Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is the one that children like so well to take, as it tastes like maple sugar. It acts gently, yet freely, on the bowels and thereby it drives the cold out of the system. It is sold by all druggists. Tell me, ye winged winds that round my pathway roar, do ye not know some quiet spot where wives clean house no more; some lone, sequestered dale, some island, ocean-girt, where life is not one ceaseless war with cobwebs and with dirt; where only nature's carpet spreads beneath their tired feet, and wretched men are ne'er compelled its emerald folds to beat? The soft breeze fanned my heated face and said: "Beat on—there's no such place."—Exchange.

ZIMMERMAN EXPLAINS WHAT MARKET DAY IS

What is market day, anyhow? seems to be the question of the day since the election excitement has quieted down. To give our readers a proper idea, Max Zimmerman, the famous house auctioneer and original promoter of market day celebrations, was interviewed today by one of our reporters. That there is nothing new under the sun, is evidenced by market day. There is not a school pupil in all Europe who does not know what "mark tag" is, meaning market day in English, and the child looks forward to the going to town on the regular monthly market day as any American girl looks for the first circus of the season. No one stays at home on market day—grandfathers, grandmothers, aunts, cousins, sweethearts and all the kids go to town. It's a grand gathering, a grand meeting place from miles around, not alone from the country, but the smaller towns and villages as well, all flock to the metropol. As all leading, up-to-date merchants have big bargains to offer on that day or establish market day bargain counters, everybody gets busy when in town with hand-shaking, gossiping and visiting cards. The menfolk also get busy. While the women folk do the shopping the men buy, sell and swap horses and cattle. Buyers from other cities are here, and in short you have a market, and it gives the farmer the highest market price for what he has to sell, as there is competition, and wherever there is competition there is life in trade. The farmer soon becomes as busy as the busiest merchant with his buying, selling and trading. It also insures the farmer great bargains at the stores, which display booster cards, as one tries to outdo the other in bargains, and to catch the trade like the fellow on the fair grounds. The fellow who yells the loudest sells the most. It has a circus day skinned to death, and for the first inaugural market day it is proposed to give the farmers a grand treat as well as bargains in the stores. There will be a band concert, a grand horse show, parade in which all are invited to participate, a public wedding, prizes and premiums, and Zimmerman, the great Midway, St. Paul, auctioneer, who is funnier than forty circus clowns, to entertain, and Eugene will see the largest crowd ever seen in any city of its size in the Northwest on its first market day. Saturday, June 29. Market day is certainly a great thing for the farmer, the merchant and the town and the idea is to hold one here once a month. Let no one stay at home. Help boost the first one.

A Turn of the Wheel.

Enid Ford not only possessed a fortune, but her father and mother being dead, there was no one to direct her movements in any respect. Walker Brooks was an eligible party, being also wealthy, and, although he was not intellectual and had no object in life, Enid had concluded that their two estates united would involve many advantages. She gave him some encouragement. He proposed and was accepted.

In memory of her parents Enid built a little church in the town where she lived. When it was finished she cast about for some one to take charge of it as pastor. Laurence Keith, a recent graduate of a theological seminary, was recommended and finally chosen for the position.

Keith was one of those young men who from the first indicate that they are destined to make their mark in the world. He had, first of all, that requisite for a pastor, the gift of extempore utterance. When he had anything to say to his congregation he did not halt nor hesitate for words nor become intricately involved in the construction of sentences.

Being at the head of a church built and endowed by Enid Ford, there were many things constantly arising for them to talk over. They invariably confined themselves to church and charitable interests, seldom if ever dropping into that small talk so natural to young people. Indeed, Mr. Keith treated Miss Ford as the owner of the church of which he was pastor, and Miss Ford treated Mr. Keith as the pastor of the church of which she was owner.

When Mr. Keith had administered the affairs of the church and its congregation a year Miss Ford said to him:

"I am very well pleased, Mr. Keith, with my selection of a pastor for my church. There is, however, one recommendation you do not possess. A clergyman should have a wife. On your salary, I admit, marriage would be unwise, but I can relieve this deficiency. Your salary for the next year will be double what it has been."

Mr. Keith thought a few moments, then declined the raise with the condition, whereupon Miss Ford assured him that there was no condition attached, and he was satisfied. A few more matters of business were talked over between them, when Miss Ford said:

"I have a request to make of you—an invitation to extend to you—and I don't wish you to be influenced in your acceptance by our relative positions. Perhaps I am making too much of the matter, but everything connected with a girl's main event in life, marriage, is the cause of deep feeling to her."

"I can understand that, and it should be so. What is this invitation?"

"Will you marry me?" Mr. Keith looked at the girl in astonishment, then, instead of making a reply, turned and walked back and forth for several minutes in deep thought. Meanwhile Miss Ford looked at him, equally surprised.

"I do not think," he said at last, "that such a course would be well for either of us. In a career such as mine wealth possessed by my wife would be a detriment to me, for my view of wealth is that it belongs to the poor. I have observed that, however liberal rich people are, their wealth is their paramount interest. With this predisposition to hold and increase what you have, I would advise you to marry a rich man."

