University of Oregon News

The next Thursday night Ladies' tennis and the girls will render a performance in the gymnasium at 8:30 in the evening. Mr. Gomer is one of the best of musicians of the west and has received considerable recognition in Europe. His work in the University is said to be truly remarkable. He pupils' inhibit much of his own skill.

Tennis Trip.
The men for the tennis tournament have not yet been finally selected, owing to the interference of rain. But arrangements have been completed for sending the team to Seattle to compete with four other teams on May 29 and 30. The contest will be both in doubles and singles, one man of the double team playing in the singles.

The preliminary will be played off Friday afternoon, the final Saturday morning. Incidentally, the University basketball contest will also be on the evening of May 30, and the basketball track meet in the afternoon of the same date.

Girls' Edition of Weekly.
On June 1 election day, the girls of the University will publish the first issue of the "Girls' Edition" of the Weekly. The opportunity is being given to the girls of the University to publish a paper of their own, and to some extent may be attributed to the efforts of Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway, who at the recent meeting of the state groups in Willard hall, spoke valiant words for the rights of women. Incidentally the editors of the paper tell their duties to be as follows: one also to take their positions, they would not have had time to vote.

There is, however, a general movement to give the women more place in the student body affairs. The girls of the University make up about one-third of the total registration, but do not have nearly the same proportion of officers.

The officers elected for the publication of the Weekly were as follows:
Emily Mahr, '08, was elected editor-in-chief, with the following associates: Jessie Chase, '08; Core Cameron, '08; Frances Oberste Her, '10; Paul Hawthorne, '10; and Frances Young, '10. Agnes Bonch, '08, was elected manager, with Isoline Sawyer, '10, as assistant. They are planning to put out a double issue with numerous cuts and special articles.

Lawn Rules.
The lawn on the north side of the walk between the library and the dormitory was rented this spring by some of the students playing a joke on Captain Briggs, the superintendent, who after he had seeded the plot to clover. Potato sprouts, turnip seed, pines, and cabbages and other garden plants were planted with the clover and grass, and have thoroughly spoiled the looks of the plot.

No Favoritism.
Owing to the accusations of favoritism among members of the student body, the method of choosing student managers and managers of student affairs has been changed, so that now a committee will make recommendations to the student council. Heretofore, each manager almost invariably became manager the following season.

The committee at present consists of President Campbell, W. L. Hayward and Gordon C. Moore. In the rules of the council this committee must be composed of the president, one faculty member and one student member of the athletic council.

Stafford to Europe.
Prof. Stafford and wife leave next Saturday night for a year's sojourn in Europe. Most of their time will be spent in Berlin, where the professor will take up advanced work in his line—chemistry. They will not return until next September.

Professor Schaefer has returned from a similar leave, but has not yet arrived in Eugene.

Order of "O's."
The Order of "O's" was founded last Tuesday evening, copied after the ritualistic societies of other universities. The professed object of the order is to raise the standard of athletics at the University. Any man who has made his letter in eligible. The following officers were elected:
Carl McClain, '06, president; Paul Bond, '09, vice president; and Oliver Hanson, '10, secretary-treasurer. A committee of five was appointed to draw up a constitution for the organization.

University Day.
The custom of working one half day on the campus improvements put about two hundred students to work yesterday at 7:30 sharp in the celebration of University Day. Nearly one hundred men started in on the bleachers on the north side of Knappton field, which will seat about 400 people. About one hundred feet of cement sidewalk was also made.

The money from the Commercial club for the big "O" was not forthcoming, but one hundred students loyally contributed 25 cents each to bear the expense. The gravel was laid by the University team.

Distress was caused at the dormitory by the young ladies, those of each class contributing the various necessaries. The ice cream was provided by the ladies, and as there were eighteen of the dignified young ladies, and fifteen gallons of cream was consumed at one dollar a gallon, the expense was rather heavy, though the dairy was sweet.

Local Items.
Bess Coleman has recovered from her injury in the woods and was able to play in the O. A. C. games today.

The Territorial track meet was held at the University of Oregon on May 22 and 23.
