MOVEMENT IN HAY HAS FAIRLY STARTED.

Portland, Or. July 16.—The movement of new crop hay has started in this state, a shipment of 200 tons of Valley Timothy, the first of the season, having just been brought to the city. This hay is now selling here at prices around $15 a ton and the indications are that present quotations will be maintained. Large consignments of cheat from Valley points are expected next week. This will probably sell at about $12 a ton.

Of the outlook for the hay market this fall, E. L. Cooper, one of the leading dealers of this city, said today:

"There is still a little old crop hay on hand, but the quantity is not great. Stocks are about as well cleaned up as for several years past, and the prospect for the new crop movement, which will soon be well under way, is rather encouraging. We are confident, despite the fact that the output will be heavy this year, that good hay will bring good prices."

"We look for a much better demand the latter half of the year than the first six months, and if the growers will exercise some judgment in the marketing of the crop they can count on fair prices for their products. With the market a bit unsettled, as it has been for some time, over-large shipments would naturally have a ruinous effect. Our advice to the farmers at this time would be to be careful in the curing and baling of their hay and ship the stuff in sparingly, for the present at least."

"There is always a good demand for No. 1 hay, and it is this sort that yields a profit to the producer. For years past it has been more or less general for growers operating on worn-out fields, to put up hay that is half weeds and orchard grass and then dump the stuff on the market expecting top prices for the product. Hay men will learn in time that they cannot go on indefinitely cutting meadows that are worn out so far as hay production is concerned. Crop rotation is as necessary here as anywhere else."

"The chances are that a good deal of this sort of hay will be sent to the market this year, and it will probably sell at prices under $10 a ton. If the farmers do not get what they consider a fair valuation of the stuff they have only themselves to blame. There has in recent years been too much carelessness in some parts of the country in the cutting, curing and marketing of hay."

"The Valley timothy crop this year will be a heavy one, and the yield of cheat promises to be about double the size of that of last year. The Valley clover crop will be about the average of several years past. A new factor in the Valley this year is alfalfa, the growing of which has proven a success there. This hay will have to compete with Eastern Oregon and Idaho alfalfa, and it is expected that it will sell here for about $19 a ton. In Eastern Oregon and Idaho the hay crop generally will be large."

The Hop Situation.

The hop market is gradually showing an improved tone. There is a demand for both old and new hops at this time, but to date buyers have shown no disposition to force any advance in price.

A 10c contract market for the coming crop has been fully established during the past 24 hours and there is every indication that it will not be long before the contract market will touch even a higher figure—probably 12 cents a pound.

Today there is scarcely a local hop dealer remaining in the city, most of them being in the country trying to purchase the few remaining bales of old hops at prices that range from 5c a pound downward, mostly downward however, for it takes something select in the way of quality to bring the top figure.

With only a nominal number of bales of 1907 hops remaining in the hands of producers, the trade is showing a disposition to clean them up and growers are not disposed to hold longer. No matter what the future of the market may bring forth it is generally conceded by the trade that hops are cheap at the present time and hence the dealers' anxiety to buy.

During the past few days there have been a number of sales between dealers for the remaining 1907 hops. It is reported that a number of small orders are on hand from both domestic and foreign buyers and practically every large dealer has some business in sight—so he can secure the hops.

The fact that the crop of Europe promises well does not alter the trade from loading up with all the old hops it can find at loss-producing values. There is still plenty of time for the European yards to be severely damaged—in fact most of the damage usually incurred in the English yards comes during the present month.

More Careful About Contracts.

Both dealers and growers are getting to take more care when making contracts for future crops. In former times it was the rule for dealers of one class to violate their contracts whenever the market went below the figures the paper called for. On several occasions in late years dealers who have tried to sidestep their obligations were taken to court and the decisions were generally in favor of the producer. Contracts are now made these days and there is talk among the large growers of taking into court any rejected contract when the quality is up to expectations and the only excuse for the dealers' refusal to pay the contract price was a lower market at the time of delivery.

Dealers realize as do the brewers that unless they put the market to a test where harvesting is profitable to producers, the growers will not pick any hops. By depressing the market too far they would kill the industry and cause enormous values to rule after a while as they did recently in barley.

An international reunion of brewers, hop dealers and barley dealers has been called for the near future in Germany and it is stated that a number of important measures before the brewing world will be thoroughly discussed and relief obtained if possible. It is likely that some of the larger dealers of this country will attend.

Wheat Market Statistics.

Bradstreet's report shows a wheat decrease of 4,691,000 bushels last week. Last year 3,218,000 bushels. Total American wheat visible supply today, 18,850,000 bushels; year ago, 63,357,000; decrease, 44,507,000 bushels.

