Col. Geo. O. Yoran recently tendered an invitation to the Eugene Military band to enlist in the regiment as regimental band. At a meeting of the band last night the invitation was declined with thanks and regrets for the reason that the members would be unable to attend engagements on account of their business.

After the East Eleventh street paving contract is completed, which will be some time this week, if the rain does not interfere, the Warren Construction Co. will do a little private job for Hon. S. B. Eakin at his residence at the corner of East Eight and High streets, where a roadway will be built, and then, until the new contracts are let on the 29th inst., the gutters on the new pavement will be leveled and finished off.

Cary F. Martin of Salem, accompanied by his wife, attended commencement of the university this week as he has done regularly since he graduated about 12 years ago. After serving as clerk in the office of Secretary of State during the term of Secretary H. R. Kneld he formed a law partnership with ex-Supreme Judge B. F. Bonham, and after the death of Mr. Bonham a few years ago the large law business of the firm developed upon him so that he is perhaps the busiest man in Salem, and never stays in Eugene at commencement more than one or two days.—State Journal.

A PAYMASTER'S FLIGHT.

When I was a sergeant in the United States cavalry in the far west I was detailed one day to command eight men acting as a guard to Major B., who had paid off the force at our post, and was going to pay those at the next. He was a small, baldheaded, lean man, except a round stomach, which begins to protrude upon some people after they pass forty, with a crafty eye and a silent tongue. The only words he spoke were directions as to handling his safe, a small affair that could easily be lifted by two men and for which a place was arranged on a buckboard wagon which the major always used to transport the treasure. His clerk drove the horse, while the paymaster sat beside him, the safe between his legs.

The country through which we escorted the paymaster contained a wild and lawless people. I thought at the time that eight men, though drilled soldiers and well armed, were a small guard for such a purpose. Whether the major thought so or not I didn't know at the time, for he said nothing about it. I learned afterward that the colonel commanding wouldn't give him any more, and the paymaster entered on the trip under protest.

We were crossing a part of what is called the Great American desert or alkali plains, with nothing there higher than a man's waist. I rode a couple of hundred yards in advance, keeping a sharp lookout in every direction. For more than half a day not a living thing except the members of our party and gophers was in sight. But suddenly in turning to look to our right and rear I saw on a rise far in the distance a mounted figure looking at us. I judged from the general outline of horse and man that he was an Indian. After what appeared to be a careful survey of us he disappeared on the other side of the rise.

I felt a bit uneasy. Turning, I directed each man to see that his arms and ammunition were in order and notified the paymaster of what I had seen. It didn't seem to trouble him much. We jogged on for a few miles and when emerging from low ground suddenly heard a mingling of yells and saw on our right a motley crew several times as large as our own coming down on us. They were evidently a mixture of road agents and cowboys, with a sprinkling of Indians. Their leader rode in advance, a revolver in each hand, the only one of the lot who was not yelling.

I had just time to draw my men up in line between the oncomers and the buckboard before they came within close range, and I told each man to pick one in front of him as nearly as he could estimate. My men were armed with repeating rifles, while the attacking party had some guns, but mostly revolvers. I waited till they came within 200 yards before I gave the order to fire. Nearly every one of my troopers brought down his man. The gang hesitated, and I gave a second order to fire. This halted them; but, rallied by their leader, they came on, bringing us within range of their revolvers, and my men began to get hurt. For some minutes there was a continued firing on both sides, several of my men being put out of the fight, though but one was killed. My effective force was reduced to four men besides myself, Major B. and his clerk. It began to look as though the robbers were going to get the safe.

Suddenly I was astonished to see Major B., who had stood in the buckboard using a rifle, jump down from the wagon, cut the traces, spring on the horse's back, and away he went like an arrow. The act demoralized my force so that they broke. I failed to rally them, and we were all soon tumbling after the paymaster. His clerk mounted the horse of the man who had been killed and joined in the flight.

Never have I been so incensed in my life. The paymaster, a commissioned officer, by his cowardly act had cast discredit on me and my men. I had the mortification to see the bandits ride down on the safe and other jewelry about it. All I could do was to help the wounded men of my command along, supporting them by turn in their saddles. But what surprised me, was the fleetness of the major's horse. I am no judge of horsemanship, and I had mistaken the animal that drew the buckboard for a mere beast of burden. Looking ahead, I could see the paymaster miles in advance, fleeing as for dear life, and in time he disappeared altogether. For once in my life I placed money before human life and wished he were in the safe and the funds were on his horse. I thought with some satisfaction how I would prefer charges of cowardice against him as soon as we reached the post we were making for.

FIREWORKS WILL BE BEST EVER

The Fourth of July committee states that the fireworks at the coming celebration in Eugene will be the finest ever displayed here. Many large pieces have been secured and an expert will be employed to set them off. At several previous celebrations the pyrotechnic display has been a disappointment, but the committee assures the public that this year they will see the best ever seen in any city of this class. The country people would do well to stay in town for this feature of the celebration.

RUMOR THAT WELCH GETS HIRSCHBERG ALBANY HOLDINGS.

A. Welch of the Willamette Valley Company and H. Hirschberg of Independence are in the city today and had a private conference. It is rumored that Welch has acquired Hirschberg's interests in the First street car line and that construction work will commence at once. The report is apparently on good authority, and the conference between Welch and Hirschberg today lends additional force to the rumor. The acquiring of the Hirschberg holdings here by Welch interests will of course mean the calling off of any injunction proceedings which may have been contemplated by the Hirschberg company against A. Welch and will mean that Mr. Welch will have no objection now on in going ahead with the work. The delay in beginning construction on the Welch electric line in this city is said to have been due to the desire of the Welch interests to dispose of all probable impediments which might have been laid in the way had work been commenced with Hirschberg in control of the First street franchise.—Albany Herald.
