his arms, then, running into the house, called:

"Alice, your boy is here!"

In a moment a lady of middle age ran down a winding staircase, and, seeing the astonished Arthur, she took him in her arms and would not release him.

Some eighteen years before Alice Archer had run away from home to marry a man her father disliked. Her father had followed her and succeeded in getting her back to his home, where he kept her a quasi prisoner. A child was born, and Mr. Archer made up his mind to get rid of it. Giving the baby to Trainor and his wife, who had been his servants, he agreed to furnish them with money as long as they needed it. But Trainor became so importunate that Mr. Archer was obliged to shut off a part of the supply and finally all.

The man Alice Archer had married died, and the mother at last prevailed upon her father to restore her child. But by this time Trainor had deserted the boy and lost track of him. After this Mr. Archer refused to pay Trainor any more money till he produced the boy. But on the day Arthur came home his grandfather paid Trainor a lump sum on condition that he would use it to leave the country never to return.

Arthur Archer, or, rather, Reginald, which was the name given to him before he was sent away, was first put into a bath, then clothed in apparel befitting his station. Then commenced the process of making up for the years he had lost in the matter of education. He is now a man. Often he saunters up the road to the spot where he sat down to catch his breath when following his supposed father, and, gazing at the place he then looked upon so covetously, he recalls the picture of his boyhood days and contrasts them with the present. His grandfather is dead, and he is master of all the old gentleman possessed. In Mr. Archer's old age he came to see his sin in turning away his own flesh and blood and could not do enough by way of atonement. But he never entirely forgave his daughter for running away and marrying against his will, and after his death it was found that he had left all his property to his grandson. This, however, made no difference, for the grandson lives only for his mother and to atone the fault caused by her father.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ills in the world has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

No other medicine has such a record of success for woman's diseases, or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, Inflammation, Ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has relieved more cases of Backache and Local Weaknesses than any other one remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodic pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues." These are indications of Feminine disorders, which this medicine overcomes as well as slight derangement of the Kidneys of either sex.

Women who are sick and want to get well should refuse to accept any substitute for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
