When you and I heided the veil are past,
Oh, but the long, long while the world shall last.
Which of our coming and departure heeds
As the Seven Seas should heed a pebble east.
—Omar Khayyam.

GROVER CLEVELAND NEARS END OF LIFE

At any time may be announced the death of Grover Cleveland, former president of the United States, if we may believe the newspaper reports that come from the East.

At his bedside, hopeful, insisting to himself that her husband's illness is not fatal and that he will recover, an inspiration to him in his conscious moments—fighting for his life—is the true wife, loved and loving.

Since their retirement from the White House the Clevelands have sought the privilege of living the unostentatious lives of simple Americans, the station that their inclinations prompted and to which their means limited them, says one of our exchanges.

To rear their children and train them in ways of Christian citizenship they held was their first duty. But their usefulness did not end with that.

"If there is any good deed I can do or kindness show let me do it now. Let me not defer or postpone it, for I shall not pass this way again," said a great philosopher, and Grover Cleveland seemed to live that philosophy.

He has been one of the most useful of Americans. His life is an inspiration to the youth of the nation; his success teaches that the highest wealth, honestly sought, persistently striven for, may be attained, that no ambition is too lofty for the boy with a will.

Multitudes of wasted loves owe their failure to the dangerous habit of "putting off" for the day the work of that day. But work promptly done is an incentive to new endeavor. It increases skill and gives new courage to press forward. Grover Cleveland began right, and he remained with the task until—we hope this is not the end, but fear it is.

He never idled. He was a worker, who never quit, thinking he had done his share.

As president Cleveland's position is with that the greatest. In later years a fuller understanding was gained a fuller appreciation of his work for the nation. We know now that many of the latter reforms are but the results of measures advocated by him.

His courage was as great as his energy. He dared always to do that which to him seemed right, and his mistakes, for he made them, are already being forgotten by the people. Let us hope that he may be spared to still further usefulness.

WHY SOME COUNTIES VOTED AGAINST U. OF O.

The Oregonian makes the following pertinent remark concerning the result of the vote on the University appropriation in the lower Willamette valley counties:

"Marion county votes against the University because it has a college of its own. Benton does the same thing because it has the Agricultural College, and Washington the same thing because it has a college at Forest Grove. Good friends, it does seem as if this is too narrow to be worthy of you."

The University secured its success where its work was best known.

For years Southern and Eastern Oregon, Portland and Astoria have furnished the uniforms for the University. Outside of Lane county these uniforms were made by the University. The uniforms were made by the University. The uniforms were made by the University.

The Salem hog and the Lane county mobback voted against the U. of O., but after all the people of Oregon stood nobly against the reactionary forces and won a glorious victory that will do a great deal toward hastening the coming of the Greater Oregon.

When Lane Congressman Bartholdi mean by introducing a bill to regulate fishing before Congress, when a house investigating committee has positively said there was no lobbying?

Wonder if this Congressman Moore, of Pennsylvania, who has introduced a bill to regulate laundries, is related to the Texas statesman who sought fame by trying to regulate the length of sheets?

This new machine for expelling fogs is a fine thing for navigators, but just now a machine for making dense fogs would come nearer to meeting the pressing needs of many politicians.

There will be no "boost" excursion from Eugene to Albany—but your last dollar on that.

The University boys may safely light their bonfires tonight.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Harry Bown is elected sheriff in this Republican county, the only Democrat elected. History repeats itself in this instance, the county campaign of 1884 ending in the election of but one Democrat, J. R. Campbell, the candidate for sheriff.

It is a fluctuating office, so far as politics goes. In this county, the minority party seeming to be able to elect their candidate a good part of the time to the office about which the heat of the political battle never fails to focus. Going away back to 1872 we find J. N. Poindeux, Democratic sheriff for two terms, succeeded by S. H. Eakin, Republican, who made the record of holding the office three full terms. He was succeeded by J. M. Shelley, Republican, who held the office one term, being succeeded by J. R. Campbell, Democrat, who held the office two terms. His successor, J. M. Sloan, Republican, held two terms when the office again fell into the hands of the Democrats in the person of J. E. Noland, for two terms. A. J. Johnson, Republican, then held it two terms, his successor, W. W. Withers, Democrat, being murdered in his third term in the performance of his duty.

With Sheriff Withers the non-year ended, his first deputy, Fred Pisk, present sheriff, being appointed to fill the unexpired term, with a subsequent election. And now his former deputy, Harry Bown, Democrat, has been elected by a big majority.

A rather singular coincidence in the prominence of the initial letter "J" in the given names of so many of the sheriffs named, J. N. Poindeux, J. M. Shelley, J. R. Campbell, J. M. Sloan, J. E. Noland and A. J. Johnson, all except the last named serving consecutively.

The Best Pills Ever Sold "After detailing 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me so much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I remember them the best pills ever sold." writes Dr. F. A. Ayres, of Indianapolis, N. C. Sold under guarantee at W. A. Knickerdall's drug store, 25 cents.

