PROHIS NAME CHAFIN AND WATKINS TO LEAD

Columbus, O., July 17.—For president, Eugene W. Chafin, of Chicago.

For vice president, Aaron S. Watkins, of Ada, Ohio.

The above ticket was nominated today by the Prohibition National convention, both men being chosen unanimously. The full endorsement of the convention, however, was not given to Mr. Chafin until after three ballots had been taken.

On the first two ballots Mr. Chafin did not show a great deal of strength, receiving but 195 out of 1083 votes on the first and 376 out of 1087 on the second ballot. His nomination was practically assured, however, when the roll call began for the third ballot. His own state, which had voted largely for Daniel R. Shoen, of Peoria, Ill., and the New York delegation, followed by those of Indiana and Wisconsin, came over to Mr. Chafin and on the third ballot he received a total of 636 votes.

The strongest competitor of Mr. Chafin was Rev. William B. Palmore, of St. Louis, who received 274 votes on the first ballot and 418 on the second ballot, and a comparatively small vote after it was evident that the nomination of Mr. Chafin could not be prevented.

Tangle Over Vice Presidency
The convention up to this time had run smoothly and without the slightest friction. It was decided to make Mr. Palmore the vice presidential nominee and he was named by acclamation. He declined to accept the nomination, however, and persisted in his attitude despite the strong urgings of his friends.

The convention, finding itself confronted with the necessity of naming another vice presidential candidate and many of the delegates, being anxious to catch the early night train for their homes, became involved in a deep parliamentary tangle. The rules were several times suspended and the suspensions immediately revoked. Finally it was decided that Professor Aaron A. Watkins, of Ada, Ohio, should be named by acclamation.

MOTHER'S BAKING DAY.
I was dozing in my armchair with a book upon my knees. While through the open window came sweet summer melodies—The sound of many song birds and the humming of the bees:

And the breath of June's red roses drifted with the summer wind—(Now I love the scent of roses and the wandering breeze was kind. And he bare his lovely burden till he found my half-closed blind.)

In the culinary region underneath, I thought I heard,
No wand then, its clever goddess as about her work she stirred;
And I caught the sound of singing though I understood no word.

Now I wonder if you've noticed as you've gone along life's way,
How some odor will bring suddenly to mind a certain day,
Or a scene, of pain or pleasure, which till then forgotten lay?

As I dozed within my armchair came my friend the summer breeze—
Came and stirred the leaves of that old book that lay upon my knee;
Then he whispered, told me gently, "Here's something that will please."

'Twas the smell of ginger cookies from the regions down below!
And my thought went back to childhood as an arrow from a bow,
And I stood in mother's kitchen in the years of long ago.
With her sleeves above her elbows and her hair all tidied back,
(She used to say a frowsy-headed girl was always slack)
She would spend the half of Saturday in baking up a stack.

Of cookies, bread and doughnuts, pies and puddings, Johnny cake
Oh I cannot call to mind the half the things she used to make,
But I know I always liked to stay around and watch her bake.

And I'm sure I must have bothered her, for oft I've heard her wish,
"I wouldn't get right under foot, then with a sudden sh—"
She drove me out (but afterwards she let me lick the dish).

'Twas fun to watch her mix the dough and use the rolling pin;
And when she had it all rolled out, (I always thought too thin.)
To see her cut out cookies with a heart shaped cookie tin.

And how I teased to have what's left to make a cookie man!
And what a time I had to get him safely in the pan.
And when I had him baked he looked just like a palm leaf fan.

As still I dreamed of baking days in which I'd taken part,
I was suddenly awakened from my dreaming with a start,
And there stood the kitchen goddess with a fresh baked cookie heart.

Now I wonder if you've noticed as you've passed along life's ways
How the smell of something baking on the moment seemed to raise
A long forgotten memory of your mother's cooking days?

CHARM OF THE MEAL TICKET.

Eating in a restaurant
Morning, noon and night,
Going to a public place
After every bite—
Say, it grows monotonous,
And if you don't try it,
When the folks are all away
For a change just try it.

Waitress with a pleasant smile
And a manner free,
Ambles to your chair to say,
"What's it going to be?"
When you've picked the things you want
She cuts off her chat—
Goes, but soon returns and says,
"We're just out of that."

