WOULD PUT STATE BACK TEN YEARS

In my opinion an adverse vote upon the appropriation made at the last session of the Oregon state legislature for the University of Oregon would not only bring the blush of shame to the brow of every believer in higher education, but would put back at least ten years the work done in the past three years by our commercial bodies in advertising the resources of this commonwealth.

E. G. BAILEY, Sec. and Treas. Oregon Copper Mining & Power Co., North Powder, Oregon.

READING NEWSPAPERS ON STATE UNIVERSITY

The Astoria Daily Budget sizes up the situation in the following editorial:

Education is becoming more and more essential every day. Our young men and women who are to succeed in life must be well educated. To those who are educated will the light—Education is the "way of the light"—is the sesame of the "gates." When you vote at the coming election in June, be sure to vote for the appropriation for the State University. All other states have great universities, even Nevada, state far less populous than Oregon, has a splendid university; every state must have, if Oregon is to keep in the industrial race she must support a University. We should have one of which we all will be proud. Our young men and women would not go to other states to be educated—we cannot afford to have them do so. If we do not have a University in Oregon they will go elsewhere.

The Blue Mountain Eagle, published at Canyon City, says:

The coming election will be from the standpoint the most critical in the history of Oregon. All the other states in the Union will look to the election returns on the second of June to see how the initiative and referendum works in practice. If the results show that this new method of legislation leads to conservative law making, that the safety of essential state interests and institutions are thereby safeguarded, we may look to the rapid adoption of direct legislation throughout the country. But if the returns show that the majority of the people are too indignant to express themselves at the polls and that irresponsible agitators can at any time strike down and cripple a state institution as certain irresponsible agitators are trying to strike down the State University, then other communities will undoubtedly pass and the progress of direct legislation will be jeopardized.

PRESIDENT ELIOT ON EDUCATION OF WOMEN

The main object of the higher education of woman has not been kept sufficiently in view, says President Eliot of Harvard. Of course, there are other objects—plenty of them—training for the professions; training in all the varieties of work that women are now engaged in; training for the enjoyment and usefulness that comes with knowledge of the world and with the appreciation of the artistic spirit, and of what the artistic spirit can do for the activities of a nation. It is woman who falls in greater part the training of the population in the sense of beauty and in appreciation of the worth of beauty. Who keeps the flowers blooming in the cans and broken pieces of crockery? Who engages the florist to keep the rich house filled with flowers throughout the seasons? For whom are all the beautiful articles in the rich homes procured and set forth? Always by and for the woman. Who teaches the little children to enjoy the beauties in art and nature? Always, or almost always, the woman.

I look forward, therefore, to the future of higher education for women as a great influence in the perfecting of family life, of civic life, of household joy and good.

Here is a cheerful item from a recent issue of the St. Louis Republic that will make any Oregonian feel that he is indeed fortunate in residing in a country free from the disastrous storms that so frequently devastate other portions of the United States: "The cyclone season does not open at the same time for all parts of the Mississippi valley. What is popularly called the opening of the season this year shows in returns of life during the last few weeks at points in the Northwest, in Texas, in the Gulf States and in what were once the heavily timbered states of the Middle Mississippi. Similar reports are certain to come from Kansas and other prairie states west of the Mississippi and south of the Missouri. If the season opens still later in the states between the Ohio and the Great Lakes, they may now expect the cyclones locally as an incident of their connection with the basin of the Mississippi."

What of the outlook? asks Oregon Tradesman. A prominent railroad man says that he believes April marks the lowest dip of the depression. That month registered the greatest number of idle cars and engines since last October, and, for that matter, for a good while before. May shows increased rolling stock activity. Crops will be coming in ere long, and will guarantee a steady renewal of business of this nature, and will result in greater prosperity in other lines as well. He looks for no boom in railway business during the present year, but in 1909 he expects the growth in railway business to be enormous. He says the railroads are preparing for it. This year has been set aside, so to speak, for preparations for extending and strengthening equipment for traffic in the future.

