AN INDEPENDENT PAPER, Member of Associated Press.

MONDAY, JUNE 29, 1908.

You will find bargains advertised in the big ads and in the little ones. But, to the person who has a want, there is no better bargain to be had in this city than a few lines of classified advertising space in this newspaper.

GETTING BACK TO OUR BASE OF SUPPLIES.

Under the caption of "Getting Back to our Base of Supplies," in the Craftsman for June, a writer takes up the subject of the decline of agriculture and asserts that to restore it to its proper prestige in the country is a matter which is attracting the attention of many of the economists. It is the most important industry of them all and should be so regarded.

But now we are confronting the fact that we shall soon have 39,000,000 of people to support and that the price of foodstuffs of all kinds is almost prohibitive—not because the market is cornered by trusts or by stock gamblers in Wall street or by the Pitt, but because the sources of supply are too far removed from the commercial centers and production is insufficient for the needs of the population.

Such a state of affairs seems absurd in a country of such vast extent, where the natural resources are almost boundless, but nevertheless it exists, and it has been brought about largely by our own neglect and wastefulness. We have formed our population into a huge army which exists solely for commercial and industrial conquest, and each individual is so bent upon immediate gain that the larger necessities of providing sufficient supplies has been lost sight of.

This idea of the government's making its prosecution of the Bush case solely upon two witnesses, Hildebrand whose public and private character has long been under suspicion, and Krebs, who has no doubt profited more than anyone else by the timber-grabbing operations in Oregon, does not look good to the unprejudiced onlooker. Both of these men of dubious character secure absolute immunity from prosecution by testifying against others whose standing in public and private life was never before smirched, and there is a growing suspicion that the harder Hildebrand and Krebs swear, the clearer will become their title to freedom. This may be one way of enforcing the law, but there are so many ugly features about it that do not appeal to the desert sense of justice and fair play, even if it does mean the loss of a few dollars.

One of the most popular publications we have ever in a long time is a book published by the Southern Pacific and O. R. & N. railroads, and describes the many coast and mountain resorts of this state, and its many attractions of climate and scenery during the summer months. The illustrations and mechanical work of the publication are excellent and every page is interesting from cover to cover. The copy is complimentary to Eugene receives special mention, the attractions of Foley, Belknap and London Springs, and the McKenzie river, being called to the attention of the tourist. "Hot Springs in Oregon," should prove a splendid advertisement for the state.

Secretary W. L. Clissey of the Oregon State Dairy Association has ready for circulation the report of that body for the past year. It is very much the most comprehensive report which has appeared concerning any dairy meeting on the Pacific Coast, and Mr. Clissey will furnish a copy to everyone interested upon request. Oregon has grown wonderfully in fruit, agriculture and general industries, but dairying holds the record for greatest increase, dairy products having risen from $3,500,000 or $3,000,000 annually five years ago to $17,000,000 in 1907.

Things have finally come to a show-down with Castro, the head of the manly little republic of Venezuela, in South America, and at the present time it looks very much like he will get the sound thrashing that he has deserved so long. But let some of the European countries do the work. They are good and mad at the arbitrary methods employed by the upstart president and will take great pleasure in applying the slipper on a spot where it will do the most good.

The Salem Journal and some other newspapers that did their best to destroy the State University, now want to reconstruct it. The Guard simply offers the suggestion that whatever changes are necessary in the course of study and the management of the university they should be initiated by its friends.

Pendleton contractors should be ready to bid on every article of material to be used for the new federal building, remarks the East Oregonian. Good idea, but if Pendleton's federal building moves as slowly as Eugene's there is no use to get unduly excited about bidding on its construction for another year or two.

John D. Rockefeller has determined to publish the story of his life and it will appear as a serial in one of the New York magazines, beginning in October. Now if he does not reveal among other things the fabled hoof and horns, a lot of people in the country will be greatly disappointed.

An ardent Roosevelt-or-luster is out with an appeal to the Denver convention to make the ticket. Roosevelt

LATEST PORTRAIT OF MME. TETRAZZINI.

Mme. Tetrazzini has lately captivated London, repeating the triumphs at Covent Garden which marked her appearances there before she came to America. Paris critics refer to the spirit which has greeted her in the English capital as "enthusiastic enthusiasm." The famous singer is to be a member of the Manhattan Opera company again next season.

veit and Bryan, and the platform. "Sweep out the rich malefactors." Hot stuff, all right, but won't go for obvious reasons.

Every once in so often the people of this country are reminded that the circulation of revolutionary literature in the Philippines is the one industry in which the natives are industrious without being driven.

King Alfonso, of Spain, is a practical anti-race suicider—the queen last week presented him a second son, though he has been married only a few days more than two years. An Oyster Bay cablegram is due him, if he hasn't got it.

This duck Castro is surely in need of something for that chesty feeling. His latest debt to the world is: "Venezuela will remain impregnable while I live." And the fact that the Venezuelans let him keep on living indicates that they believe him.

When Ambassador Reid's English son-in-law gets the elevation to the peerage, said to have been promised him, Whiteclaw will find it harder than ever to mix with plebeian Americans, even if he was once a printer's "devil," in Ohio.

President Eliot of Harvard, is just conceited enough to believe that he can run the university without advice from other presidents, and does not hesitate to say so in everyday words. Somehow we like the old man's spirit.

As an epigram, the declaration that the office of vice-president is "a place with all the deprivations of a convent and none of the consolations of religion," may pass muster, but as a statement of fact it won't do at all.

After the example set by the republicans, it is neither strange nor surprising to find democratic statesmen strenuously declining second place on the ticket before it is offered to them.

A regular market day once a month would be a splendid thing. Now for the Fourth of July.