World's visible wheat supply today, 74,550,000 bushels; year ago, 130,567,000 bushels; decrease, 56,017,000 bushels.

Chicago Wheat Market.

	Open	Close	Jul 13	Loss
July	90 1/4	91 1/4	91 1/4	1/4
Sept.	91 1/4	91 1/4	91 1/4	1/4
Dec.	92 1/4	93 1/4	93 1/4	1/4
May	96 1/4	97 1/4	97 1/4	1/4

Chicago, July 15.—All things considered, the local wheat market was very firm today, considering the heavy arrivals and the heavy advance of yesterday. Today's trading was sensational.

Liverpool proved a very erratic market today, opening 1/4 to 5/8 higher, but at 1:30 was unchanged to a fraction under yesterday. Toward the close it recovered its strength and was unchanged at 1/4 above yesterday's final.

The heavy decrease in the world's, as well as American, visible supply as given by Bradstreet was a help toward bringing the local market back toward yesterday's close after an early drop of 1c.

Salmon Situation

The canned salmon situation, so far as the Columbia river output is concerned, looks better than it has for three or four years past. It was feared in the spring that the season would be a failure; as not enough fish were caught in the first few weeks to make any kind of a showing, but of late the run has been exceedingly heavy. That the river has not been fished out is evident.

The heavy run began about ten days ago, and more fish were caught than in any similar period for two years past. Monday and yesterday the run slackened somewhat, as a result of the full moon tides, but a heavy catch is looked for again next week. Last week the canners had all they could attend to in handling the fish brought to their establishments.

The canners not only recovered the lost ground, but the pack up to the present time is 20 per cent ahead of the pack at this time a year ago. There is every reason to believe that a good average pack will be the result of the season's work on the river. The canners are practically all sold on the 1908 output.

The feature of the general salmon situation as reported in the latest Eastern advices is the strong inquiry for spot red Alaska fish for shipment to England. There has been a distinct improvement in the demand at Liverpool, owing to favorable weather conditions, and prices have advanced 1c per case.

Fruit Market

Buying was generally on a smaller scale, and as supplies were liberal there was more or less weakness in some lines in the fruit market yesterday. This was particularly the case with loganberries, which declined to 60@75 cents per case.

Among the receipts was a straight car of fancy Crawford peaches, which were quoted at 90 cents per box. A shipment of fine Wenatchee apricots arrived and sold at $1.50 per crate. The steamer also brought up a large shipment of California apricots in orchard boxes, which were offered at $1.50 per box. They are of good canning quality and cheap.

Two cars of cantaloupes were received and the best were firm at $2.25. No watermelons arrived, but three cars are due today and one or two tomorrow. Bananas are due on Thursday.

Portland Livestock.

Portland Union Stockyards, July 15.—With no hogs in the market during the past 24 hours, a firmer tone is shown in the local yards, and today best stuff is firmly held at $6.50, or 10 cents up from the low mark of yesterday.

The cattle market is still quite dull but quality is improving and top steers are being taken at $4.

Quite heavy arrivals are continued in the sheep market, and this caused a further decline in values for the day. Packers and killers say it is time for sheep to drop—and down they go. Wethers dropped from $3.50 to $3, but lambs and straight ewes were unchanged, the former at $1.50 and the latter at $4. The price of mixed lots is showing a range from $1 to $2.25, instead of only the higher figure, as on yesterday's market.

Today 23 horses were among the arrivals.

A year ago all lines were easy with unchanged values.

Official yard prices:

Hogs—Best stuff, $9.35 @ $10.50;

blockers and China rats, $6 @ $6.25;

stockers and feeders, $5.50.

Cattle—Best Eastern Oregon steers, $4; medium steers, $3.25 @ $3.50; medium cows, $2.25 @ $2.50; bulls and stags, $2 @ $2.50.

Sheep—Best wethers, $3.25; spring lambs, $4.50; straight ewes, $3; mixed lots, $3 @ $3.25.

Portland Market Briefs

Strictly local fresh eggs are so scarce that some dealers are obtaining as high as 25c a dozen.

Spring chickens are very firm but there is a disposition to weaken in the demand for hens. Thus far no change in values.

Crawford peaches from California are now in good supply with sales at $1 a box. Ordinary grades at 75c and 85c.

Two cars of "cents" arrived in this morning. Demand excellent with price very firm.

Watermelon market is firm at 2c for loose lots and 2 1/2c crated.

California tomatoes are in larger supply and the price is going a notch.

Hothouse lettuce is finding a demand around 25c a dozen for good quality.

While but nominal supplies of marketable old potatoes are shown, trade is quite fair considering the time of season.

Berry market is holding steady at yesterday's values.

Cheese market is firmer at yesterday's advances.
