PERICULOUS BLOW TO PUBLIC WELFARE

In my opinion an adverse vote on the University of Oregon appropriation bill would be a serious blow to the state, and I think it is the duty of every good citizen to vote 'YES' on this bill.

CHAS. A. JOHNS, Mayor Baker City, Or.

TRICITY ONLY HOPE WHEN FUEL IS GONE

Charles Steinmetz, consulting engineer of the General Electric Co., at Schenectady, New York, professor of electrical engineering at Union College, painted a doleful picture of the other day of what life in this world when the coal has given out and when the fertility of the soil has been used up and when the population of the earth will have to look for their food.

Steinmetz spoke in the hall of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers to the students and friends of the New York Electrical Trade Union.

His subject was "The Future of the World." He said that the world will be a very great while before we must seek other means of fuel for keeping us warm.

He said that the world will be a very great while before we must seek other means of fuel for keeping us warm. He said that the world will be a very great while before we must seek other means of fuel for keeping us warm.

ARE DYING YOUNGER

Some of all that has been said in the fall in the death rate is strange to realize that we are dying as long as our grandfathers and greatmothers did, says a culture.

More babies live to an advanced age than formerly. In later life die younger. The average woman has few years of life to expect.

On the face of it, so says a statement that in order to be healthy it should be backed up with authoritative and indisputable data are furnished by the insurance companies.

Edmundson, Democratic candidate for the legislature, is making an aggressive campaign and is receiving support from the ranks of the people.

and fearlessly wins the admiration of the American voter. Mr. Edmundson is pursuing a course that will make him a man of standing in the eyes of the people.

Good health and strong limbs and bodies usually tend to active brains and clear morals. There may be exceptions, but this is the general rule.

Perhaps you have noticed that nearly every important news dispatch in yesterday evening's Guard is simply repeated in this morning's papers.

The Atlantic City clergyman who opened a man's church with a "smoker," himself encouraging his congregation with a cigar in the pulpit, doubtless felt that men should get religion on any terms.

Now if Harry Orchard will only come out in a magazine article and tell us what he thinks about Mrs. Guinness' methods of staying, the world will be greatly enlightened.

An exchange has discovered a woman who, after thirty years of wedlock, has applied for a divorce on the ground that her husband is lazy.

A Southern paragrapher is looking around for the man who will make his boast that he once courted Mrs. Belle Guinness.

Instead of being down and out, the head of the New York Ice trust is said to be rapidly getting upon his feet again.

In the good old days the two Texans who recently exchanged thirteen shots in a hotel lobby without a killing, would have been promptly lynched for bump shooting.

HARRY BROWN POPULAR CHOICE FOR SHERIFF

Harry Brown, Democratic candidate for sheriff, is making a winning campaign and his election is now generally conceded.

THE STORY OF OWEN KILDARE

Young man: If you think you have not had a fair chance in life, read this brief sketch of the rise of Owen Kildare of New York city.

Think of it! This young man at thirty years of age was unable to read or write. Today he supports himself by writing.

Kildare was a member of a tough Bowery gang. He was rough, uncouth, ignorant. He had been orphaned at the age of seven years and cast into the streets.

One could well wish in reading the story of Owen Kildare that he might have married his Mamie Rose, the girl with whom he fell in love and who wrought so great a change in him.

To make a long story short, Owen Kildare began to write stories, submitting them to the editor of the newspaper where he worked for criticism.
