THE GLORY OF THE DEAD

The blue that speaks of youth and hope.
And the gray that comes of years.
Clasp hands and meet each other's eyes
In a sad-sweet mist of tears.
Their souls grow bathed in Mem'ry's light.
As when on autumn's days far-off view is dimly scanned
Thro' evening's dusky haze.
They see again the field, the camp;
And hear the cannon's roar;
The voice of comrades and of friends
Now silent evermore.
They help to swell the mighty song
That sings of triumph won,
They hear their country's loud acclaim
For duty nobly done.
So, marching onward, here they meet,
Where white and silent tombs
Are strewn with gentle, kindly hands,
With Nature's fairest blooms.
Why should not, then, youth's heart beat high,
Age proudly rear its head,
In feeling they've a right to share
The glory of such dead?
—Peter H. Doyle.

MEMORIAL DAY IS MORE GENERALLY OBSERVED

This is Memorial Day, dedicated to honored and patriotic dead of the nation. From a small beginning it has grown into a general holiday and flowers are strewn not only on the graves of the nation's heroes, but upon all lowly mounds beneath which rest the departed loved ones of every family in the land.

UNIVERSITY APPEALS TO HIGHER INTELLIGENCE

The campaign for a greater university in Oregon has closed and every true friend of the state hopes that the efforts put forth have not been in vain. The friends of education have given much labor and energy to their means to present actual facts to the voters, seeking to appeal only to the better elements and higher intelligence of the people.

antagonistic elements are the stronger, the state is not worthy of a great university, and will refuse to maintain it. There is every reason to believe, however, that the verdict will be favorable, and that a large majority will uphold the appropriation.

The Republican legislative candidates object to the report of the joint debate at the Junction picnic, as printed in The Guard. We were assured by the correspondent that it was in substance correct, although the most prominence was given to the remarks of the Statement No. 1 candidate, and we are sorry if it was not so. We have studiously tried to eliminate personalities and misrepresentations from the few political articles appearing in this paper during the campaign, and have a high personal regard for the Republican legislative candidates, although, without any partisan feeling in the matter, we have always favored the principle embodied in Statement No. 1 of the primary law, believing it to mean virtually the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, a principle that has been endorsed by all parties in this and many other states, through their delegate conventions, for many years past.

The minimum fine for the violation of the pure food laws is $25 and the trial court is authorized, upon conviction, to destroy all mislabeled or adulterated foods or drinks in the possession of the defendant at the time of arrest. Any retailer who purchases unlawful goods from a wholesale house and sells them, knowingly or unknowingly, is liable to prosecution. The plea made by the retailer that he was not aware that he was buying anything but pure goods is no excuse.

The county high school proposition should not be lightly passed over by the voters next Monday. It is endorsed by State Superintendent Ackerman, and other prominent educators, and other prominent educators as a movement in the right direction. In the matter of educational expense it is better to err on the side of liberality than to curtail facilities without proper investigation merely because of the extra expense entailed.

Many paper-makers have testified that there has been no agreement to hoist and maintain prices. It has, we are asked to believe, been a mere coincidence that prices have several times simultaneously jumped and that no publisher has been able to buy below a certain price.

All records in the stock-watering line will be smashed when the Standard Oil Company increases its capitalization from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000, and there seems to be no available law to head off the transaction.

After all has been said and done, there is something in the contention that it is a waste of time to teach a man that he has certain constitutional rights, as long as it remains in the power of a federal judge to cancel these rights indefinitely at will.

As a rule, find a man who has an extended experience with individual Japanese and you will find one that distrusts the Japanese as a nation. There is a reason.

"Why is a political reformer?" asks a brother editor, apparently as a joke, as everybody knows the answer—generally to get, or hold on to an office.

This claim that Hughes will be nominated for president on the fourth or fifth ballot must mean in 1912, or some later year.

We shudder to think of the time that is going to be done on the stump about bills that only passed one branch of congress.

"GOOD BYE, GOD BLESS YOU." I like the Anglo-Saxon speech. With its direct revelations, it takes a hold and seems to reach way down into your feelings. That some folks deem it rude, I know.

And therefore they abuse it. But I have never found it so— "Hello! all else I choose it. I don't object that men should air The Gallic they have paid for. With "au revoir," adieu ma chere, For that's what French was made for. But when a crowd takes your hand At parting to address you, He drops all French and says "Good-bye." He says "Good-bye." He says "Good-bye." I like the Anglo-Saxon speech, because it is direct and reaches the heart of the people of Oregon and their desire to advance and secure the moral and material progress of the state.

FOUR FAMOUS AMERICANS.

Probably no official gathering of American citizens ever represented more diversified views and interests than the conservation convention recently held at the White House. This picture of Andrew Carnegie, James J. Hill, William J. Bryan and John Mitchell seated together is ample testimony of the good fellowship which existed at that gathering. Here one of the chief exponents of the cause of labor sits with two of the mightiest rulers of finance and the man who would reorganize the country's entire commercial system.

And I—I saw in mother's eyes
The love she could not tell me—
A love eternal as the skies,
Whatever fate befell me.
She put her arms about my neck
And soothed the pain of leaving,
And though her heart was like to break,
She spoke no words of grieving;
She let no tear bedim her eyes
For fear she might distress me,
But kissing me, she said good-bye,
And asked our God to bless me.
