

PRESIDENT AIDS TAFT IN FORCING ANTI- INJUNCTION PLATFORM

SAMUEL GOMPERS.
Labor leader who waged successful campaign for anti-injunction plank, opposed by Speaker Cannon and other leaders.

Chicago, June 18.—The court procedure plank as adopted by the committee on resolutions is as follows: "The Republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, state and federal, and will enforce their processes and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. "We believe, however, that the role of procedure in federal courts, with respect to the issuance of the writ of injunction, should be more accurately defined by statute, and that no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereat should be granted."

The victory for the Taft forces in the resolutions committee came with dawn. A platform which contains an injunction plank satisfactory to the prospective candidate was embodied in the substantial verbiage upon which he is to make the secretary's appeal for popular approval. The adoption came only after prolonged discussion, and a letter from President Roosevelt and a letter and telegram from Secretary Taft urging action.

Some of those who opposed the injunction plank in complete agreement with those who would be opposed on the floor, but there are those who believe that nothing of a radical nature in regard to the court procedure plank will occur at the convention.

The platform declares unequivocally for revision of the tariff; establishment of postal savings banks; enactment and enforcement of the railroad rate law; the enactment of an employers' liability act is heartily commended; declares for generous provision for the widows and orphans of those who have died for the country; calls attention to the fact that the Republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust act and enforced it; declares for increasing rural mail service and for good roads.

The platform also recommends amending the interstate commerce law so as to give railroads the right to make and publish tariff agreements, subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission; favors an eight-hour day on all public works, and the movement to prevent waste of timber, water and other natural resources; points with pride to the cause of peace so signally advanced by the Hague conference.

The doctrine of encouragement of the American marine and the encouragement of foreign trade is approved, and the establishment of a bureau of mines and mining are endorsed, as well as the admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as states.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

TAFT NOMINATED BY FIRST BALLOT BY REPUBLICANS

Chicago, June 18.—The roll call of the states on the first ballot for president resulted as follows: Taft, 702; Knox, 64; Hughes, 63; Cannon, 61; Fairbanks, 49; LaFollette, 25; Foraker, 16. In the confusion and demonstration which began when Taft's name reached the figures that nominated him, there may have been immediate changes that will alter the footings. Roosevelt is reported to have received three scattering votes. A wild demonstration followed the nomination of Taft, in which the delegates and spectators joined.

Finally in the confusion Taft's nomination was made unanimous, and the convention adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

C. P. TAFT.
Wealthy brother of the secretary of war, who is backing his campaign for the presidency.

Chicago, June 18.—Talk of a "Roosevelt stampede" has steadily diminished during the past 24 hours, the most enthusiastic admirers of the president being well satisfied with the uproar yesterday. There were moments during the ovation when those opposed to the presentation of the president's name for re-nomination may have been apprehensive lest some one should seize the "psychological moment" for such an attempt, but the indications are that the well understood program of the Taft people will be carried through to a successful completion in all respects.

Williams on Platform
 George H. Williams, of Portland, Oregon, the only surviving member of President Grant's cabinet, was invited to the platform by motion of Senator Fulton, of Oregon, today. He was to have seconded Taft's nomination, but an agreement to have a unanimous seconding speech for each candidate was made and General Williams was cut off the list with many others, including Senator Borah, of Idaho.

Day is Warmer
 Both in respect to temperature and political development the early indications were that the third day of the Republican national convention would be warmer than any of its predecessors. Delegates are expecting a long and physically uncomfortable session, and were slow in arriving. Fifteen minutes before 10 o'clock, the hour set for reconvening, less than a dozen were in their seats. Soon, however, the hall commenced to fill up and with the increasing attendance the hall was uncomfortably warm, shirtsleeves being soon in evidence.

Among the early arrivals were Charles P. Taft, who sat in the Ohio section, and in the front row of the gallery were Henry W. Taft, Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Charles P. Taft.

It was exactly 10:17 when Chairman Lodge rapped for order.

He introduced Rev. John Wesley Hill, of New York City, who opened the session with prayer, as follows:

O Thou that dwellest in light, and unto whom all things unfold in their ripeness and beauty, Thou who art the centre of the widespread universe, drawing all things in ever-increasing harmony toward thyself; to Thee we come; and we thank Thee that upon us the knowledge has dawned, that for us thy Spirit strives; while about us are the tokens of thy love and before us are the rewards of that righteousness which exalteth men and nations. We praise thee for the blessings of this day; for the beneficence of nature; for friends and for friendship; for light and liberty and eternal life. We bless thee especially this morning, for our country; for the Providence which brought it to light and peopled it with patriots; for Plymouth Rock and the Pilgrim Fathers; for the Declaration of Independence, the "chart and compass of all human rights," and for all the want and woe and glory of those vanished years. Thou didst bring us through that midnight of despair, and in the dawn of victory thou didst give to us a flag, for the meaning and history of which we praise thee, a flag which is no holiday banner, but a solemn sign, the symbol of liberty and equality, national authority and honor. We thank thee for that flag, for its symbols and prophecy and glory.

And now, we beseech thee, let thy blessing rest upon this convention. Grant that its deliberations may be seasoned with wisdom; that its platform may be founded in justice; and that its candidates may represent the highest ideals for the government and the governed; and thus may these delegates serve their country with heart responsive to every public need, with brain clear to comprehend every interest and issue, with a patriotism and devotion to duty worthy the great party of Lincoln and emancipation, and with an exaltation and purity of purpose becoming the first citizenship of the world. Bless, we pray thee, our nation. Save it from vice and violence, sedition and anarchy. Bless the servant, the president of these United States. We thank thee for his sense of responsibility to God and country; for his championship of peace and righteousness; his courtesy of conviction and his integrity of leadership; his patriotism and dignified and for his statesmanship, undimmed by narrow party spirit, unsheltered by fear, and untrammelled by selfish ambition. Bless all the good and law makers and those who have the execution of the laws; bless the governors of the several states, and the members of all cities. Bless the great body of citizens; may they be God-fearing and law-abiding; may they be filled with the knowledge that their best citizenship duty is to obey the law which is given to them and which they are bound to protect; that they may live together in the liberty and love of common brotherhood of men. Let it be ever so stated among the members of the youth with such firmness toward the strong and goodness toward the weak that all men may have liberty and behold the divine source whence our liberty comes.
