CITY NEWS

Eggs are 15 cents per dozen on the local markets, and weak at that.

F. E. Dunn will begin the work of improving his store front tomorrow.

Geo. E. Miller and family have Eugene, their household goods having arrived yesterday.

Wm. Hodas is building a small room adjoining his laundry building on the east for a drying room.

E. W. Hoselton and family are moving to Newport for the summer, having left for that place this afternoon.

Seventeen hobos were run in last night by the police officers. This is the largest bunch jailed for some time past.

The Commercial Club committee on entertaining the Portland excursionists will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The funeral of Rev. Sweeney will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Christian church, with interment in the Masonic cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Mary C. Spores, who died at Walla Walla Monday, arrived in Eugene this afternoon and will be buried at Coburg tomorrow.

Another carload of stone for the new Divinity School building arrived this morning. Work on the building has progressed to the top of the second story.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Commercial Club meet tonight for the purpose of perfecting plans for entertaining the excursionists from Portland on June 24.

The Red Cross Drug Company (Hull's) expects to open its fine new ice cream parlors in the room formerly occupied by Hoselton's cigar store and Severin's barber shop early next week.

J. N. B. Fuller has the excavation completed for two new residences on his lots on East Eleventh street, between High and Mill. Each will be two stories high and will contain ten rooms each.

This morning's rain put a temporary stop to the pavement work on East Eleventh street, but it was resumed this afternoon. The company expects to have the entire street paved by the beginning of next week.

The title of a new case in the circuit court is that of Leo M. Travis vs. Henry Loretz, to recover money. Another one filed today in which Mr. Travis is the attorney is that of S. L. Long & Co. vs. A. A. Aaby, to recover money for goods sold.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Miller, daughter of Hon. and Mrs. F. J. Miller, will occur at their home at Albany this evening. Alton Coates, a well-known athlete, is the fortunate groom. Dr. J. C. Gray and Mrs. Lela Muthersbaugh, uncle and cousin respectively of the bride, have gone down from Eugene to attend the wedding.

Sam Harstok has resigned his position as druggist with the Red Cross Drug Company and has gone back to Corvallis, where he has purchased the Graham & Wells store. Mr. Harstok was well pleased with Eugene and his position here, but the opportunity to buy the store there presented itself and he took advantage of it.

The Commercial Club has received several additional acceptances to the invitation to come to Eugene on the Portland business men's excursion June 24, as follows: A. H. Eilers, of the Eilers piano house; Sol Hart, of the Hart Clear Company; A. F. Biles, of the Central Door and Lumber Company, and George E. K. Fitchner.

F. A. Tripp this morning received a telephone message from his uncle, Dr. Hovel, from Roseburg, stating that he was on his way to Eugene in his automobile, having come all the way from Ashland, Cal., which is near Eureka, the trip covering over 400 miles. He expected to reach Eugene this afternoon if the rain did not interfere. It is probable that it will be quite late when he arrives because of the muddy roads.

"Vander" reinforced hammocks will last longer because they are heavier and closer woven in the centre, where the strain comes.

CASE AGAINST G. M. WHITSON IS-DISMISSED

TRAVELING MAN WHO FORGED CHECKS GETS OFF WITHOUT PUNISHMENT--NOT A TRUE BILL IN HENRY JONES' CASE--JACOBS AND SON INDICTED

G. M. Whitson, the commercial traveler who forged several checks and passed them upon the Hotel Smeede and the Chambers Hardware Company here several months ago, and who has been in the county jail here for the past two or three months, having been arrested at Walla Walla shortly after the commission of the crime, was discharged from custody by Judge Harris, of the circuit court, this morning upon motion of the district attorney. The reason for this action is that the prosecution deemed that the ends of justice had been served already in that Whitson had made good the amount obtained by his forgeries, had paid the costs, amounting to over $100, and has spent a good length of time in jail.

Henry Jones freed the grand jury in the case of the State vs. Henry Jones, accused of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl, this forenoon reported not a true bill and he was discharged.

FROM DREAM TO REALITY.

Once upon a time a family, consisting of a young man, his wife and two little children, lived in a cabin near a pottery in England. The wife did the cooking, took care of the home and the children, while the husband worked in the pottery. Edmond Spier was not a very good workman. He was rather inclined to study processes for saving labor or of producing new and useful articles.

His wife, who was a practical woman, had to bear her share of her husband's handicap. She often argued with him as to the futility of dreaming about new processes none of which he had the ability to invent and being thus drawn from hard work which might advance his wages and render the family more comfortable. But it is impossible to change people's dispositions, and Molly Spier at last gave up trying to change that of her husband.

