WOMEN WHO BELIEVE IN PERUNA

Honest Women Who Are Not Afraid to Tell the Truth About Pe-ru-na.

MRS. F. E. HENDERSON

Since I have used Peruna I have a splendid appetite, enjoy life and perfect health.

Caught Cold Easily.

Mrs. F. E. Henderson, 221 Ninth St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I never had any faith in patent medicines until I tried Peruna, but my experience with this reliable medicine has taught me that there is one which can be trusted, and which will not fail in time of need.

"For the past few years I have found that I caught cold easily, which would settle in a most unpleasant catarrh of the head. I had to be especially careful about being out of evenings, and not to get chilled when dressed thin for parties, but since I have used Peruna my general health is improved, and my system is in such good condition that even though I am exposed to inclement weather it no longer affects me.

"I have a splendid appetite and enjoy life, being in perfect health."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have labored incessantly to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous efforts have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna Tablets. These tablets represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna, and each tablet is equivalent to one average dose.

Mrs. Josephine Holst, 102 E. First St., Portland, Ore., writes that she was troubled seriously with catarrh of the throat, that she used Peruna and was wonderfully helped in two weeks, and in a little over two months her system was rid of all traces of catarrh.

The Value of Health.

Who can set a money value on health? It is absolutely priceless.

No one in good health can fully appreciate what it means to have poor health. The days are long and tedious. The nights horrible and painful. Nothing goes right. Even the mind becomes deranged and injured by continued poor health.

Once liberated from the thraldom of sickness words fail to express the joy and relief.

Peruna has been the means of relieving more women from ill health in the United States than, perhaps, any other medicine.

A multitude of women stand ready to give testimony in favor of Peruna whenever occasion offers.

Dyspepsia Entirely Relieved.

Miss Lillie C. Martin, Shelbyville, Tenn., writes: "Everybody says I look better than I have for two or three years, and I sincerely thank you for your kind advice.

"I believe your treatment has entirely cured me. I can eat anything I want. I believe your remedies will cure any case of indigestion or dyspepsia."

MISS HELEN SAUERBIER

Head and Throat.

Miss Helen Sauerbier, 815 Main St., St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"Last winter I caught a sudden cold which developed into an unpleasant catarrh of the head and throat, depriving me of my appetite and usual good spirits.

"A friend who had been cured by Peruna advised me to try it and I sent for a bottle at once, and I am glad to say that in three days the phlegm had loosened, and I felt better, my appetite returned and within nine days I was in my usual good health."

FLAGS FOR EAST ELEVENTH STREET ALSO

IMPROVEMENT CLUB ENDEAVORING TO INDUCE EACH RESIDENT ALONG STREET TO DISPLAY SAME KIND OF FLAGS AS ON WILLAMETTE STREET ON GALA OCCASIONS

The East Eleventh Street Improvement Club met last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hard. It was suggested that an effort be made to get every resident along that street to order a 4x6 flag of the same kind as the Commercial Club recently ordered, and Mrs. J. S. Stiles was appointed a committee of one to see the people. The club believes that to have the Stars and Stripes float from every house along the car line, when the state grange meets here in two weeks and on other occasions and holidays, would be quite an addition to the beauty of the city.

A committee of three, consisting of F. J. Hard, Senator R. A. Booth and E. O. Tobey, was appointed to see about raising $250 to move the United Brethren church back to the building line. The houses on both sides of the church stand back, but the church itself stands clear up to the sidewalk and spoils the effect of the splendid lawns all along that part of the street.

The delay in getting porch lights was again a matter under discussion, as several members are anxious to have that improvement made.

BOYS' BRIGADE WILL PARADE ON STREET

ELEVEN COMPANIES OF PUBLIC SCHOOL LADS WILL MARCH DOWN WILLAMETTE STREET TOMORROW

The boys' brigades of the three grammar schools of Eugene will march down Willamette street tomorrow afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock and on across the river to the Young pasture, where the remainder of the afternoon will be spent at recreation and in drilling. The boys will form at their respective schools at 1 o'clock and those at the Geary and Patterson schools will march to the Central school, where they will pass in review in columns of squads, Superintendent Alderman acting as reviewing officer. After this ceremony is completed the boys, eleven companies strong, will start on their march down Willamette street. The public will then have the opportunity to note the progress they have made in military instruction since this work was commenced only a few weeks ago.

PENDLETON HAS NO DESIRE TO BOOST

Pendleton, Or., April 28.—The big booster meeting scheduled for last evening fell flat. Tom Richardson, of Portland, was present and made a stirring address, but the house full of people failed to respond. The property owners and the men promoting the different reclamation and settlement projects refused to take the lead, and the renters declared they were tired of doing all the boosting and paying all the bills. Not a cent was raised for a publicity bureau, and no committee was appointed.

Death Was on His Heels.

Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared consumption had me, and that death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung diseases in the world." Sold under guarantee at W. A. Kuykendall's drug store. 50c and $1. Trial bottles free.

