AN INDEPENDENT PAPER, Member of Associated Press.

MONDAY, MAY 18, 1908

HAWLEY FRIEND OF VARSITY

Congressman Willis Hawley, of the First congressional district, has sent the following telegram to Lewis R. Alderman, president of the University of Oregon alumni: Washington, D. C., May 13, 1908—L. R. Alderman, Eugene, Oregon.—I regard maintenance of the State University at high standard essential to the welfare of the state, and will vote for the appropriation if in Oregon at election. (Signed) W. C. HAWLEY.

WANT TO CHANGE TIME OF ELECTION

It seems to The Guard that there should be a unanimous vote in favor of the initiative amendment for changing the state election to November. Now we have altogether too many elections in Oregon, three of them on presidential years when one might just as well be dispensed with, leaving much trouble and expense. The following editorial from the East Oregonian on this subject is to the point:

"The initiative amendment which proposes to change the date of the state election in Oregon to correspond with the presidential election is a most worthy measure and should be adopted at the coming June election."

"It is folly for Oregon to conduct two elections in one year. The increased expense on the taxpayers, the interference with business conditions, twice in the same season, and other objectionable features should induce the voters to change the date of the state election."

"The state elections of nearly all of the states are held on the date of the presidential election to save election expenses. Oregon has long borne this additional expense, but nobody can give a good reason for tolerating the extra expense. Let us change the date of the election. The question will be on the official ballot, and when you come to that subject on your ballot, vote 'Yes.'"

"It will save thousands of dollars to the taxpayers and everybody surely wants to reduce taxes in every legitimate way."

THE MAN WITH THE PLOW A USEFUL CITIZEN

A foreigner who arrived in this country the other day with nine children and a plow can never be president, but he can be a desirable citizen. His outfit indicates that he intends to be. In this brief mention of the sturdy virtues of an unknown individual the New York Herald pays a tribute to a class of men, foreign and native born, of which there can never be an over-production in this country.

Education is an excellent thing in its way, just as long as that way does not run counter to the inexorable rule of life that labor is a necessity. But when the youth of this land is taught that all labor is degrading that cannot be done without soiling the hands and hardening the muscles, we must look elsewhere than at home for the men best qualified to perpetuate that spirit of independence and self-reliance so essential to the maintenance of the principle upon which this country lies in the men who are devoting their resources, and not the least important of this class is the man with the plow.

The fact that the paper trust pays its president $50,000 a year, the same as Roosevelt gets from the United States is of course, nobody's business but its own, even if the people sooner or later foot the bills, as, of course, they do, in one way or another, says the Salinas (Cal.) Journal. Neither is it anybody's business that the trust is paying interest and dividends on a great amount of water in its stocks and bonds. All the trust wants of the people is to let the tariff alone. The duty is 15 per cent on sawpaper and 33 per cent on wood pulp. These duties enable the trust to control the market in this country by shutting out foreign competition, and it does not care how much the trust is investigated so long as the duties are left untouched. But the way to hit such bloated monopolies is to land heavily on the tariff that enables them to rob the consumers.

The few hide-bound political newspaper organs sneer at newspapers like The Guard which have declared absolute independence of party organization. They assert that such papers are "afraid to take a position" when as a matter of fact it is the independent press that has caused the present awakening of the public conscience by their fearlessness in exposing wrong and corruption wherever found. In this day of independent thought and action, of liberal education and high intelligence, the most pitiable relics of the old order are the partisan newspapers, the creatures of the bosses and the catspaws of the ring. It requires double the moral stamina to resist the inducements and opportunities offered by the bosses than it does to run along in the old groove, fed by pap from the office seeker and office-holder.

The Statement No. 1 advocates have at last roused themselves to action in Lane county, and are pushing the principle involved in this feature of the primary law to the fore as the issue in this campaign. Their candidates for the legislature are Allen H. Eaton, L. R. Edmunson and George O. Knowles, three energetic and popular young men, who should be able to poll the full strength of the Statement No. 1 forces. Two of them, Messrs. Edmunson and Knowles, have announced a speaking canvass of the county, challenging their opponents to meet them in a discussion of the paramount issue. Should the debt be accepted an otherwise dull and listless campaign may be enlivened with a display of real anti-election pyrotechnics that will cause the most apathetic voter to sit up and take notice.

We cannot but commend the wisdom and discretion of the morning paper in requiring one member of the family to sign his name to what he writes. While the management of that publication has shown that almost anything goes, the line has to be drawn somewhere, and this lately returned prodigal is most assuredly the limit in more ways than one.

That class of business and professional men in Eugene, limited in number, who have time to read a newspaper at the breakfast table, are greatly pleased by the change in train schedule that brings the Portland Oregonian to them before 6 o'clock every day. A real morning paper fills "a long-felt want" in this community.

The tornado season is now on in the state east of the Rocky Mountains, and about every day you read in the dispatches of towns that have been blown away by the terrific winds, and the loss of life is something appalling. No wonder there is a continual stream of immigrants into the Northwest.

After all, the principal objection Governor Chamberlain's supporters urge against Judge Calkins is that he is a Republican.

MR. CAKE'S POSITION

East Oregonian (Ind. Dem.) The Oregon Sunday Journal declares that H. M. Cake has forsaken the Statement No. 1 principle which he advocated before the primaries. It says that he has kicked the Statement No. 1 people out of doors.

Here is what the Republicans observed in the primary law, nominated candidates in the primaries and came out fearlessly and enthusiastically to the observance of the law and made their contest under it.

The Democrats did not do this. In almost every county of the state they evaded the primary law, refusing to put candidates before the primaries and declining to recognize the law.

GENERAL MATTHEW C. BUTLER.

General Butler, who figures prominently in the testimony at the submarine investigation in Washington, is a well known figure in the south. His home is in South Carolina, and he is a man of great force and widespread popularity. He denounced as false all statements to the effect that he was connected with the alleged submarine lobby and was strongly supported by a large contingent of the southern congressmen.

made a fair, open fight in the primaries for Statement No. 1 candidates. In most of the counties these were nominated and are being supported by Mr. Cake as forcibly today as before the primaries and the Journal knows it.

Mr. Cake has not deserted any principle which he advocated before the primaries. He is for Statement No. 1, but he will not knife his own party to please the Journal or any other Democrat. He will not be dictated to by his opponents.

The Republicans observed the primary law and nominated their candidates at that time. The Democrats would have done the same, if they respect the advance legislation which has been passed by the Republican voters of Oregon. Mr. Cake is a Republican and is entitled to every Republican vote.

GIVES GOOD REASON

We have devoted a lot of space in this issue to the University question and hope it will reach its mark—your favorable vote at the June election. The Herald stands for good schools of all grades and whatever we can do to promote the good credit of the state, by standing for better educational facilities, we shall endeavor to do freely.

It is stated by the opponents of the State University bill that some Eastern states do not maintain universities. Investigation shows that the universities bearing the widest reputation in these states were founded in early times when state support was unknown. They supplied the demands of their localities in those earlier times and when the period of state support had arrived they were the danger period. Private benefactions have largely made them independent, and though the states do not offer a permanent endowment they have at various times rendered assistance. Let us not forget that these schools enjoy a prestige that brings them thousands of dollars in benefactions each year, and as time passes their permanent endowments will continue to grow. Our institution is too young to begin to enjoy a resource from the gratuities extended by alumni or other benefactors.
