GOVERNOR CHARLES E. HUGHES.

This is Governor Hughes' favorite portrait and probably is the best likeness that has ever been made of the New York executive. The fight that Governor Hughes has made to stop race track betting in the Empire State has drawn him into more prominence than his candidacy for presidential honors. Soon after his inauguration the governor set about to frame a statute that would stop bookmaking, and he made the hardest fight in the political history of the state to secure the adoption of the measure.

ENATOR BILL BORAH DEFENDS PRESIDENT

ttor to his country and a criminal heart."

"I contend," said Mr. Borah, "that e evidence in this case is simply overwhelming and conclusive against the colored soldiers unless you resort to the proposition of a conspiracy which manufactured the evidence and that is evidently the view taken by the defense."

The morals of the army, he said, are paramount to any man's right to remain in it. If any man in the Twenty-fifth regiment participated in the riot, and if others connived at the crime by concealing knowledge of it to shield the guilty parties, then both are guilty alike, he declared.

Mr. Borah called attention to Mr. Foraker's suggestion that th citizens of Brownsville might have shot up the town to secure the removal of the negro soldiers.

"Now I confess," he said, "there might possibly have been a desire to attack the soldiers, but it seems that this conspiracy, if it had an existence, would not have turned its guns upon its own people."

Mr. Borah reviewed at length the testimony in the case and then announced in conclusion that "it discloses the guilt of certain members of the Twenty-fifth infantry as participants in the Brownsville affair beyond a reasonable doubt."

"No more serious charge than this was ever made against a soldier of the United States. For less offenses many a soldier has been condemned and shot at sunrise. To my mind it was treason, if not technically so, yet morally treason of a most aggravated form. In these times when an air of disloyalty pervades certain parts of the social life of the nation, when an element which lives upon lawlessness, strife and murder, raises its treacherous hand here and there, playing with human life as with a toy, when the doctrine of riot is preached as a tenet of party organization—under such conditions, to find this spirit of lawlessness, this appetite for crime, in our army—the body which is to maintain the flag wherever it floats—is startling beyond all words to express.

"Finding lawlessness there so close to the vital forces of this government, what was the duty of those entrusted with the power and responsibility of dealin gwith it? Strike it down! Assert the majesty and relentless judgment of the government in a way to inspire both respect and dread in all who so lightly weigh the worth of human life or who so trifle with the honor and good name of that great army whose patriotism has been the pride of us all. Any other form of action—to hesitate, to compromise—would be an injustice and an outrage to the army and constitute trifling consideration of the interest of people who look up to the government for protection to life."

Mr. Borah dwelt at length upon the accomplishments of the negro race since the abolition of the slavery and found much cause for congratulation. But, he said, this fact could not excuse individuals from punishment for crime even if such leniency should be in the interest of the race which it would not be. Concluding, he said:

"Let it be understood by them and by all that this government is their government as well as ours; that their hands, their labor in slavery and out, helped to make it; that their valor and heroism helped to preserve it, and that justice will be meted out both in protection and in punishment. The door of hope will not be closed nor an escape from crimes be provided. Let it be known, as every man must know, that if this republic is to endure, obedience to the law is to be the first tenet of our faith and that th grat army-).* xz 23456 3456 the great army of the United States must be one in which the women and children can feel perfectly secure when retiring for the night."

COLT BORN WITH COW'S HOOF ON ONE FOOT

Albany, Or., April 19.—A freak colt has been born on the farm of E. Hartsock, in Benton county, near this city. One of its front feet is a cow's hoof. The colt is now four days old and apparently is not hampered by its strange foot. It runs about and will probably grow up.

GOVERNOR GRANTS BILLEK REPRIEVE

Springfield, April 20.—Governor Dineen has granted a reprieve to Herman Billek, sentenced to hang for the murder of the Vezral family, to June 12.

COME—Let us reason together. If there is a reason why mutual insurance is not safe and business-like, I want to know it and get out of the business. If it is the best insurance you want it. All that I want of fair-minded business men is a chance to meet objections and to explain our methods. Office in Fountain Grocery, 502 Willamette street, Eugene. a20

LOST—Saturday in one of the dry goods stores, the First National bank or on the street car, a ladies' silk umbrella, with gold head, pearl stick and gold tip. Finder will please leave it at The Guard office or with Minnie Evans and receive reward.

FOR SALE—One National cash register, one Remington typewriter and a large iron safe. Enquire of L. M. Travis, Loan & Savings bank building.

MAY PAVE SIX BLOCKS ON OLIVE STREET

A petition is being curculated among the property owners on Olive street asking the city to order that street payed from West Fifth to West Eleventh street, a distance of six blocks. It is said a majority of the owners of property on the street are signing the paper and the prospects are fair for securing the improvement. If not possible to obtain the requisite number of signatures to secure the improvement of the street for that distance the property owners will petition for the pavement between West Seventh and West Tenth, but those who are back of the movement seem to be confident that they will be successful in their efforts to get the entire six blocks paved.

OFFICIAL COUNT BEGINS PROBABLY TOMORROW

ONLY THREE PRECINCTS HAVE NOT BEEN HEARD FROM—NO ELECTION IN HECETA

The ballot boxes and tally sheets for Wendling, Five Rivers and Florence have not yet arrived at the county clerk's office, and the official count will not be commenced till they are received. They are expected in tonight and in that case the count will begin tomorrow morning. It will take a day or more to complete it. The returns from the precincts that have not yet reported will not change the result of the election in the least.

The ballot box from Heceta precinct was brought in this afternoon, the messenger reporting that no election was held there for the reason that not enough voters to make up the election board came to the polls. The day was very stormy on the coast, where the precinct is located, and only two or three men appeared at the polls.

Te Mound returns came in at 4:30 this afternoon. Three votes were cast, two Republican and one Democratic.

FATHER OF NATIONAL GAME IS DEAD

New York, April 20.—Henry Chadwick, aged 83, who took so prominent a part in the development of baseball that he was called the "father" of it, died today at his home in Brooklyn.