Albany vs. Springfield will be the baseball program at Springfield Sunday afternoon.

CHAMBERS HARDWARE CO.

A Stake of Two Lives.

There were two absorbing passions that swayed Jean Tangre, governor of the prison in Dijon, France, at the time of the reign of terror—love of money and pride in his skill at chess. There was also a temporary passion—a hatred for an aristocrat. He guarded his prisoners well, but he still spent his leisure moments at his favorite game, and when he could do so without risk appropriated their belongings.

One morning after he had heard the reports of his jailers and attended to the usual routine of business he sat down to a game of chess with his daughter, who was the best opponent he could get. He beat her several games and threw himself back in his chair, with a deprecatory shrug and grunt. At that moment an attendant entered and said that a young man desired to speak with the governor. A boy of about eighteen was ushered in and thus addressed him:

"Citizen, I have heard of your skill in chess and have come all the way from Paris to try mine with you. I have beaten all opponents there, and if I can beat you I shall be champion of France. But I fear that is impossible, for I have heard that you are invincible."

At this compliment Tangre's breast swelled like that of a pouter pigeon.

"Sit down, citizen," he said. "Whom have I the honor to oppose?"

"Pierre Levesque, at your service," replied the young man, taking the seat left vacant by Julie Tangre.

"Levesque? I have heard of all the noted chess players of Paris, but not of Levesque."

"I am very young, citizen. I have lived in the country. Only a few weeks ago I went to Paris and vanquished the notable players after my arrival there."

They played a game in which Tangre beat his opponent, who looked very much surprised.

"That is a new move," said Levesque, "that I have never seen before. None of the Paris players has it."

"So?" said the governor, delighted. "Well, perhaps I shall show you more new moves before we get through."

The next game was a long one. Levesque knitted his brows and studied and hesitated, but with all his thinking he was at last beaten.

"You play well," said Tangre. "That game required all my skill to beat you."

"In Paris," said the boy, "we always play for a stake. I think a stake tends to sharpen my skill. Shall we have one?"

"As you like," said his opponent. "Make it a louis a game."

They played all the morning, and at noon the governor had won what was for him a goodly sum, having beaten seven games to ten. Then the stranger began to grow irritated.

"What!" he cried. "Have I beaten the best players of the capital to come here to be beaten by a provincial?"

Tangre chuckled. Levesque put his hand in his pocket and withdrew it full of golden louis. He repeated the process till he had placed quite a pile of coins on the table.

"Match them," he said, "for the best six games in eleven."

"Ah, citizen," said Tangre, looking at the heap greedily, "if I only had the wherewithal to match them I would gladly do so."

"You dare not," said Levesque.

"Is there nothing you would like me to stake against them except gold?"

"Yes," said the stranger; "there is." He leaned forward and whispered in the governor's ear:

"My father, Count Ulric Dumont, is your prisoner. I will play my gold against his liberty, the best six in eleven games."

A succession of curious expressions passed over the governor's face—first suspicion, then deliberation, avidity, confidence, followed in quick succession. He felt sure from what he had seen of Levesque's play that he could beat him. The young man's love for his father had led him to make a vain attempt for the prisoner's life. Tangre consented to the terms, signed an order for the count's release and laid it on the pile of gold.

The first two games were won by Tangre, the third by Levesque, the fourth by Tangre, the fifth and sixth by Levesque, the seventh and eighth by Tangre. The governor had now won five games to Levesque's three. From this point all was changed. The next game Levesque checkmated his opponent in twelve minutes, the next in six minutes. This left the games evenly divided, but so brilliant had been Levesque's later play that his adversary turned pale. Levesque on the eleventh game checkmated his adversary in four moves.

He reached forward and seized the paper, leaving the gold on the table. Rising, he bowed ceremoniously to the governor and withdrew, Tangre, sitting in a sort of stupor, looking after him as he went out of the door. As soon as it was closed Tangre scooped the money from the table and hid it in a closet.

Had not the young man left the gold on the table his plan might have been a failure and he and his father both gone to the guillotine. As it was, within half an hour the two were riding for haste for the coast, where they found a vessel about to embark for New Orleans.

A month after the count was liberated Tangre received an order to send him to Paris to be tried. This really meant to be executed. Tangre claimed that he had never received such a prisoner and substantiated his claim by unquestionable records.

Dalziel Brown, vice president and manager of the California Safe Deposit & Trust Company, under sentence of eighteen months for embezzling securities, today gave information to U. J. Lebreton which will add one million dollars to the fund for the depositors. He also gave other information to the receiver and district attorney, Hoff Cook, which will cause the receiver to retain certain valuable properties. Brown also gave up the cipher code book, which is expected to reveal much in the investigation of the bank's affairs.

Whereas, the votes cast at said election having been this 20th day of April, 1908, duly canvassed and determined and the said amendment of said sections 103 and 112 as aforesaid having carried by an affirmative vote of 667 as against 171 negative votes thereon,
