

BLOOD POISON

HUMILIATING-VILE-DESTRUCTIVE

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, which is quickly followed by a red rash on the skin, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, ulcerated mouth and throat, and often copper colored spots on different parts of the body. As the blood becomes more fully contaminated with the poison, pustular eruptions and sores break out on the flesh, and in extreme cases the nerves and bones are attacked and the finger nails drop off. Then the sufferers find themselves diseased from head to foot with this humiliating, vile and destructive poison. No other disease is so highly contagious; many an innocent person has been inoculated by handling the clothing or using the toilet articles of an infected person. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, and neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, tones up the system, and completely and permanently cures this disease. S. S. S. has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison. If you are suffering with this debasing and destructive disease begin the use of S. S. S. and get the poison out of your blood before it permanently wrecks your health. We have a home treatment book on the disease which we will send free to all who wish it, and in addition our physicians will give without charge any medical advice needed. ## OREGON LOSES AT BOTH EUGENE AND SEATTLE

UNIVERSITY DEBATORS FAILED TO EXCLUDE OR ADMIT JAPANESE TO UNITED STATES TERRITORY--CONVINCED ONE JUDGE LAST NIGHT--DECISION, HOWEVER, POPULAR

Two University of Oregon debating teams went down to defeat last night at Seattle and Eugene, landing lowest honors in the Interstate League by convincing one judge in Eugene. The question was, "Resolved, that the present laws relating to the admission of Chinese immigrants into the territory of the United States be extended to the Japanese." In the debate at Eugene the University of Idaho (who won) by showing that, while the Japanese should be excluded, the Chinese law is not the fit instrument.

After Nicholas opened the debate for Oregon the visitors sprung their surprise upon the local collegians, who seemed unable to cope with the argument. Bond, the Oregon leader, put up some good rebuttal, but the negative case was too strong. Oregon, by the turn of the argument, was put altogether on the defensive, which in case of an affirmative team, is usually a losing position.

Oregon's case stated that the presence of the Japanese in this country provoked lawlessness, and that their continued admission was a menace socially and industrially, and that the extension of the Chinese exclusion law is the proper method of remedy.

Idaho admitted all but the last, and maintained that the Chinese exclusion law is a failure and cited the difficulty of keeping Chinese out on the borders. Secondly, that the extension of the Chinese law to all American territory works a hardship upon the Hawaiian and other islands, whose source of labor is solely Japanese. Third, that the law itself is unjust and illegal through the methods of examination of immigrants. Fourth, that the Japanese are regulating emigration to the United States, and during such regulation the last few months few Japanese have entered American territory. Fifth, that American commercial interests in Asia will be endangered. Sixth, that the United States, by extending the Chinese exclusion act insults the brown man, and that war would be likely to result.

The Idaho team backed up the argument with a huge mass of evidence, which, while partly refuted, could not be satisfactorily overturned.

Oregon was represented by Jesse Bond, leader; W. C. Nicholas and Walter Eaton; Idaho by R. O. Jones, J. D. Mathews and B. D. Mudgett. The judges were Professor Prichaux, of Willamette University; Prudent Crooks, of Albany College, and Judge Kraemer, of Portland.

The decision of two to one was generally admitted to be just by the god-sized audience present in Villard hall.

Idaho Champions
Idaho is champion for the second time by beating both Oregon and Washington. Washington gets second place in the league and Oregon third. Oregon won out last year by equally as decisive a victory, Idaho being champion the year before by one vote, each institution winning a debate.

UNANIMOUS DECISION FOR WASHINGTON

Seattle, Wash., March 26.—Because of their ability in meeting their opponents' arguments and in setting up a good constructive case, the team debating for the University of Washington and favoring the exclusion of the Japanese from this country on the same basis as the Chinese are now excluded, won a unanimous decision from the team representing the University of Oregon in the triangular interstate debate tonight.

IDAHO WON FROM WASHINGTON AT MOSCOW

Moscow, Idaho, March 26.—By a unanimous decision of the three judges Idaho tonight won from Washington in the tri-state university debate, supporting the affirmative on the question of Japanese exclusion. The opinion expressed by two judges, McRee and Fowler, was that the debate was won by the rebuttal of Holman, of Idaho, who contended that Japanese laborers are unnecessary and harmful to the laboring industries of the United States—that their continued immigration would create unmovable race problems because the Japanese are unassimilative.

AMUSEMENTS

The new play, "Cupid at Vassar," brings into prominence Vassar College and presents on the stage for the first time the doings of the girls in this institution of learning. The love story is strong and the characters attractive. The songs—written by A. Baldwin Stone, who wrote "Lady Teazle" and "The Gingerbread Man"—are most musical and are being hummed by the audience wherever the play has been heard. Florence Gear plays the leading part.

The girls introduced into the play, Sally Webb, Matty Hart, Alice Worth, Patty Snow and Helen Conway, are counterparts of young ladies found at that seat of learning by the author. They are athletic, literary, dreamy and full of common sense as they are found in any large collection of well nourished young women. Florence Gear plays the leading role of Kate Newton, a Vermont girl who beats at basket ball as easily as at other branches of the curriculum.

The contrast between Kate and her half-sister, Wanda, is clearly shown by the spirit which animates each in the working out of her college life. Sincerity and insincerity could have no better exponents than the two sisters here portrayed. Both are in love with the same man. Both are the daughters of the same mother, but here all similarities end. The play comes here in the course of a few weeks.
