SPRINGFIELD TEAM SHUTS OUT COTTAGE GROVE

There was nothing to the baseball game at Springfield yesterday afternoon but Springfield. The Cottage Grove boys were outclassed in every department of the game, as the score of 10 to 0 would show. It was a good sized crowd that saw the game, the bleachers and grandstand being filled. Cottage Grove was loyal to the team, having sent some thirty or forty rooters along with them. The day was an ideal one for baseball and all good plays were eagerly applauded. Baker, who pitched for the Grove, did good work at times, but was rather erratic. Errors were scarce, there being only three for the Grove and two for the Blues. Sherwood at first and Nason at second did the best playing for the visitors. Murphy, the star pitcher for the Blues, performed very creditably. He has five assists credited to him without an error. He stopped two grounders that brought forth great applause from the grandstand. Smith at second accepted 11 chances without an error, while Chandler and Anderson carried off the batting honors, each man getting two hits. Next Sunday the Blues will play either Albany or Coburg. Following is the score:

THAT $125,000 MUST STAND

(Astoria Daily Astorian.)
For the good name of Oregon in the mind of letters, and to preserve the interest of her own people in her chief educational institution, that appropriation of $125,000 for the University of Oregon must stand; the people themselves must rally to the safety and perpetuation of one of the finest schools on the Pacific slope and they alone must avert the discredit which will surely attach to the state if she shall turn this thing down.

A state cannot afford to cheapen its own institutions.
Nor can it afford to use the law of the referendum for accentuating its stupidity and parsimony. That law was framed and put in operation to save the people from public theft and public disorders of pronounced evil import; not to be used as a means for discounting the intelligence and pride of the people. Ten-fold that amount, for such a purpose, should not be met with a negative vote in the state of Oregon.

The money is honestly needed and will be honestly spent, and transcends in importance and urgency anything now before the Oregon electorate, just as it transcends hundreds of other appropriations that in the past have been made for shameless and undenied grafts. If the good name of Oregon as a champion of higher education, and all its concomitant public values, is to be bargained off for the pitiful sum of $125,000, then we are, indeed, at a crisis.

But it will not be brought to such a conclusion. The people are proud of the University, proud of the state, proud of their ability to maintain both on modern levels, and the appropriation will be granted generously in June, with more to come later. But this conviction must not lead any one to the neglect of voting "aye" when the time comes.

VALLEY CITIES IN LEAD

(Salem Statesman.)
The Pendleton East Oregonian takes exception to the statement that the towns in Eastern Oregon need a general awakening in the matter of boosting and refers to the fact that Pendleton leads Salem and Eugene in the street paving movement. This may be true, but the Willamette valley cities will before the close of 1908 have more paved streets than Pendleton will during the next decade or longer. Then, too, the Western Oregon cities are so far ahead of those east of the Cascades in the way of modern business activity that the comparison would be very odious.

PITTSBURG BANKERS LOOKING TOWARD OREGON

The Fish Lake water system is under option to J. S. and W. S. Kuhn, of Pittsburg and New York, two of the wealthiest bankers of the smoky city. They are heavily interested in water and irrigation corporations, owning over 40 waterworks plants in various parts of the country. They are at present building immense irrigation works at Twin Falls, Idaho, which are among the greatest in the world, and will eventually cover 500,000 acres of land at a cost of $10,000,000.

W. S. Kuhn recently visited Medford as a guest of Jeff D. Heard. He was so impressed with the possibilities that will result from irrigation in the Rogue river valley that he will send his lawyers and engineers here to make an investigation and report. The deal is now at a point where the land owners can decide whether the works are to be built immediately, or not. It is understood that if sufficient acreage is pledged the option will be exercised, the work started and pushed to completion in time to irrigate a considerable portion of the valley this summer, and the entire works be finished this fall.—Medford Tribune.