Many fool bills are introduced in congress in the course of a year, says an unknown writer, but fortunately only a few of them ever get out of the committees to which they are referred. One of the most insane bills thus far introduced in the present house is that of Congressman Cavdrey, which makes a publisher responsible for the representations made by advertisers in his periodical. The name of the advertiser is published with every advertisement, and he can be held responsible by the public. To make it imperative for every newspaper to go into the stores of its advertisers and see that every article is what the advertisement says it is would mean the ruination of the publicity business of the country.

Representative Lilley, of the Nutmeg state, made a decidedly poor job of his muck-raking stunt and is being mercilessly flayed by the men whose enmity he has aroused by reason of his attitude in the submarine boat matters. It has turned out that Lilley made the charges without having gone into the matter enough to ascertain whether or not they were true and the result is that he has incurred the displeasure and contempt of most of his colleagues. This will probably be a lasting lesson to the man and what is more, he will no longer be of any use to his constituents as a member of the house.

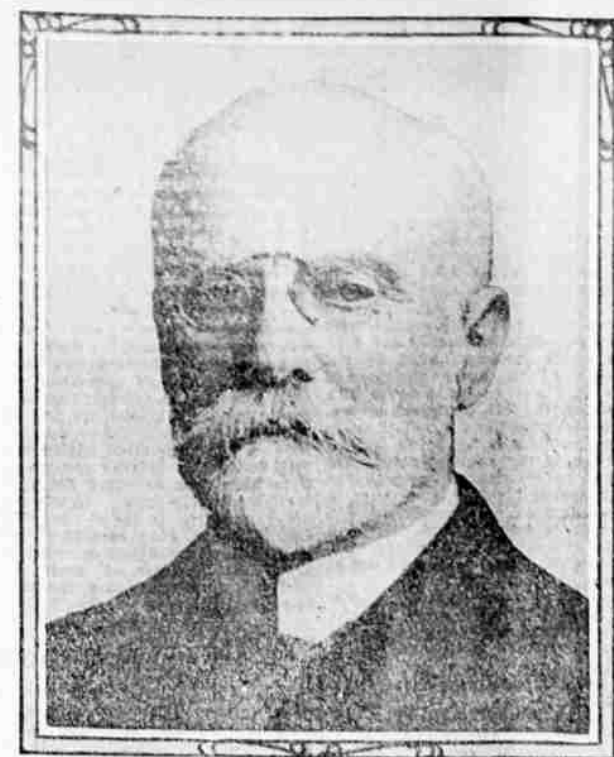

A giddy June bride-to-be asks the editor of her favorite fashion magazine "What shall I do with the groom?" Instead of the long strings of advice she got, she should have told her just to keep him gowned until she knoused the deuce and she'd find he would come in handy.

It is futile to discuss the relative value of the Morning Oregonian and the local morning paper as news mediums. What does it matter which has the later news when nearly all our people read it all anyway the evening before in The Guard?

A tuberculosis hospital to cost about $12,000 will probably be built by Nashville, Tenn., the city having discovered a fund which cannot be used for the purpose for which it was intended, but can be transferred to emergency work.

It doesn't seem to have occurred to any of the New York politicians to shake Cheever Dwyer by the collar and hang him for president.

They are confidence men who

BRONSON HOWARD, FAMOUS PLAYWRIGHT.

Bronson Howard, the dean of American playwrights, who is in declining health, was born in Detroit in 1842. His first successful drama was "Saratoroga," which was produced in New York in 1870. His other dramas have all been given a cordial reception by the theater going public, among the most popular of them being "Wives," "Young Mrs. Winthrop," "One of Our Girls," "Met by Chance," "The Henrietta," "Shenandoah" and "Aristocracy."

of the navy to be the peers of college graduates, Secretary Metcalf need not expect any honorary degrees this year.

Former Senator David B. Hill will start on a European tour next month. However, that's no good reason why he should be charged with running away from a presidential nomination.

Three hundred-odd congressmen will soon be proudly telling the religious among their constituents how "I got that motto restored to our coins."

Even if taffy does get sticky under some conditions its usefulness in keeping things moving smoothly and sweetly is unquestioned by the wise.