Meanwhile there was no addition to the comforts of the home. The larder was no better, the furniture was getting more shabby, and the children were ragged. What with the cooking, the housework and the patching of clothes Molly Spier was having a hard time of it. But with all her practicality her amiable disposition could no more be changed than could her husband's proclivity to dream. But one day Edmond came home from the factory with a burning fever on him, and it was evident that he was in for a protracted illness.

There were no unions in those days to take care of a man when he was ill, and the Spier family suffered greatly. Molly Spier got odd jobs to do, which helped to keep them from starving. Edmond applied to his employer for help. The pottery owner was a cold, calculating business man and replied that if he began to pay wages to one of his men while ill he would end in having to pay all under similar circumstances. This killed all hope of obtaining anything from that direction.

One day Molly spent what money she had on hand for some fresh pork. Having bought more of it than she could use in a short time because it was cheap, she determined to cure a part of it. Putting some salt in a common cooking vessel such as was used in those days, an unglazed porous affair, she filled it with water and set it on the stove to heat. Then she went out to attend to another matter.

Edmond, who was now convalescent, was in the only other room in the cabin spending his time, as usual, day dreaming. He began by inventing in imagination a vessel hard glazed like glass, a substance that no water could penetrate and neither heat nor cold crack. Having invented this imaginary vessel, he proceeded to sell his invention for a fabulous sum, build a house, dress his wife in silks and satins and the children in equally fine apparel. He heard something stalling in the kitchen, and it occurred to him that he should go in there and see what was wrong and correct it. But at that moment he was figuring up his fortune, and the matter passed out of his mind.

He was still dreaming when he heard Molly go into the kitchen and utter an exclamation of impatience. Then she came into where Edmond was lying, holding an empty saucepan, and for once since his illness lost her equilibrium. "All the salt I had is gone," she said. "I put it on a hot fire with water, which boiled over. Besides, just look at the saucepan. There's something on the outside that won't be rubbed off. The pan is spotted for looks if not for use. I do think you might have gone into the kitchen and prevented the damage."

Edmond took the saucepan in his hand and examined it. Where the salt and water had boiled over the vessel was glazed. He scratched it with his nail without effect. He took out his pocketknife and tried to scrape it off, all to no purpose. "Molly," he said, "you've made us rich."

She turned away with an expression of impatience. He got up and hid the saucepan under the bedclothes. Then, with a step so strong that his wife looked at him with amazement, he went out and bought on credit a bag of salt. Before he went to bed that night he had roughly glazed every cooking vessel in the cabin.

The next day he broke up one of the vessels and took a piece to the owner of the pottery. "How did you do it?" asked the potter. "That's my secret," Edmond replied. "What do you want for your secret?" "A third interest in your pottery."

Time passed, during which the potter submitted the glazing to scientists, offering a large sum to any one who would tell him how it had been effected. But none of them could tell. Only Edmond and Molly Spier knew, and Molly proved that a woman can keep a secret. Besides, Edmond convinced her of its value. Weeks passed, during which hunger still made its abode in their cabin. Edmond was offered a large sum for his secret. He declined. Then he was offered a quarter interest in the pottery. But he held firm, and Molly at last caught the infection of his confidence till his terms were complied with on condition that it prove practicable and not too expensive.

The dreamer's dream was realized. Only he had nothing to do with the invention. It was Molly's. From a cabin the Spier family removed to a commodious dwelling and afterward to a palace. Molly Spier was indeed dressed in silk and satins, and the children were brought up in luxury.

MEMORIAL TO EDNA YARNELL

KLOSCHKE TILICUM HOUSE WILL BE CALLED EDNA HALL--WORK WILL BEGIN AT ONCE

The work of erecting the new Kloschke Tillicum sorority house on Alder street, near East Thirteenth, will begin at once. J. E. Yarnell recently bought the lot on which the building will stand from Professor F. S. Dunn, immediately adjoining the latter's residence. Mr. Yarnell will build the house and he will call it Edna Hall, as a memorial to his daughter, Miss Edna Yarnell, who was drowned in the millrace while canoeing on April 1st of this year.

The building will be three stories high, with a full basement, and will be in the style of an English country home. It will have a spacious porch in front and on the first floor will be located a living room, a reception hall, a music room, a dining room and a study room. On the second floor there will be six bedrooms with two closets each and the same number on the third floor.

The contract for the erection of the building was let this afternoon to C. J. Buley. The contract price is not given out for publication. There were several bidders on the structure.
