BOOTH RESTS CASE WITH JURY

On receipt of this information W. J. Burns, who was being held here to rebut the testimony of Booth, caught the midnight train for California and the government officers had to work most of the night arranging their data for presenting the case to the jury this morning.

Yesterday Afternoon.

United States Judge Wolverton yesterday denied the motion of the defense for an instructed verdict acquittal in the James Henry Booth bribery trial. The motion was proposed immediately after the government rested its case and alleged that the prosecution had not presented sufficient evidence to justify or sustain a verdict. After the jury had withdrawn, the application for a non-suit was argued at considerable length by Judge Becker and United States Attorney McCourt, for the Government, and Judge Webster and Mr. Malarky for the defense.

Following Judge Wolverton's ruling denying the motion, court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock until this morning.

Defense to Submit Case.

At a late hour last night it was decided by counsel for the defense that they will submit their case at the opening of court this morning. No evidence or testimony for the defense will be introduced, according to Dan J. Malarky, chief counsel for the defense, for the reason that the Government has failed to produce evidence that will convict their client. The prosecution closed its case yesterday, so it will go to the jury at once.

"We will offer no evidence or testimony," said Mr. Malarky last night, but will submit the case to the jury as it stands. We have decided upon this step because we are convinced that the jury cannot convict with the evidence that has been submitted."

May End All Cases.

United States Judge Wolverton yesterday discharged all jurors, except those serving in the James Henry Booth trial, for further attendance on the court this term. Judge Wolverton explained that this action was taken pending some arrangement for proceeding with the other cases awaiting trial.

It is generally believed, however, that the further prosecution of the
