What a Traveling Man Said

He spent Market Day and Sunday in Eugene and complained because he had not stayed in Albany where he said it was more quiet

One of the reasons why its so lively here is that many of those who contemplate building realize that now is the opportune time to begin, since building material has hardly ever been so reasonable in price, and probably never will be again. We surely hope not.

FIRST CLASS BASEBALL ON JULY FOURTH

Eugene will see first-class baseball at Recreation Park on July 4th, when the Campbell-Fellman team will meet the Springfield aggregation in the first league game of the season. The contest promises to be a close one and the fans will certainly get their money's worth. These teams played a 3-2 game last year in Eugene July 4 to a 1500 attendance.

For Springfield the battery will be Rankin & Lemly, backed up by a first class team, while the Campbell-Fellman team will place O'Brien in the box with Weed on the receiving end. Sid Smith will play second base and Murphy shortstop, and several other new players will be seen in Eugene uniform for the first time this season. The Eugene team has been practicing steadily all week and is now in the pink of condition for a first class game and reports from the mill city indicate that the team there is in better shape than for a long time past. All the weak spots in the Campbell-Fellman team have been weeded out and this assures a good game.

The home team will be particularly good at the bat this year. Weed, Moshberger and Smith are handling the stick as they never did before. In last week's game with Coburg in his first game of the season, O'Brien made six safe hits and scored four times, Leabo, in two innings, made two safe hits and Gaby got a hit every time at bat. This tends to show that Eugene ought to pull out an easy victory.

The grandstand has been scrubbed out and cleaned so no one's clothes will be soiled, while the grounds have been rolled and worked on all this week till they are in perfect condition and as fast as any in the state. Sunday Eugene plays Springfield at that place.

JUDKINS' POINT ROAD DANGEROUS TO TRAVEL

Complaint has been made that the wagon road around Judkins' point is dangerous, and that at any time a serious accident is likely to occur. The roadway, which is only about sixteen feet in width in places, is bordered on one side by a high and abrupt bank and on the other a bank which plunges steeply down toward the mill race. The road has a heavy and constant traffic, and since the electric railway has been constructed, automobiles are obliged to take the same road as the teams and vehicles.

Farmers' teams, which are accustomed to neither automobiles nor the street cars, which will soon be running, are likely to be frightened, and to cause an accident by plunging over the bank into the race below at any time.

To remedy the situation, suggestion has been made, that the road be widened considerably, even though the cost be great and that a strong railing be built on the outside, so that no team or horse could jump over or break down when frightened.

Judkin's point is the most congested outlet from Eugene. The Southern Pacific track runs around it on the highest level, the electric car track on the next, the wagon road on a lower, and the millrace and river still below that. The roads carry the chief travel between Springfield and Eugene.
