

EUGENE'S NEW RESIDENCES--NO. 11

HOME OF PROFESSOR PERCY ADAMS AND FAMILY

The new residence of Professor Percy Adams and family on Mill street, between East Twelfth and Thirteenth, was completed only a few weeks ago at a cost of about $50,000. This is one of the best residences in that part of the city, and is of the type that is becoming popular in Eugene. Professor Adams, who is a finished architect, drew the plans for the building, and the carpenter work was done by day labor under his direction.

SAN FRANCISCO DOES HONOR TO MILLIONAIRE MILLS

San Francisco, March 25.—A public reception was given this morning by the Chamber of Commerce as a token of appreciation by the business community of the efforts of D. O. Mills to promote the prosperity of the city and state.

President Charles C. Moore, of the Chamber, presided and spoke in behalf of that organization and other commercial interests.

Mayor Taylor delivered a cordial address of welcome, to which Mills responded in an address in which he reviewed the wonderful work accomplished in city rebuilding since the great fire of less than two years ago.

"I came here in the spring of 1849, and have seen San Francisco survive many trials. It never had a greater one—hardly any city ever had a greater one—than the earthquake and fire of two years ago; and certainly no other city ever showed greater courage in meeting disaster and surmounting it. I predict a greater future for the city than perhaps many of you anticipate. The plain story of restoration since the fire seems like a fairy tale. In the period of nearly two years the building operations filed exceed $90,000,000. In the case of almost every building the cost, as some of us well know gentlemen, exceeds the original estimate. So we may safely assume that the buildings erected since the fire have cost about $100,000,000. As nearly as can be ascertained all but about $4,000,000 of this vast sum is local money."

DRURY LANE WAS NOT DESTROYED

London, March 25.—The fire which early this morning was reported to have destroyed the famous Drury Lane theatre, did not do so much damage as was supposed, though the structure was damaged greatly.

PRESIDENT SENDS SPECIAL MESSAGE URGING CONGRESS TO ACT PROMPTLY ON MATTERS OF PUBLIC CONCERN

Washington, March 25.—A special message of President Roosevelt was read in both houses of congress soon after convening today and was closely followed by the members. In the house the declaration that the time had come for the revision of the tariff was greeted with Democratic applause. The Republicans confined their applause to the message as a whole.

Points of the Message

In his message President Roosevelt urged prompt action by congress on various measures suggested by him affecting labor conditions and matters pertaining to trusts and interstate commerce. The president asked that child labor be prohibited, and at least that a model child labor bill be passed for the District of Columbia. He renewed his recommendation for the immediate re-enactment of the employers' liability law drawn to conform with the recent decisions of the supreme court, and that provision be made for federal employees who may be injured in governmental service. The president also urged legislation in the matter of injunctions, recommending that no temporary restraining order should be issued by any court without notice, and that petition for permanent injunction should be heard by the same court issuing the temporary injunction. He called attention to the urgent need of amending the interstate commerce law and especially the anti-trust law along the lines indicated in his last message. The interstate commerce law should be amended to give railroads the right to make traffic agreements subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

The president recommended that when a public utility concern goes into the hands of a receiver the attorney-general should have the right to nominate at least one of the receivers, who should operate the roads and as speedily as possible pay the debts and return them to their proper owners. An amendment should be made to the anti-trust law because of the uncertainty as to how this law affects combinations among laboring men and farmers. If the combination has any tendency to restrict interstate commerce. The president says all these combinations while existing far and engaged in promotion of innocent and proper purposes, should be recognized as legal, and declares the anti-trust law a most unwisely drawn statute and that in the modern industrial world, combinations are absolutely necessary. They are necessary among business men, they are necessary among laboring men, and they are very, very necessary among farmers.

The president recommends arbitration as a substitute for strikes among laboring men, but that strikes are and should be recognized as legal, and declares that combinations of workmen have peculiar reasons for their existence.

"The very wealthy individual employer, or still more, the very wealthy corporation, stands at an enormous advantage when compared to the individual workingman, and while there are many cases where it may not be necessary for laborers to form a union, in many other cases it is indispensable."

The president declares the right of employers to combine and contract with one another and with their employes should be recognized, as should the right of employes to combine and contract with their employers.

For Tariff Revision. On the tariff the president declares the time has come for its revision, and points out that it is one of the provinces of the house of representatives to originate a tariff bill and fix its terms, and recommends that something be done at this session toward collecting full material and data so that revision can be taken up immediately after congress convenes next fall.

The president urges that as protection to our forests pulp wood should be put on the free list, with a corresponding reduction upon papers made from wood pulp, when they come from any country that does not put an export duty upon them.

He also urges that ample provisions be made for a permanent waterway commission with whatever power is required to make it effective and points out the need of the conservation of waters.

Anti-Trust Amendments. The substantive part of the Anti-trust law should remain as at present; that is, every contract in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations should continue to be declared illegal, provided, however, that some proper governmental authority, such as the commissioner of corporations, acting under the secretary of commerce and labor, be allowed to pass on any such contract. Probably the best method of providing for this would be to enact that any contract of employers to combine and contract with one another and with their employes should be recognized, as should the right of employes to combine and contract with their employers.

SIX PRISONERS BREAK OUT OF CHEHALIS JAIL

Chehalis, Wash., March 25.—Last evening six prisoners escaped from the county jail and only the timely arrival of a deputy prevented a wholesale escape. Those who got away were Tom Brown, a patriot, George Wyatt, for adultery, and Walter Hazelgraves, G. McDonald, Charles Anderson and Thomas Roberts, accused of robbing a railroad car. Carpenters were working on the building and left a ladder in a convenient place, and a hole in the floor where the carpenters were working afforded a convenient means of reaching the ladder. None of the men has been recaptured.