It is needless to say that Miss Ford listened to this with interest. Mr. Keith had mistaken her entirely. What she intended to ask of him was that he would perform the marriage ceremony soon to take place between her and Walker Brooks. He had supposed that she, being rich, had considered it her part to propose marriage. When he had finished speaking, instead of informing him of his blunder she said:

"What you say is worthy of thoughtful consideration."

A week later Mr. Brooks received a note from his fiancée stating that she had come to the conclusion that she was not the woman she would marry; that she had resolved to spend her income in doing good only and not in pleasure seeking. Mr. Brooks was somewhat disappointed at losing so considerable an addition to his fortune, calculating to spend the united income in fashionable living. But he weighed the matter and decided that he would rather give up Miss Ford's fortune than see it expended in building institutions. He released her.

From this time Miss Ford began to rely on her pastor in certain expenditures which she designed on account of his experience in the line she proposed to spend the money and because of his administrative ability, which was of the first order. It was not long before their interests became identical. Miss Ford furnished the means for good, and Mr. Keith saw that the money went into many a household where it was not only a godsend, but was expended to a practical purpose. One evening after they had been talking of these matters Miss Ford said:

"Mr. Keith, I once gave you an invitation which you declined. Were the situation now what you inferred it to be, your reasons for declining would have been excellent. But since then I have made my calling your calling. I see no reason why a fortune held in trust, as I hold mine, for the poor should not continue to go through you to the greatest good. Again I ask, will you marry me?"

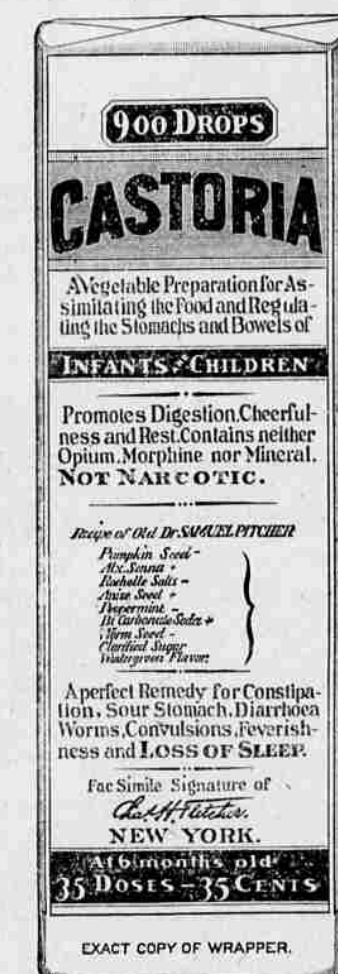

The second invitation was accepted. EMMALINE C. BURKE.

A Thoughtless Druggist.

ONLY a thoughtless druggist would offer a preparation without the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when Castoria is called for; the "delicate, faint and flickering light" that joins baby's life to its devoted parents being too sacred, to the self-respecting druggist, to be trifled with.

For over thirty years Mr. Fletcher has given, and still gives, his personal attention to the preparation of Castoria. It has won the confidence of mothers and physicians everywhere—never harmed the tiniest babe. This cannot be said of Imitations, Counterfeits and the "Just-as-good" rot.

The thoughtless druggist only offers the counterfeit because of a few pennies more profit. Any new preparation can be but an experiment, and they are experiments—mere guess work—irrespective of what their sponsors may say for them. It is experience of over thirty years, against wild and injudicious experiment.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. ## CALL TODAY FOR LOW FEE.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST EXPONENT OF SCIENTIFIC PALMISTRY. Palmistry is almost the oldest science. In almost every portion of the Bible we find the spirit of prophecy encouraged. We find schools of the prophets, established for such a purpose, and indications that the relations were held in repute by God's chosen people.

The most important verse of the Bible that is used in support of palmistry is in the seventh verse of the thirty-seventh chapter of Job: "GOD PLACED SIGNS OR SEALS IN THE HAND OF MAN THAT ALL MEN MIGHT KNOW THEIR WORDS." Among other verses in the Bible that seem to bear a relation to the point may be mentioned: "LENGTH OF DAYS LAY IN HER RIGHT HAND AND RICHES AND HONOR IN HER LEFT."—Prov. iii:46. "WHAT EVIL IS IN MINE HAND?"—First Samuel xxvii:18.

Among famous believers in the science may be mentioned: Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Cardinal Richelieu, Napoleon Bonaparte, Cromwell, Sir Walter Scott, Marie Antoinette, Balzac, Victor Hugo, De Maistre, Gladstone, and Queen Victoria. Our own George Washington and Abraham Lincoln expressed great admiration for this scientific science. If you are interested it would bewell to call this week. Grace De Koven will receive callers between the hours of 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. low fee. Bring this adv. Phone Black 1031. Social Reading, $1.00.
