

MORE DAMAGING EVIDENCE AGAINST SUSPECTED MURDERER

Portland, May 7.—What is believed to be the "missing link" in the chain of circumstantial evidence in the case of E. H. Martin, under arrest in connection with the murder of Nathan Wolff, the pawnbroker, last Friday evening, has been supplied by a watchmaker in the employ of Wolff, who has positively identified Martin as the man whom he saw talking with Wolff at 5:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, and again later in the evening.

It was decided today to disinter the body of Wolff for the purpose of examining the finger nails for a possible trace of the skin of the murderer under the finger nails of the dead man. Martin's neck and hands are severely scratched and the police believe the scratches are the result of his encounter with Wolff. Martin claims he was scratched by a cat. Other Evidence Found.

Finding of a blood-smeared overcoat and a rusty rifle in a vacant lot near the corner of Montgomery and Water streets last night is believed to supply evidence that will insure the conviction of Edward H. Martin of the brutal murder of Nathan Wolff.

The coat was identified at a late hour as belonging to Martin. The rifle is said to be the one stolen from Wolff's pawnshop at the time of the murder and robbery, early Friday night. Identification was made by Frank D. Hennessey, clerk of the municipal court, who knew Martin. He was positive of having seen the accused man wearing the garment within the past few days.

The coat and rifle were found at

MESSENGER SLAIN FIGHTING ROBBERS IN EXPRESS CAR

Denver, May 7.—Train robbers boarded the Denver & Rio Grande train at Castle Rock early this morning and murdered the express messenger, Charles H. Wright, aged 60, employed by the Globe Express Company. Then they opened the safe and took less than $100 which it contained. The big safe was tampered with, but they could not open it.

The robbers entered the car through a side window, which they broke open. From the window they shot and killed the messenger, who died gun in hand.

Ewing was answering a call for the patrol wagon and in passing the shop discovered the flames. He immediately turned in an alarm and then proceeded to the point of call.

MRS. GUNNESS LURED VICTIMS BY MATRIMONIAL AD

RUN PERSONAL ADVERTISEMENT IN CHICAGO PAPER FOR WELL-TO-DO MEN ANXIOUS TO MARRY WEALTHY WIDOW — POLICE BELIEVE HER HOME WAS "CLEARING HOUSE" FOR BAND OF MURDERERS

Chicago, May 7.—Following is Mrs. Gunness' "matrimonial advertisement" with which her victims were lured to their death:

"Personal—Comely widow who owns a large farm in one of the finest districts of LaPorte county, Ind., desires to make acquaintance of a gentleman equally well provided, with a view to joining fortunes. No replies by letter will be considered unless sender is willing to follow with a personal visit."

Mrs. Gunness' Methods

LaPorte, May 7.—Additional light on the methods of Mrs. Gunness by which she caused the death of persons who are supposed to have fallen victims to her lust for gold was shed today by Asa K. Helgolin, brother of Andrew Helgolin, of Mansfield, S. D., whose dismembered corpse was among the nine found on the farm. Helgolin told the coroner that not only had his brother been in communication with the woman, but that she had written to him after Andrew disappeared in an attempt to induce him to visit this city. She advised him to sell his brother's stock and come to LaPorte, "and we will hunt for your brother together." The letters were written in Norwegian and only partially translated.

Several circumstances indicating that Roy Lamphere, accused of first degree murder in connection with the dismemberment of Mrs. Gunness and her children, had some knowledge of her crimes, have developed. Beadie Conkling, a young woman residing at Michigan City, a friend of Lamphere's, has been arrested and is being held awaiting the action of the grand jury. It is alleged that she advised to Beattie Smolker that Lamphere told her Mrs. Gunness "had to be kept in a cage as he knew enough to send him to the gallows."

Bodies Disturbed

Last night the shed on the Gunness farm containing the bodies of her victims was broken into and the bodies solemnly disturbed.

The police believe Mrs. Gunness was a member of a gang of wholesale murderers and that her accomplices finally lured her to death after some kind of a quarrel. Roy Lamphere, formerly an employe on the Gunness farm, has been arrested on suspicion of having set fire to the house, but denies his guilt or that he knew of the numerous murders which had occurred there. He admits, however, that he had long been suspicious of the woman who employed him.

Body in Sack

The arrest of Lamphere was followed by the discovery of a sack containing the head, arms, legs and skeleton body of a man, buried near the fence surrounding the ruins of the Gunness home. The body had evidently been cut to pieces with a saw by the fiendish murderer. This gruesome find later proved to be the corpse of Andrew Heltegreen of Aberdeen, South Dakota, who came to LaPorte last January to marry Mrs. Gunness.

Heltegreen met Mrs. Gunness through an affinity bureau. He arrived here in January and was last seen alive February 3. His brother, John, who is here, said Andrew announced his intention of marrying the woman, but that he does not know whether he did so.

Last winter Heltegreen requested a bank in LaPorte to cash a $3000 draft on the endorsement of Mrs. Gunness. The bank declined to accept the endorsement and took the draft for collection. The money arrived from Aberdeen and was paid to the woman. She immediately took up a note for $500 and paid a number of other debts, depositing the $700 that remained.

