GOD GIVE US MEN

"Men whom the lust of office cannot kill. Men whom the spoils of office will not buy. Men who have opinion and a will. Men who have honor, men who will not lie."

ABSTEMIOUSNESS IN EATING AND DRINKING

Abstemiousness in all things is a characteristic to be commended. Intemperance, or over-eating is almost as harmful as over-indulgence in drinking intoxicating liquors. This falling away from the brutal instincts of the man as does the liquor habit, is so far as the harm to his physical system is concerned, it is just as bad as the drink habit, a fact that is the least of the average individual.

RECOMMENDATION VIEW OF MORALS AT WHITE HOUSE.

It is a matter of common knowledge on the part of congressmen and other high officials, that there has been more wine and liquors consumed at the White House and paid for by the government during Roosevelt's occupancy than for any other period in the history of the government. Roosevelt is not only an intemperate drinker himself, but he keeps those about him who follow his example. Fairbanks knew the habits of the president well enough to know that he could not begin his dinner without cocktails. In Kansas we seek to put the badge of crime on the liquor business, but that is under a state law. At the White House the United States government provides intoxicants in the most generous fashion. This has always been the practice, the only difference being that Mr. Roosevelt has demanded and received more, by far, than was required by any other occupant of that historic mansion. This is the exciting little comment but for the fact that Roosevelt never in his life has been a teetotaler. Now we have the office of the president used for a raffle conducted by himself and two United States senators. By way of apology for the senators it must be said that the part they had in the same was made necessary, as this was the way the president chose to dispose of the patronage of his state. The two senators from South Dakota, Senators Kittredge and Gamble could not agree on a division of the offices that custom has made it necessary for them to buy from the president. Roosevelt decided to settle the matter by a raffle. This would be a violation of the law in Kansas, but any old thing goes now-a-days at the white house. But what do the God-fearing men and women of South Dakota think of it? What do the good people of Kansas think of it? Is this one of Roosevelt's policies that must be sustained? Think of it, hero worshippers! The federal offices of a great state determined by a gambler's game. If the people elected their officers no such game as this would be witnessed at the white house. Patronage! Patronage! Patronage! The most corrupting thing in government.—Home Rule.

CITY ELECTION

I am directed by the common council to give notice that the annual city election of the city of Eugene will be held April 6th, 1908, which time one councillor will be elected from each ward of the city. Candidates for that office should file their nominating petitions with the city recorder on or before the 21st day of March, 1908. S. D. ALLEN, City Attorney.

town in the state. A town of that population that can support two good daily papers is bound to go ahead rapidly."

While the hubbub was at its height Harriman quickly bought another railroad, and in House Rabbit's ballwick at that, and with Tom Wagon doing constant guard duty. Some day the people will wake up and find that Harriman has bought the whole shebang over night.

Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, seems to be playing a lone hand in the financial game, having publicly served notice that he would not vote for either the Aldrich bill nor the Bailey substitute. Still, if there is a Clarke substitute we have not heard of it.

And then again, the king of Italy may have knighted a Boston hodge-podge and the governor of Massachusetts at the same time as an evidence of good faith—to show that he believes us when we say "one man's as good as another."

Rudyard Kipling thinks "going after riches with both hands" is awful, but that getting riches with his good write hand is all to the good. We have often thought it was the royalties he plucked that made him such a staunch imperialist.

And now the baseball editor stalks around with the haughty mien of a monarch whose crown is unchallenged, while he thinks of the new slang he'll hand 'em this season. Oh, well, we can't all be the whole show, even part of the time.

Anyway, the Oklahoma legislature has got the new state a lot of free advertising, and states, like business establishments, need all the advertising they can get.

As a king Alfonso, of Spain, may not rank one, two, three in history, but as a plucky little chap, with a full supply of sand, he seems to be the goods.

Though the diamond trust is reported as "busted," no bargain sales of the sparklers have yet been advertised by our enterprising merchants. Sure; if we had only one per cent of what John D. Rockefeller has we could preach a brand of contentment fully up to that of his chief out.

COUSINS ELOPE AND GO TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

ALIRIAN WYCOFF AND MISS GEORGIA WYCOFF DETERMINED TO WED DESPITE THEIR BLOOD RELATIONSHIP.

The story of the elopement of a young couple residing in the McKenzie valley and who are first cousins, has reached The Guard. The young people are Alirian Wycoff, who is aged about 25, and Miss Georgia Wycoff, said to be only 16 years old. They left home two or three days ago, accompanied by the young man's sister, Miss Ethel Wycoff, who is also under age. They came to Eugene by private conveyance and took the first train for British Columbia, where the young man and his cousin will be married, the laws of this state forbidding the marriage of first cousins. It is said that after the wedding they will return home and expect to reconcile their parents to the union. It is said the young people have been contemplating marriage for some time past but the parents of both have naturally been very much opposed to it. Seeking the aid of the young man's sister, it was found that she was agreeable to the proposition and the elopement was planned by the three and successfully carried out.

FATHER OF'FARELL ON PULPIT AND POLITICS

Eugene, March 18, 1908. To the Editor:—Some ideas expressed in your editorial of last evening seem very much out of place when advocated by an organ published in this enlightened community. Your second paragraph, it would seem, can be accounted for only by reasoning as you have reasoned in your first with regard to Father Yorke and Mr. Heney, and concluding that you have little use for preacher, priest or rabbi!

Passing over the question as to whether or not politics are out of place in the pulpit, I hold that preacher, priest or rabbi has a right, as a citizen, to express himself on matters political in public or private, as I believe that political questions are closely connected with moral issues. Who is recognized as having a better right to speak on moral matters than a professed teacher of morals? The fact that a distinguished name gives added weight to his utterances does not take away his right.

Were it not for preacher, priest and rabbi, and the influence they exert on public thought and the check the fear of their opposing voices often places on politicians, we might have reason to tremble for the consequence.

Teachers of morals are not alone mistaken, but it seems a matter of history that the successful experiments outnumber the unsuccessful ones. Editors sometimes give wrong advice—one year they condemn what the previous year they advised—yet it does not seem to deter others from daily grinding out lengthy paragraphs on matters political, religious, etc.

It seems a sad state of things when anarchists and their ilk are permitted to mouth their blasphemous, against law and order, broadsides, while those who represent the highest authority are to be muzzled and in silence sacrifice their lives, and those whom they are supposed to feed must follow every red or yellow rag that floats upon the breeze of liberty and license.