There's been a lot of shaking over Casey and his bar. And how he didn't hit the bar, and after that hit that. They've made some claims about him that have sort of swelled his frame. But who's the good of cracking up a man that lost the game. Ed heard about the case and he'd like to draw the blowers about. 'I'd heard about his going in to draw the blowers about. So when he tackled Casey's man he may be sure I tried. To put a dam in Casey's frame and purchase Casey's pride.

For those of us who seen the case it's easy to recall. That they'd have won, and we'd have had Casey hit the ball. That in the end we'd have had Casey hit the ball. That in the end we'd have had Casey hit the ball.

Established up an' then applauded an' let the breeze fly. That's not the case, said Casey and he let the ball hit. 'Strike him with the lightning storm, an' I thought there'd be a fight. But Casey was 'n' turned and said: "Be quiet, take 'em right."

Agin, I did it myself an' it whistled over the plate. If Casey thought he'd strike it, he thought a bit too late. 'Strike him with the lightning storm, an' I thought there'd be a fight. But Casey was 'n' turned and said: "Be quiet, take 'em right."

I braced myself and sent it in me pocket for a mile. An' Casey went wild all his might and missed it by a mile. No matter was the party says of Casey at the bat. That was the way it happened, he can be seen on that.

The hands were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line. They were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line. They were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line.

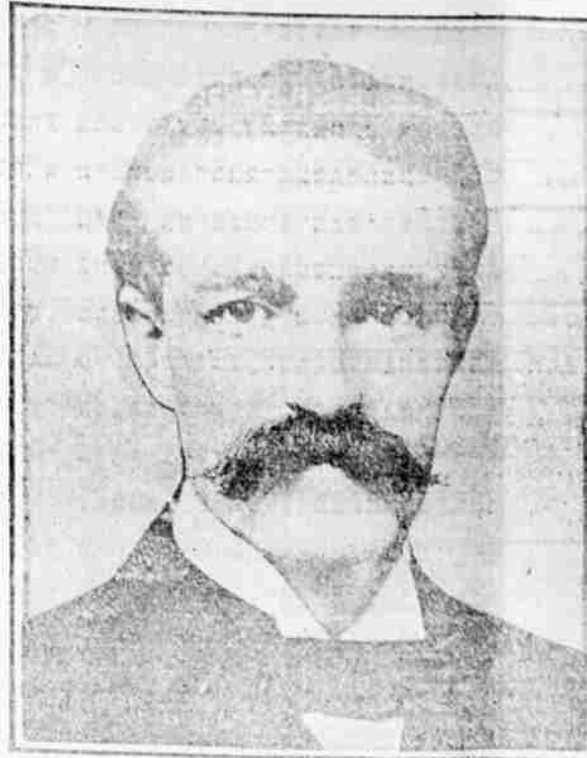

An' Casey went wild all his might and missed it by a mile. No matter was the party says of Casey at the bat. That was the way it happened, he can be seen on that.

The hands were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line. They were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line. They were flying everywhere, but I was in Casey's line.

GIFFORD PINCHOT, WHO MAY GO INTO THE CABINET.

It was recently reported that in the event of the resignation of Secretary Wilson from the cabinet Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, would take up the portfolio of agriculture. President Roosevelt is an ardent admirer of Mr. Pinchot, having described him as one of the most useful men in America. Mr. Pinchot doubtless has done more for the preservation of the forests and the development of the science of forestry than any other man in America.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE. Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

WHAT'S THE USE? Why is man born with the closed fist? Because he wants to grasp everything. And why does he die with palms outstretched? To show that he takes nothing along with him.—Talmud.

The quaint saying of the Talmud is a good one for this day and age—an age of grasping commercialism.

Some one has aptly named the disposition of modern men to gather to themselves more wealth than they need or can use as "money madness."

There's the method in that madness. Note the cunning of the monopolist who gathers to himself the ways and means of production. See how his converging lines of transportation and his watchful execution match that of the spider that weaves his converging webs and lures his victim.

Money mad, these moderns. And some of them, like lunatics in a cell, grasp at the straws of their matting to weave them into a golden crown. And some of them grasp at the motes in the air of their dusty coils, seeking substance. Some of them ravage the world and rob their fellows. Some steal from earth and sea and sky. Some sell their souls to the devil.

Listen to the marching chorus of the money pirates, the grunting, sweaty chorus of grab, grab grab!

Poor fools! Yet a little while and the grabbers shall pass away. Whose, then, shall these things be? The lawyers will revel in the loot of it, heirs will quarrel over it, harpies will fatten on the funds, and prodigal hands will sow the surplus wealth broadcast over the earth.

Even now lustful eyes watch for the first symptom of the hour when the fates of the here loving lunatics shall relax their itching palms.

Poor fools! Our brief Anglo-Saxon phrase puts the lesson of the Talmud in fewer words. Our ancestors were accustomed to say, "There are no pockets in shirts."

Soon the grabbing hand shall lose its cunning and the liver tongue cleave to the roof of its mouth.
