LOOKS LIKE A JOKE TO EASTERN PEOPLE

COUNTY TREASURER HAS A TIME SHOWING 'PEOPLE WHERE TO PAY TAXES.

Since Eastern people have commenced to flock to this country in large numbers the county treasurer has had his hands full of trouble. Of course most of these people who are coming by homes or invest in lands, and naturally have to pay taxes. Nearly all of them come from states where the taxes are paid to the county treasurer direct and this is the office they flock to as a matter of habit. It's a curious bland smile that spreads over the honest faces of these people from the East when they are politely informed that they will have to go to the sheriff to settle that difference. They don't see the joke. He is the fellow above all county officers that they seek to avoid and when they fully understand after considerable insistence on the part of the treasurer (that the sheriff first handles the tax money they reluctantly leave for the new innovation.

As there are more Eastern people coming to this country now than ever before, this article may serve as a gentle reminder of what to expect when tax time comes around.

THE SMOKER'S SAD LOT

The man who smokes 10-cent cigars or two-fers, stogies or a pipe. Who puffs inside the smoking cars— The smokestack's human prototype (Perhaps that simile's not right, But "pipe" has none too many rhymes)— Is apt to hear this day or night Till through his memory it chimes, "You smoke too much."

If he complains about his health, And says that his digestion's bad, They drop the hint on him by stealth And for the opening are glad. If he observes that times are hard And that he cannot save enough, With this remark they'll interlard His constant rhythmic draw and puff, "You smoke too much."

It gets so when he misses trains, Or buys a suit that doesn't fit, Or when his taste for drama wanes, Or when he shows a caustic wit, Or when his hair is falling out, Or when his teeth begin to ache, Some critic then is sure to shout— And this remark is what he'll make, "You smoke too much."

No matter what the poor man does, No matter what he doesn't do, No matter what the poor man was, Nor what hard luck he struggles through; If he should have ingrowing nails, Or if his voice in singing fails, Somebody else is sure to speak, "You smoke too much."
