Sylvestre E. Smith.
Robust Health Ruined.
SYLVESTER E. SMITH, Room 3, Granite Block, St. Louis, Mo., says: "Peruna is the best friend a man can have."
"I was here in a condition of exposure and had ruined my once robust health. I had contracted bronchial affections of the bronchial tubes, and for a time there was no hope for my recovery. My doctor advised me to take Peruna, which I did and in time my health began to improve rapidly, the bronchial affections gradually disappeared, and in a few weeks my health was fully restored."
"A grateful man thanks for a medicine to perfect health."

DENVER, A MILE HIGH. This may be one reason why the delegates, alternates and others attending the Democratic national convention which meets here July 7 may expect a high time. A tablet on the side of a building in the Colorado metropolis sets forth the interesting fact that the altitude at that point is exactly one mile above sea level. Never before has a national political convention elected to hold itself so high up in the world, and never before has such a convention been held so far to the westward. In 1900 the Democratic national convention met in Kansas City, that being until the present year "farthest west" for all national nominating conventions.

Denver is pardonably proud of its distinction in securing this great convention, where will assemble 1,008 delegates from all the states and territories to nominate candidates for the emptied of its human throng. As to ventilation, the Denver Auditorium seems to surpass every known predecessor, for it has two great fans, each ten feet in diameter, midway in the house, to send cold air through the building, while there is an exhaust fan to eliminate the foul air. Each fan has a coil of 12,000 feet of pipe to be filled in summer with cold water, thus establishing a cooling plant, and to be filled with steam in winter, thus heating the building.

The Denver promoters, however, declare that the July climate is so pleasantly cool that every delegate will be able to sit comfortably in the hall with his coat on instead of being compelled, as at most conventions, to go "in shirt sleeves" and with a handkerchief under his collar.

Nothing in American life is so interesting, so dramatic, so full of thrills, as a national political convention. Denver fully realizes this fact and has determined to supply the delegates and the thousands of visitors to the convention of 1908 with an extra series of thrills. This being, as stated, the first time that the Rocky mountain plateau has had the privilege of entertaining a national body of such importance—of world importance, it may be said—Denver proposes to let slip no opportunity to prove to the rest of the United States that the city is a pretty good place to visit in the good old summer time. There are, first of all, the "Seelig

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT BLOOD HUMORS

The skin is not simply an outer covering of the body, but through its thousands of pores and glands it performs the great and necessary work of regulating our temperatures, and also assists in disposing of the refuse and waste matters of the system by the constant evaporation that goes on through these little tubes. To perform these duties the tissues and fibres which connect and surround the pores and glands must be continually nourished by pure blood. When from any cause the circulation becomes infected with impurities and humors, it loses its strengthening powers and begins to disease and irritate the delicate tissues, and produces Eczema, Acne, Tetter, or some other itching, disgusting skin trouble. S. S. S. cures skin diseases of every kind by going down into the circulation and neutralizing and removing the impurities and humors. It changes the quality of the blood from an acid, fiery fluid to a cooling, health-producing stream, which, instead of irritating and inflaming the skin, cures and nourishes it by its soothing, healthful qualities. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may be used for any temporary comfort or cleanliness they afford, but skin diseases cannot be cured until S. S. S. has purified the blood.
