FULTON BRANDS HENEY WILFUL AND MALICIOUS LIAR

ALLEGED BRIBERY BY SENATOR DISPROVED BY EYE WITNESS, WHO FURNISHES AFFIDAVIT

OREGON'S SENIOR SENATOR FLAYS PROSECUTOR—UNFAIR METHODS RESORTED TO IN ORDER TO BEMURK HIS REPUTATION—DEFIANCE HURLED

A very large audience greeted United States Senator Charles W. Fulton at the theatre last night in his address in which he replied to Francis J. Heney's recent attacks upon him. Hon. H. W. Thomson, president of the local Lincoln Club, presided at the meeting and introduced the senator after the band had played a selection and a gale quartet had rendered two songs.

Beginning with his election, Senator Fulton detailed the history of his term in congress and the various efforts made to discredit him before the people. He stated that he knew that a conspiracy had been at work both in Oregon and Washington, with a well-arranged plot, but he had misjudged the desperate and reckless character of the campaign waged against him which was based entirely upon falsehood and misrepresentation.

"No man can wear Heney's clothes without looking crooked, and if he wears them long enough he will become crooked. Heney is a malicious and wilful falsifier," exclaimed the senator. "He has taken the machinery of the government and used it in order to find, if possible, some flaw in the individual, but after all his work he had no facts to base his charges upon, so he had to manufacture them."

Denies Various Charges. Senator Fulton enumerated the various attacks made upon him, refuting each of them after giving their history. He went over the Weyerhaeuser article published in a magazine, in which he was accused of having introduced a bill to turn over valuable lands to the lumber syndicate. He dwelt on the "Umattila deal," which had been exploded. He went over in detail the charges made through the Brownell-Mays correspondence, and read the letters from both, and his replies thereto, showing how Heney had only quoted the parts that could be made damaging to Fulton. He dwelt upon the bribery charges made by J. S. Smith and the accusations made during the trial of John Hall.

"The Smith story, from top to bottom, in every fabric, was made up and is wholly malicious and false. Heney knew it was when he hired a church to tell it in."

Grills Governor Chamberlain. Senator Fulton told of his having informed Governor Chamberlain of Smith's being a grafter, and of his surprise at the governor making the affidavit connecting Fulton with the bribery story, which Fulton had learned of only after the adjournment of the legislature, and grided the governor for the return of a friendly act. He admitted the truth of the accusation that he had been loyal to friends, and said that he hoped he always would be. He paid a tribute to friendship as the one thing in the world worth while.

The senator briefly reviewed the story of his term in the senate; how, alone, he had represented Oregon for two years at Washington; how he had become a member of important committees and the work he had done for the state in securing large appropriations for the Columbia and in other ways of benefit to his constituents.

The Powell affidavit reads as follows: "The Powell Affidavit. 'State of Oregon, County of Linn, ss.: 'I, James F. Powell, being duly sworn, say: That I am a resident of the city of Albany, county of Linn, Oregon; that I am the James Powell referred to in the affidavit of J. S. Smith, subscribed and sworn to by Thomas B. Neuhausen, special inspector, department of the interior, and reported in the Oregonian of Portland, Oregon, in the issue of January 29, 1908, as part of the address of Francis J. Heney, delivered in the Congressional church of said city of Portland on the evening of the 28th day of January, 1908; that I have read said affidavit carefully and that some, as far as it refers to myself and the facts therein stated that come within my knowledge, is almost wholly false; that I know said J. S. Smith in Albany, Or., and was personally acquainted with him long prior to the convening of the session of the legislature mentioned in his affidavit, and did not introduce myself to him as stated in his affidavit; that I did not vote for Mr. Smith and never at any time represented to him that I had voted for him; that the facts attempted to be narrated by the said J. S. Smith in his said affidavit occurred as follows: 'One day during the session of the legislature of 1907, after the adjournment for the day, Smith came to me, and after remarking that I knew those people (referring to Senator Mitchell and his friends) and that he was satisfied that Mitchell had money and was using it there, and that he, Smith, needed money, asked me if I could put him in a position to get some of it or get his hand in the sack, or words to that effect. I told Smith that I thought I could arrange for him to meet Senator Mitchell. I made arrangements for the meeting, and that same evening at the appointed time went with Mr. Smith, and together we met Senator Mitchell. I introduced Smith to

Senator Mitchell, introducing him as a representative of Linn county. I then offered to leave the room, but both Smith and Mitchell insisted that I should remain. I told them that whatever they did was between them and that I would have nothing to do with it, but that if they wished me to remain I would do so. They said for me to remain, and I did so. After some preliminary talk it was agreed between Senator Mitchell and Smith that Smith would, on the following day, go into the so-called Benson house of the legislature and answer roll-call and assist in organizing the house and make a speech in favor of organization, and that for so doing Mitchell would pay Smith $1500; that the money was thereupon paid and Smith and I left the room, going away together. 'Fulton Was Not Present. 'That I was with Smith the remainder of the evening, and accompanied a room with him that night; that Senator C. W. Fulton was not present when said agreement was made, took no part in it and had nothing to do with the payment of the said $1500 or any part of it; that the matter was never mentioned in the presence of Senator Fulton so far as I know, and to the best of my knowledge Senator Fulton knew nothing of the transaction. 'I make this affidavit in the belief that wrong has been done Senator Fulton, and that the people of the state of Oregon are entitled to know the truth in this connection. (Signed) 'JAMES F. POWELL. 'Subscribed and sworn to before me this 27th day of March, 1908. 'J. M. REDFELD, Recorder of the City of Albany.'

KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Dallas, Or., April 2.—An explosion in the machine shop of the Salem, Falls City & Western Railway Company late yesterday afternoon resulted in the death of August Gerlinger and the injury of Carl Gerlinger, master mechanic, and John Gerney, apprentice.

Dr. William M. Calk, the aged father of H. M. Calk, Republican candidate for the nomination for United States senator, and of W. M. Calk, Jr., ex-Multnomah county judge, died last night at 6 o'clock at his residence at 414 Eleventh street. Dr. Calk was a retired physician, and while he had not practiced medicine since he came to Portland, he was well known in Grand Army circles and in church work. Dr. Calk's death was due to a fall which he received last January and from the effects of which he never fully recovered.—Portland Oregonian.

LILLEY INTRODUCES MORE EVIDENCE OF HUGE GRAFT

Washington, April 3.—Representative Lilley, author of the resolution for the investigation of the methods of the Electric Boat Company, placed in evidence today an affidavit dated March 12 and signed by Samuel Ferguson, who swore that during the fall and winter of 1902 he served in the navy in the capacity of chief electrician, and that during that time he served on several submarine boats owned by the Holland Torpedo Boat Company, or its successor; that many of the crews of these boats were sailors of the United States navy, receiving pay from the United States government, and in addition thereto received wages from the Holland Company.

This statement is offered in substantiation of Lilley's statement that the Electric Boat Company has paid money to enlisted men. Lilley also introduced the affidavit of John C. Lake, vice president of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, dated March 16, to the effect that Charles Ferry, representative of the Bridgeport Brass Company, told him that President Bowles, of the Fore River Shipbuilding & Engine Company, had asked Ferry to use all the influence possible upon a Connecticut congressman to induce him not to use his influence in favor of the Lake Company, but to use it in favor of the Electric Boat Company; that if he was successful the Lake Company would make contracts with the Bridgeport Brass Company for $100,000 worth of goods.

Ferry in his testimony on Wednesday denied any such transaction or that any such proposition was made to him.
