NOT ALWAYS WHAT WE THINK WE ARE.

The longer we live, the more we learn, and the more we learn, the less we think we know. Such is the inconsistency of man's ideas. The less one knows the greater his opinion of his abilities and wisdom. In the morning of life a conceited man prides himself on his greatness, and wonders to what grand channel he will confine his talents. He looks upon his school district as the world at large, and himself as the great genius in whose keeping the world's nature rests. He imagines that when he speaks, nations tremble, mountains totter and the sea becomes silent.

He imagines that a gaping and wondering populace are gazing on him with open-mouthed wonder and iron-clad astonishment, and that he holds the world in the hollow of his hand with a grasp that is perpetual. But as days, and months, and years pass in rapid succession, the young man finds out that he is possibly mistaken and if he would wonder away and get lost some one or more of all the people of the earth would not miss him. By and by he begins to realize that he is only one of many millions of the people, and instead of standing forth as the center of attraction, he only fills a small niche of some obscure corner, and really attracts but little attention. The ignorant man who realizes his ignorance and who does not seek to pass himself off for more than he is worth, is pardonable, but the self-conceited man who tries to pass himself off for a premium, is to be pitied. The best way is to hold one's self-esteem down and not rate himself too high. The man who climbs the highest has the farthest to fall. It is more pleasant to be invited to take a higher seat than to be deprived of it. It is more pleasant to be king of a cottage than servant of a palace. It is better to be a good five cent piece than a bogus quarter; in other words, it is better to hold ourselves at what we are honestly worth. The world is full of people who never learn anything because they think they know enough to begin with. Thousands are teaching when they ought to be taught; thousands believe themselves wise when their ignorance is lamentable; thousands believe themselves clothed in gold when they are only thinly plated and the copper shows through in many places. The wisest are comparatively ignorant and thousands of men who have grand ideas of their own abilities will some day wake up to the realization that they have been laboring under a large-sized delusion. Many a young man's life is guided by bright dreams that come in the early stage of the game, but later on he finds that these dreams are only empty, and O, how little is the change when it comes.

Is the announcement that Senator Dolliver will place Taft in nomination before the Chicago convention another snub for Senator Beveridge, who was willing to be persuaded to pull off the stunt?
No wonder our big cities produce few really big men these days. Having to live in the caged and cramped quarters of the modern apartment house, they have no room to grow big.

When Evelyn Thaw can no longer command first page space, the $1,000 a month allowed her by her husband's family may look a lot bigger to her than it does right now.

With Betty Green hiring beauty doctors at $2.00 per, and giving dinners that cost $20 a plate, we are getting mighty curious as to the gentleman's name. "Dead we are."

Perhaps Tom Watson is keeping so quiet because he is hard at work studying out what his policy will be when he becomes President.

PRIVATE BOARDING

have been made famous by the connection of such illustrious names as Harriman and Hill, but the witness of them and trading was now a total of success.
President Roosevelt and his advisers are apparently of the opinion that trade must not be restrained by mergers of the two methods of transportation, where they naturally compete. Possibly, however, this New Haven instance is merely an object lesson for Congress, which has been so reluctant to make any changes in the Sherman act after much urging by the chief executive.

Still, to get right down to brass tacks, we cannot blame people for not becoming excited and throwing fits because of predicted calamities, scheduled to hit the world 16,000 years hence. Now, if it was a bank not due ten days hence, there would be some reason for walking the floor.

North Carolina's governor says the new "dry law" will be enforced to the letter, which indicates great confidence in the state officials, or the intention to do the over-watchful stunt personally. Anyway, the law will be violated.

Another tremendously important of Congressional legislation was the appropriation of $4,000 for a pedestal for a statue of Rev. John Witherspoon, the only preacher among the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Henry Watterson now wants Governor Johnson on the ticket with Bryan and no filibustering in the convention. All right, Henry, but why not speak for yourself—and one George Chamberlain of Oregon?

A far seeing sense of humor is that of District Attorney Jerome. He says it has shown him only the humorous side of the charges against him, while most people regard those charges as serious on every side.

If you don't believe that money "talks," just keep your ear to the ground until the spellbinders get busy about that billion-dollar handed out at this session of Congress, and you'll be convinced.

LATEST PICTURE OF MARIE STUDHOLME.
A wonderfully pretty actress is Miss Marie Studholme, whose many photographs hardly do her justice. They fail to reproduce her fine coloring, the pale crisp gold of her hair, the clear gray eyes and the delicate complexion. Miss Studholme took to the stage at seventeen, and there her beauty, distinctness and winning manners soon gained appreciation. She is very devoted to children and never happier than when giving them treats of some kind.

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.
Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

YOUR SON—DO YOU KNOW HIM?
"Oh, my boy is all right. He may be a little wild, but I am sure he would not do anything very bad."
That was the way a fond mother spoke of her son when a friend hinted concerning the young man's habits. The son is of age, a kind hearted, bright young fellow, and is the idol of his mother.
What are the facts about the boy? In a word, he is doing about everything a boy ought not to do. He does more than take an "occasional drink." He gambles regularly. He attends to business all right in business hours. Out of business hours he devotes himself to various vices.

And there is pathos in the thought that his mother believes he is a good sort of boy, only "a little wild." She will never know her son as he is until some crisis comes. Some day he is likely to disgrace his family and cruelly shock a loving mother.
Why is the son going wrong?
He comes of a good family. He has been well educated. His mother has taught him from his youth up the principles of right living. Having fortified him in this way, his parents do not dream that the son is leading a dissolute and useless life.

Father and mother do not know their son. They do not know his real thoughts, habits, inclinations, associations. They think they do, but they don't.
It may be this boy got away from home influences when he was a lad. Many boys do get away early. Mothers sometimes are unable to keep a string around them. Mothers sometimes think they are keeping tab on the little fellows when they are not doing so. They are deceived.

It matters not when the young man here mentioned happened to be corrupted. This is sure—the case is a typical one. There are thousands of young men deceiving their parents just as this one is doing. Being of the stature and age of men, they are free to come and go as will. It is difficult to know their manner of life. And you would have difficulty in convincing the parents that their boys are not all right.

Do you know your little boy?
You may think that, having got him safely up to manhood, you can let him go wherever you want to know that manhood presents many special and peculiar temptations.
Do you know your son?
Are you sure?
