PAVING WAY FOR BIG UNION STRIKE

San Francisco, June 13.—There is a well-defined rumor that a conference of members of the Ship Owners' Association of the Pacific is soon to be held, at which a lower scale of wages to be paid all sailors, stevedores and longshoremen will be formulated and later presented to the unions. Lower freight rates are given as the cause for the proposed change.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is the one that children like so well to take, as it tastes like maple sugar. It acts gently, yet freely, on the bowels and thereby it drives the cold out of the system. It is sold by all druggists.

HOLDS EXERCISES

EUGENE THEATER CROWDED BY RELATIVES AND FRIENDS OF GRADUATES—AN INTERESTING PROGRAM RENDERED BY MEMBERS OF CLASS AND OTHERS

The high school graduating exercises at the Eugene theatre last night were largely attended, the house being crowded by parents and other relatives and friends of the graduates and by patrons and friends of the school in general. Long before the curtain rose great banks of Eugene's most beautiful roses and other choice flowers were piled up in front of the stage—bouquets for the graduates. As the curtain was raised the large audience beheld another scene of beauty on the stage. Numerous pennants from all colleges in Oregon and from some outside the state, as well as many from the high school, had been hung in an artistic manner about the stage. The graduating class marched to the stage from the rear of the theatre and took the seats provided for them. They were followed by Superintendent Alderman, Principal King, President Crooks, of Albany College, and members of the Eugene board of education.

After a fervent invocation by Rev. W. B. Pinkerton, pastor of the Congregational church, Miss Lila Prosser rendered a beautiful vocal solo. This was followed by the class oration by Arthur B. Stillman. His subject was "The Call of the Highest Good," which was handled in a masterful manner and the address was well delivered. Miss Nina Nicklin selected the audience with a violin selection and was compelled to respond to an encore. The address to the class by President Crooks was then delivered. Professor Crooks spoke plainly but forcefully to the class, the address containing excellent thought. After a vocal solo by Miss Hazel Huff, rendered in her usual winsome manner, Superintendent Alderman presented to Claris Sweeney and Herbert Roome, who had won the highest scholarship during the school year, a medal each, given by W. C. Yoran and R. McMurphy, members of the board of education. Then came the presentation of diplomas by Director Osburn, and the program closed with a violin solo by Cecil Lyons.

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE

SALE CLOSES MARKET DAY

Another Week of the Carnival

Owing to the unprecedented success of the Carnival Sale, and owing to the fact that numbers of our out of town customers have been unable to attend, we have decided to continue our great Shopping Carnival one more week, sale ending next Saturday, Eugene's first market day. We are demonstrating by this sale that a big store with a stock of up-to-date merchandise can pull the people to it, if its methods are popular and its advertising honest. During last week every article in our stock has been reduced. There will not be a mark changed next week. Every article in the store will be sold at reduced prices during the remainder of the Carnival. We have several things we won't devolve to you just now. They're secrets, but just watch our advertising next week. Certainly it will be a veritable Bargain Pageant. If you are among the unlucky ones who were unable to attend this week, here is your opportunity. We want everyone to get their share of the biggest bargain giving event that ever took place in Eugene. Don't let anything keep you from coming Monday.

OSTEOPATHS
DESERVE CONFIDENCE

Make Certain That Your Doctor is A Real Osteopath, Holding the Diploma of a Reputable Osteopathic College and a License to Practice in Your College. No Other Go Ahead.—Results Prove the Worth of the Treatment.

The sufferer who contemplates taking Osteopathic treatment should begin by making sure that the physician, in whose hands he places his case, is a real Osteopath; for unfortunately, there are rank pretenders who have no knowledge of the science worthy of consideration. In most cases these are men who have never had any training at all worthy the name. But here and there is also found an old school physician who, without ever having been within the portals of an Osteopathic college at all, pretends to a knowledge of the subject which it has taken the real Osteopath three-hard years of schooling and practice to master. It is gratifying to note that this latter is a rare exception, as most good medical men admit ignorance of the subject, and frequently send their patients to qualified Osteopaths when it seems advisable in their judgment to do so. Every patient should, to begin with, make certain that his Osteopath holds the diploma of a reputable Osteopathic college, and a license to practice in your state; and this, having been ascertained, treatment may be accepted with perfect confidence.

There is every reason in the world why the confidence of sufferers should be given to qualified Osteopaths without reserve. Osteopathy is no longer an experiment. It constitutes the regular means of treating disease that is in use by 4,000 physicians, practicing in all states and territories, in Great Britain, Hawaii, China and Japan. The course of training through which an Osteopath now has to pass before receiving his diploma is an arduous and extended one, covering three year's personal attendance with nine month's solid work in each year—a total expenditure of time and attention, fully equal to that required by the best medical colleges. The Osteopath is fully and thoroughly equipped in every study that is involved in healing work, with the single exception of materia medica, which he does not use at all. In anatomy he has a training that is not equalled by any other physician; and his special system of treatment, conforming, as it does, entirely to Nature's laws, simply endeavoring to help Nature with her work, is so simple, rational and manifestly incapable of harm in competent hands, that it should commend itself to all. It can only be added that the system has been recognized by legislative enactment in the great majority of the states of the Union, that it is proving itself anew every day, and that those who endorse it are those who have received the treatment and who know whereof they speak. A man or woman who suffers from bodily ailments has no occasion to despair if an Osteopathic doctor has not been consulted; for Osteopaths not only are scoring great success with all kinds of curable diseases, but are even recording complete recoveries in cases described by other schools as incurable. Any good Osteopath will tell the patient exactly what he finds and give him a definite idea at once as to whether cure is possible or not.

Note.—The Osteopath mentioned below is thoroughly qualified in every respect.
