TARIFF REVISION
NOW SEEMS CERTAIN

The fine progress made by the principle of tariff revision must gratify all who seek the economic betterment of the nation and love justice. Both parties are practically committed to a readjustment of the tariff rates, to a revision down, not up, and we may look forward with confidence to the achievement of this desirable reform next year. That the few soreheads who threaten all manner of consequences to the Republican party may be disregarded as impotent is the optimistic view taken of the situation by the Los Angeles Express.

The growth of the revision sentiment among manufacturers themselves is one of the most pleasing evidences of its ethical strength. They reject the absurd Sereno Payne of New York, and the protectionist back, John Dalzell, of Pennsylvania. Assuming once to speak for the Republican party and to voice the thought of the manufacturers of America, they now stand stripped of every pretense save that of representing grafting pap-suckers. American industries, "the manufacturers' paper," in a late issue thus comments on the obese Payne:

"It is a great misfortune that men like Mr. Payne are allowed to call themselves protectionists. They have been advanced by powerful interests, not that the country might have protection, but that a sleeping and trustful public may be wronged by the misapplication of the principle and its gross abuse. In their fancied security and their insistence upon continued evil opportunity, these men are now in the position of the life insurance presidents a few months ago, just before the public awakened, when they were cast up to general view, broken and despised; and those in congress and out, who, even by inaction contribute to the strength of Mr. Payne's position are participants to a public wrong. They hurt Mr. Payne and his friends even more than the public, for the public is fast getting ready to care for itself in this matter without regard to obstructionists, active or passive."

The Venezuelan situation, which has long been serious, now appears imminent. This country has foreborne, because of the weakness of the little bandit despotism of which Castro is the head and front, but it is probable that before congress adjourns the president will be empowered to take such steps as in his judgment may be necessary to bring the Venezuelan government to a sense of its responsibility, says the Woodland Democrat. It is likely that the course to be pursued will be to blockade the Venezuelan ports and possibly land a small army on Venezuelan soil. A large army would scarcely be required. That country has long been the seat of revolutions, and an invading army would probably be assailed by insurgents opposed to the autocratic government.

A monarch by the name of Yborshi is advertising a kingdom for sale in several Continental newspapers. He offers his throne, crown, scepter, dominions and subjects for sale, with thirty wives thrown in, for the modest sum of $200,000. His realm is that of Arzonbia, a strip of land in Africa, 250 miles long and 90 miles wide. The power of life and death is the king's prerogative, and goes with the crown, as does the granting of all commissions. A special attraction of the offer is the royal crown, which is a great diadem of human skulls. The throne is made of skulls and chain bones. Thus far his dynasty appears to have had no other.

the good people there—some "cases" of eight, in particular—are living on nothing save water, pure green breezes and sunshine. Some of them have been fasting only three or four days while two of them have abstained for nearly two weeks, and Miss A. V. Barber, of Willowbrook, bids fair to surpass the record of Miss Grove, who recently went forty-one days without food. A strange fact, to be sure, this going without food, but there's no accounting for tastes. And they do say that it strikes terror to the various trusts dealing in food products, for they, one and all, realize that if the habit should become general they would have to go into the hands of the bankruptcy courts.

With all due respect to the wisdom of Governor Johnson, this country will be in need of divine assistance should the people ever "rise above the fallibility of judicial tribunals," as he says he has faith they will.

Less considerate than the Jersey brand of mosquitoes, which always wait until after the summer resorts open to get troublesome, the Mosquito Indians, of Nicaragua, have already opened their white-killing season.

No, Eugene isn't booming—but she is growing as steadily and rapidly as any town in the whole Northwest, and will continue to grow into a city of at least 25,000 population in the next five years.

A little investigation will convince any one that the man who is thoroughly alive to the opportunities of today never spends any time fearing what tomorrow may bring—he's too busy.

After all this hullabaloo it may turn out that Boss Murphy was only after getting in a position to be able to demand concessions for supporting Mr. Bryan in the Denver convention.

Hurry along that water supply from the mountains. That's what a majority of our people have really been voting for at every city election during the past four years.

Maybe a lot of new laws might make the old-fashioned law of living within your income unnecessary to get ahead of the game, but we doubt it.

Anyway, what are such little things as a couple of battleships between friends?

Like the bright burnished gold of Aurora her hair is, and twiddles in curls like a fay's or a fairy's.

Then her wee shelly ears—ah! how graceful each turning—But hush! or I set these appendages burning.

Oh, could I the wealth of the Indies command, I'd forfeit it all for sweet Ermyntrude's hand.

And were I sole monarch from Crocydon to Crete, I'd lay down my scepter at Ermyntrude's feet.

MARY GARDEN, PRIMA DONNA SOPRANO.
 Miss Mary Garden, the operatic soprano, is looking for a wonderful American voice that she may recommend its possessor to Jean de Roskoe for free training. De Roskoe has offered to train an American girl without charge if one can be found who has sufficient natural ability to meet his requirements, and Miss Garden is in search of such a young woman. She has received many hundreds of letters from girls who seek this opportunity to obtain a musical education.

THE PRINTER'S ANGEL.
 Or, The Perfect Type.

Sweet Ermyntrude Jones has two beautiful eyes, Their color is azure, the same as the skies, Her eyes:

Pure Grecian her nose, and molded with grace; And never was nose more in keeping with face. Her nose:

Her lips are so soft, and as rich as red tulips, And the breath they emit has the scent of mint juleps. Her lips:

Her teeth are as pearls, and I take them to be Just as good as the best that come out of the sea. Her teeth:

Like the bright burnished gold of Aurora her hair is, and twiddles in curls like a fay's or a fairy's.

Then her wee shelly ears—ah! how graceful each turning—But hush! or I set these appendages burning.
