"HE CUSSED," SAYS THE SCHOOL BOARD

R. W. SMITH'S CASE UP BEFORE STATE SUPERINTENDENT ACKERMAN—FROM NEAR JUNCTION.

Salem, Or., July 2.—R. W. Smith, a teacher in a public school near Junction City, who was expelled on a charge of using profane language, will have a hearing before Superintendent Ackerman at 1 o'clock today.

The state law provides that any teacher having a complaint may appeal to the county superintendent, and to the state superintendent if justice is not obtained. Smith appealed first to the superintendent of Lane county and won. It is the board of directors which expelled Smith that is appealing to Superintendent Ackerman. The case may reach the courts if neither side wishes to abide by the superintendent's decision.

The case was up before County Superintendent W. B. Dillard several weeks ago. The superintendent held that the evidence was not sufficient to dismiss Smith and reversed the decision of the school board.

KIDNAPPER ESCAPES PURSUING POSSE.

Coalinga, Cal., July 2.—Tony Loveall, the daring outlaw, who planned the sensational kidnaping of Miss Edna Domengine, which has aroused this whole section of the country, has eluded his pursuers and though sick, is holding up isolated families, forcing them to give him food and is carrying out a remarkable campaign which promises to rival that of Tracy, the famous bandit.

The posse surrounded him yesterday in a narrow valley and closed down as far as possible before nightfall. Then they had to wait. During the night Loveall passed out between the sentinels and escaped.

He seems to know every inch of the ground and is able to make his way with the speed and accuracy of an Indian. So rapidly does he change his course and shift his base of operations that the pursuers have little chance of capturing him until he is overcome with fatigue or hunger.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Eugene People are Requested To Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Eugene more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living elsewhere in the Union? Read this:

Charles Beadle of 333 West Eighth St., Eugene, Ore., says: "I am fully as ready to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills today as I was in 1906 just after using the remedy. As I said in my testimony at that time I had suffered from kidney complaint nearly always since the war. I never knew when to expect an attack. A cold would bring it on or any over-exertion. On several occasions I was helpless. The last severe attack I had was about six months ago when something like lumbago set in and brought on a heavy bearing down pain as if there was a weight over each kidney. I was bent over and could not straighten up to save me. There was such a weakness in the action of the kidneys that I could not control the secretions, and it caused me much annoyance. Having used several remedies, with little, if any benefit, I finally began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. The action of the kidneys and bladder was soon corrected and then the pains and aches disappeared. I was benefitted in every way and what I told in my former testimony about the relief I obtained is true in every respect. Three years have now elapsed since I testified in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills and I have been continually free from kidney complaint. I consider them a wonderful remedy and have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and again."

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY'S HOME IN GEORGETOWN

Historic House Where Part of "The Star Spangled Banner" Was Written.

A Fourth of July Sketch by Robert Donnell ✍ Copyright, 1908, by C. N. Lurie.

Of the shrines to which Americans go in patriotic reverence none is more sacred than the house which was the home of Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner." For some years funds have been accumulating in the hands of officials of a memorial association the purpose of which is to restore the old "Key mansion" and preserve it to posterity as one of the nation's shrines. The old dwelling stands close to the Potomac river in Washington in that part of the national capital which was called Georgetown until its consolidation with the greater city.

Francis Scott Key lived many years in this quaint old house. It is quite probable that within its walls or in the little annex adjoining, which he occupied as a law office, he wrote a part of his famous song. For many years the popular supposition has been that the poem was written while Key was aboard a British vessel of war in Chesapeake bay. The statement that he was a prisoner of war at the time has been published far and wide. Both these impressions are erroneous. The wording of the poem itself proves that the latter part of it was written at least some months after the event which evoked the glorious national lyric. Furthermore, the third stanza contains conclusive internal evidence that a good lawyer, such as Mr. Key is reputed to have been, did not write that part of the poem, at any rate, while he was in the enemy's custody.

During the conflict known in our history as the war of 1812, the year in which it began, the British ascended the Potomac, occupied the city of Washington, burned the national capitol, destroyed most wantonly many of our priceless documents and public treasures and then retreated down to salt water. That was in the summer of 1814. On their way back to their ships the enemy captured and carried away Dr. William Beans, a prominent citizen of the town of Marlboro, Md. Dr. Beans was held a prisoner on board one of the English vessels in Chesapeake bay.

Near the end of August a citizen of Upper Marlboro, William West, called at the office of Lawyer Key and engaged the attorney to use his efforts for the release of Dr. Beans. Key was a young man of thirty-five, with a lucrative practice and some little local reputation as a writer of verses. It was proposed that Key obtain the sanction of the American government to go out aboard the flagship of the British commander under a flag of truce and intercede for the imprisoned doctor. The lawyer obtained the necessary authority and started on his mission. He got aboard the ship at a critical time. The British were preparing to bombard Fort McHenry. Key succeeded in securing the release of Dr. Beans, but both he and the doctor were held aboard one of the vessels until the bombardment was over lest they reveal the British plans.

Key watched the bombardment from this highly interesting vantage point—

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that the flag was still there.

Then the poet-lawyer returned to the home which nearly a century later patriotic Americans propose to rescue from the low estate into which it has fallen with the advance of the Capital City. The little law office annex has been used as an Italian fruit and peanut vender's stand, while the end walls of the residence itself have been profaned with large, lurid and ludicrous letters advertising cheap groceries and other articles of trade not commonly regarded as poetic. In the lower front room a cobbler's shop has been installed.

The outer walls are two feet thick. Even the inside partitions carry a width of eighteen inches of brick. In the days when that old house was really a mansion in comparison with the average dwelling of the period families of means built houses to stay built. It is said that there is enough brick in the big chimneys and fireplaces of the Key mansion to construct the walls of an ordinary brick house of the present day. There is still an aspect of old time elegance in the old house despite its outward shabbiness.

Washington antiquarians will point out to the visiting pilgrim the lower window at the front of the house, to the right, through which young Francis Scott Key, Jr., son of the songster, climbed with his fair girl cousin when the devoted pair ran away to be married.

The eloping pair had a large family of children, whose descendants live in Washington and other cities. Francis Scott Key Smith, a grandson, is secretary of the Memorial association which is to restore the "mansion."

THE OLD KEY MANSION, GEORGETOWN.

The Fourth of July For the World Republic.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

VOICE from the future is calling
The world to diviner estates,
A light on the present is falling
From some fuller splendor that waits—
A light like the glory supernal
O'er God's golden stairway that streamed
When Jacob, with glimpses eternal,
In Bethlehem dreamed.

A promise is heard in the nations,
A prophecy thrills through the earth,
That freedom brings new generations
Of equals and helpers to birth;
That each in the service of others,
By science and wisdom's increase,
Shall learn what it means to be brothers
Through ages of peace.

On all shall a new day be risen,
With justice the sunshine thereof,
And man shall go forth from his prison,
Made free by the angel of Love.
The glow from these dawns unclouded
Of happier eras to be
Falls most with its refluence golden,
My country, on thee.

UNTIL EVERY SHACKLE IS BROKEN.

By thee Freedom's word was first spoken.
Thy hand wrote the gospel of man.
Until every shackle is broken
Thy place shall be yet in the van.
Go on till in union are blended
All nations and isles of the sea.
Thy mission shall never be ended
Till all men are free.

'TIS LIBERTY'S DAY.

The day of thy glad jubilations,
Of thine and of Liberty's birth,
Shall yet be observed by the nations,
Till heaven shall come on the earth.
Till all men with luminous faces
Shall send up the reverent cry,
'Tis Liberty's day for all races—
The Fourth of July!
