A PRAYER FOR TRUE MANHOOD

Let me live this life without trucking appeal to the present or fear of a future— with head erect and hope in my heart—conscience my comrade, and work its own recompense. Give it me to suffer fools with fortitude, and meanness without malice; vouchsafe me self-forgetfulness and self-respect— with these I can face them now, and Thou then. Help me to forget a fault, and forget failure. Forbid that I ever be discourteous or unkind—may I remember, always the relative values of money and manners. Let me not judge others—bearing in mind that all is set down in the Big Book. Make me obedient to Thy purpose of creation, that I may have the love of woman and the confidence and companionship of friends. If so be there is sorrow and suffering in store, as is the rule of all life, give me courage to bear and strength to endure—having a mind that others, too, have carried a cross. And if, as the end draws near, I shall not have reached the castle of my dreams, be gracious then if ever, O God, and give it to me to be content.—Bill Barlow's Sagebrush Philosophy.

STATEMENT NO. 1 STRONG WITH VOTERS

The result of the primary election in the state is what the people have declared strongly for. It means the election of a man who is not a politician but a man who stands on this question than the assaults of Francis Heney. In Lane county the anti-statement were thoroughly organized and their forces to the polls, making strong showing because of the light and the excellent personnel of candidates they centered upon. On the other hand the Statement No. 1 people were unorganized, and had to get out and vote, the Republic having but one legislative candidate, Mr. Eaton, who subscribed to the principle embodied in this statement, and he was strong enough to have an organized assistance, to meet the assaults of the aggressive and is nominated by a margin under the circumstances. In Multnomah, Marion and other counties where the Statement No. 1 made a vigorous campaign, they have won easily, according to returns at hand up to this hour.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE ON "COUNTRY EDITOR"

William Allen White, of Emporia, is an ideal newspaper man in the thousands of small cities in this country. He has won a name worthy, desirable and honorable fame and reputation. His writing is better than is possible for a man who has never been out of the United States, and it is a greater good and proved to be practically useful. At a meeting of the Press club of Chicago, Mr. White said: "An editor's mistake is made when he does not know the wisdom of the people. To be a good editor is greater and much more satisfactory and useful than to be a king. Mr. White talked on the "Country Editor" somewhat along the same lines as in his address at the Guthrie convention of the National Editorial Association, and said among other things, witty and wise: "There are three things," he said, "which no man can do to the satisfaction of other men: (1) Love; (2) poke the fire; and (3) run a paper. No matter if a man has no more sense than an oyster, he does not know how many toes he has, he always knows how to run a paper better than the editor. And what is more, he tells all about it in the strictest confidence. But despite all this valuable advice that is wasted the editors still go on making blunders and money. "The old-fashioned editor who had to be all things to all men is passing away. The time has come when a man who runs a paper is his own master."

In 1879 the kingdom of Prussia began to acquire the railroad systems of the country and the process was continued until the state now owns and operates 21,500 miles of railroad, which includes all except two or three very small lines in the kingdom. It has paid off, from current revenue, one-third of the total cost, constructed branch lines as required and made large equipment expenditures which in this and most other countries would have been capitalized, and for the last twelve years has earned an average net revenue of 7.12 per cent per annum, which has been paid into the treasury. Recent appraisements show that in any favorable condition of the money market the state system could be sold for double its cost to the state, as may well be believed from the net revenue which it yields. By the sale of its roads the kingdom could pay off its entire national debt and have hundreds of millions of money left.

Before throwing bouquets at the Boston preacher who asked to have his salary cut from $2,500 to $1,200, it might be just as well to ascertain how much in arrears it was. The gentleman may have been only reducing his worry.

Disputes between the authors of bills providing for publicity of campaign contributions are only calculated to arouse the suspicion that somebody is engaged in trying to humbug somebody else.

Congress as a body isn't "afraid" of anything, but individually it has about decided that it will be easier, and safer, to explain why things were not done than to defend them, if done.

Yes, the world will give you the glad hand, just as the Chicago Tribune says, for making a noise like a dollar bill. Also, if you're not foxy, it will give you the quick touch.

Why waste so much time and space advising congress how to carry out the president's recommendations, when there are no indications of any intention to carry them out?

Even the brightest college grads have to get a few hard knocks before they are convinced of the impossibility of starting in any line as an old-timer.

Isn't all this talk about secret service men being detailed to protect members of the cabinet more calculated to attract than to deter an assassin?

If the statistical bunch will insert the word "poor" before their "living is cheaper," the lie will not be handed them so often by householders.

Though a lifeless campaign might stop the salaries of a bunch of ever-imaginative press agents, it need not necessarily be a lifeless affair.

Chauncey Depew is beginning to make a noise like a man who sees, far off, hope of another term.

In order to get to it first, we rise to remark that Fulton's senatorial cake is dough.

A Twenty-Year Sentence

"I have just completed a twenty year health sentence, imposed by Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me of bleeding piles just twenty years ago," writes O. S. Woodruff, of LeRoyville, N. Y. "Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed me in the shortest time." See at W. A. Kayser's drug store.

FINE ENGRAVING

We have just added to our store a first-class engraving department, under the supervision of Mr. V. A. Westerberg, a first-class engraver and lately from Minneapolis, Minn., and are prepared to do fine engraving on watch cases, jewelry, silverware, etc. at reasonable prices. A reasonable amount of engraving will be done on goods bought at our store free of charge.

LOUISE DRESSER, STAGE BEAUTY. Miss Dresser is a typical American stage beauty, and as the American stage boasts the most beautiful women in the world that is only another way of saying that Miss Dresser is very beautiful. Her portraits are favorites with photograph collectors, and she has been the subject of many sketchy posters by artists who seek to portray rare types of beauty.

NEW TARGET RANGE AT COTTAGE GROVE

Company E has recently moved its target range equipment from the Nelson place two miles east of town to the farm of Mrs. Sarah E. Cochran, one mile north of this city, having secured a three years' lease on an ideal range on the latter place. The pit and targets are located at the base of a steep bluff or hill, which forms a safe and solid background for the targets and bullets from the rifles. The old range was located on the east side of Row river, and during the winter months could not be reached by members of the company, and the location was therefore too far from town and too inconvenient. The new range is easy of access and only fifteen minutes' walk from the armory.—Cottage Grove Leader.

BEGIN NOW TO TREAT RAY FEVER

April is the ideal time to begin to treat ray fever osteopathically in hope of warding off that scheduled attack next summer. Permanent cures are often accomplished by removing osteopathic lesions. Treatment should not be delayed until irritation of the mucous membranes of the eyes and nose has resulted. In early spring the predisposing cause may be treated alone without the exciting cause also, as becomes the case later, when pollen is blowing.

Notice to Whom It May Concern

I am trying to introduce in this section some of the best Jersey blood in the United States. I present I have the most royal bred bull, 18 months old, in this country. He has St. Lambers and Stoke Pogs blood predominating, two of the most famous strains anywhere to be found. D. H. Looney, Jefferson, Or., has the only Stoke Pogs bull on this coast to head his herd. Mine has one of the grandest records back of him for milk and butter, frequent tests of 20 to 30 pounds of butter per week. Dr. Wilbycombe says "his sire is without doubt the most handsome bull in the United States." I am breeding this fellow at the low price of $35, whereas in the East he would stand for $50 per service. Stoke Pogs 20th stands at 18000, Humphrey, South Willamette street. Itd
