HOW JAPAN WRESTLES WITH CHINESE BOYCOTT

Memory of what the Chinese once did to American commerce with a boycott should prompt occasional inquiry of the Japanese as to how they are getting along with a similar tribulation, suggests the Los Angeles Examiner.

Reports from the Far East indicate that the subjects of the Mikado are suffering severely as a result of compelling Chinese apology over the Taisei Maru incident.

In the American case diplomacy and the nicely-nouched language of apology smoothed matters until fortuitousness could heal the wound.

Public sentiment is not always right, but for all that it is, in this country, is not in all countries, frequently stronger than written laws.

Speaking of signs, that big jump in the price of Standard Oil stock is a sign—to some—that the $28,000,000 fine will never be paid.

Of course Congressman Hobson's candidacy for the presidency in 1912 has no connection with his resolution to congress in 1908.

AN OLD SONG. When all the winds are gather in the glad spring days, And the brook and fallow brown-idea,

When all the winds are gather in the glad spring days, And the brook and fallow brown-idea, When every breath of wind and every laugh a rhyme, of Mr. Martin are very interesting, but that has nothing to do with the condition of affairs among the nations of the world, which commences each and every one to have a navy commensurate with its resources.

Whatever the age of the trees in this country, the Prince of Wales can assert that he has seen one in Japan 1200 years old, according to the London Globe.

There is no lack of money for investment, but investors are insisting upon knowing that it is an investment, not a gift, before turning it loose.

Surely the Mississippi river catfish that annually swallows a man must have got stuck in the mud somewhere, or it would have been in the game before this.

The congressional hubbub over the report that senators and representatives had been "shadowed" was but a zephyr to what would follow if the spies told all they saw and heard while doing the "shadow" stunt.

William Waldorf Astor, the expatriated American, has made another bid for a British title.

Here's hoping that hubby will be so good to the Philadelphia girl who refused an offer of $200,000 from her dad not to marry him that she may never regret not having chosen the coin.

What good does it do the pedestrian, with no room to dodge, who sees a racing automobile headed straight for him, to know that court decisions give him the right of way?

UNIVERSITY OPPOSITION NOT WELL GROUNDED

(Harney County News.) The attack made upon the University of Oregon by Messrs. Palmer and Walker of Lin county in trying to defeat the appropriation for the support of Oregon's highest institution of learning is not well grounded and unworthy of endorsement.

NAUGHTY ROSEBURG 'GIRLS' FINED IN POLICE COURT

Last Friday was ladies' day in the local police court, and as a result three of the "pretties" incarcerated in the gilded palace of iniquity, better known as the "high board" fence court, were entertained to the extent of $10 each by City Recorder Orcutt.