It is believed by the police that Lamphere was a suitor of the hand of Mrs. Gunness and that he was insanely jealous of Heltegreen. About the time that the money arrived from Aberdeen the chorman notified the police that Heltegreen was wanted for murder in South Dakota. Investigation proved this story to be untrue.

Lamphere Threatened Woman

Lamphere's arrest after the burning of the Gunness home was the result of charges made against him by Mrs. Gunness a short time before her death. She complained of the man's attentions to her and said that although she had discharged him he had continued to hang around the farm. She asserted that Lamphere had threatened to burn her home and said she was afraid of him. It has also been learned that a few days before her death Mrs. Gunness made her will, which included provisions for her burial.

The delivery of five large trunks at the Gunness farm within the past six months leads the detectives to believe that the place was a clearing

GREAT PARADE IN HONOR OF SAILORS

San Francisco, May 7.—A great naval, military and civic parade which constituted the chief feature of today's celebration of the Atlantic fleet, started from the foot of Market street on its long march through the leading business sections of the city shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. About fifteen thousand men were in line, 8500 being marines and sailors from the vessels in the bay. A large force of regular troops from the Presidio, the Marine corps, naval militia, National Guard of California, veterans of the rebellion and Spanish wars, California pioneers and various semi-military organizations, officials and prominent citizens in carriages, made up the rest of the procession.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf,

Governor Gillette and staff, of California, Governor Sheldon, of Nebraska, Mayor Taylor, of San Francisco, and Rear Admiral Evans rode in carriages. The Salt Lake battalion of high school cadets acted as special escort to Admiral Evans.

Hundreds of thousands of people lined the route of the parade, and when the people caught sight of Admiral Evans the cheering and waving of flags and handkerchiefs was continuous. The sailors and marines of the warships were also enthusiastically greeted all along the line.

The spectacle of hundreds of flags in the hands of spectators presented an undulating sea of color, which was a wonderful and never-to-be-forgotten scene.

The day was clear and beautiful.

FOUR MEN KILLED AND TWELVE INJURED

New York, May 7.—Four were killed and twelve injured in a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin, which practically destroyed a five story tenement at 191 Orchard street. The fire was discovered by a policeman when the flames were shooting from the windows of the lower part of the house, and with the assistance of a number of policemen nearly every one in the house was aroused, and the fire escapes became choked with frightened tenants. The police rescued a number of frightened children before the firemen put up ladders, when more than one hundred were taken down. A number were caught inside and burned to death.

FIND BODY OF MURDERED WOMAN

Walla Walla, May 7.—The dead body of Mrs. Anna Aldrich was found hidden beneath the roots of a tree on the bank of Coppe river, near Dixie, Wash., today. George, Jack and Bud Barnes are under arrest, suspected of murdering her. The woman has been missing since Friday evening.

Walla Walla, May 7.—Officials have gone to the scene of the finding of the body of Mrs. Aldrich. The mode of her death is not known here. Later it was stated that Mrs. Aldrich was murdered by being hit over the head and her skull fractured. There were no evidences of a struggle where the body was found.

LULU GOODE GIVES BOND TO BE GOOD

Salem, May 6.—When the retrial of Lulu Goode was called this morning before Justice of the Peace Daniel Webster, Deputy District Attorney Charles McNary announced that a compromise had been arranged between the state and the defendants by which the defendants, Miss Lulu Goode and Jasper Goode, charged with assault and perjury, were to be released under a bond to keep the peace.

Lulu Goode was tried yesterday for assault on Mrs. Leona Itoper, wife of Rev. Sam P. Roper, pastor of the Free Methodist church in Salem, but the jury couldn't agree in a verdict. The other trials were to have been taken up in order, but the arrangement announced by the district attorney this morning puts an end to the Goode trials that grew out of the horse-whipping of the parson.

SMITH'S WEEK SUIT COSTS HIM $15,25

Salem, Or., May 6.—It costs J. S. Smith, candidate for the legislature on the Democratic ticket from this county, and self-confessed bribe-taker in connection with the hold-up session of the legislature of 1897, $15,25 to find out that he had no case against Senator C. W. Fulton in the suit brought for $5000 for alleged libelous slander arising out of the senator's denial of the truth of the affidavit made before United States Inspector Thomas Neuhausen. Mr. Smith paid the costs this morning and prosecution has ceased.

The sole point upon which Fulton's demurrer to the complaint was sustained was that Inspector Neuhausen had no authority to put anybody under oath upon matters outside of the jurisdiction of the department under which he was working, the department of the interior, hence that he went out of his legal way to dig into the political affairs of the Oregon legislature or any of its members in connection with the senatorial campaign.

DAM DYNAMITED IN RAVENNA PARK

Seattle, May 7.—The large dam at Ravenna Park, near the State University, was dynamited last night, destroying the lake in the park. The county bridge was washed away and railroad bridge on the Sumas branch of the Northern-Pacific destroyed so that trains cannot pass. The proposed sale of the park to the city aroused bitter feeling.