Then you study out the bill,
While behind your chair
She leans over to remark,
"This is pretty fair."
So you let her pick it out,
Entrees, soup and game,
For you know it's all alike—
Nothing in a name.

How you weary of the truck,
Roast and lusk and stew,
That the waitress every day
Carries on to you—
Sometimes, when it's very bad,
Wish that you were dead!
Just about two years of it
Drives a man to wed.

A Mean Trick.

In his home city they tell a sad story of a mean trick on a pawnbroker. He was enjoying a beauty sleep when a furious knocking at the street door brought him to the window with a jerk.

"What's the matter?" he shouted.
"Come down," demanded the knock-

er.
"But—"
"Come down."
The man of many nephews hastened downstairs and peeped around the door. "Now, sir," the pawnbroker demanded.

"I wan'sh know the time," said the reveler.
"Do you mean to say you knocked me up for that? How dare you?"
The midnight visitor looked injured. "Well, you've got my watch," he said.

Bluebeard.

"Bluebeard" originated in France and was called the "Romance of the Chevalier Raoul," the historic figure being a certain Gilles de Laval, lord of Rais. He was marshal of France in 1429 and though a brave and fearless soldier was addicted to vice and violence, and from this fact was charged with the wholesale murder of young women, whose blood he used for the purpose of diabolical incantations. From these circumstances the web of the story is spun.

A Fugitive Bit.

"Lend me a pencil," said the press humorist.
"Thought of something funny?"
"No, but I've thought of something that will pass muster as a joke."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Setting Him Right.

He—Tell me, confidentially, how much did the bonnet cost you?
She—George, there is but one way in which you can obtain the right to inspect my millinery bills.
He popped.

Between Friends.

Nan—Did you notice how dreadfully that piano needed tuning? Fan—Why, no, dear; I thought it harmonized perfectly with your voice.—Chicago Tribune.

There is no tyrant like custom and no freedom where its edicts are not resisted.—Bovee.

Strange Uses For Churches.

There are cases innumerable of churches being used during England's civil war to accommodate the horses of one or another regiment of the opposing troops. Dedham church still shows traces of Puritan vandalism in the mutilated sculpture. The oak door, at one time elaborately decorated with small carved figures of saints, now shows the figures without their heads. And there is the famous case of Notre Dame at Paris, which during the days of the Revolution was converted into a "temple of reason," with its goddess, a ballet dancer, enthroned on a mound in the midst of the choir.—Strand Magazine.

As Bait.

Mrs. A. (over phone)—Can you send me up a cook today, Mr. Dwyer? Head of Intelligence Office—Sorry I can't accommodate you, Mrs. A., but we have only one in the office. Mrs. A.—But why mayn't I have her? Head of Intelligence Office—Oh, we have to keep her as a sample!—Harper's Weekly.

Trapped.

He was telling her about the members of his cricket team. "Now, there's Brown," said he, "in a few weeks' time he'll be our best man."
"Oh, Jack," she gushed, "what a nice way to ask me!"—London Judy.

Hopeless.

"He's no good at an argument, is he? Not at all convincing?"
"Well, I should say not. Why, that man couldn't convince a woman that she was pretty!"—Cleveland Leader.

Value of Humor.

The man who becomes a humorist is the man who contrives to retain a certain childlike zest and freshness of mind side by side with a large and tender tolerance.—Cornhill Magazine.

The greatest trust between man and man is the trust of giving counsel.—Bacon.

LOWELL NOTES

(Special Correspondence.)
Lowell, July 15.—A great many people are crossing the mountains now, making for Eastern Oregon and going to the Kilton Springs.

Last week four boys passed Lowell bound for Eastern Oregon horseback, and two of the boys were phoned for and overtaken by their parents and turned back. They were all minors and were hunting new pastures in which to sow their wild oats.

The railroad surveys are well reinforcing and making preliminary surveys. They will strike the right route soon, as they are cutting close to the required grade.

W. F. Gilstrap and F. R. Wetherbee, of Eugene, passed Lowell on a fishing and pleasure trip up the Middle Fork, taking in the sights and wonders of the mountains.

Grant Hyland and Clarence McEee are pushing their barns to completion at a rapid rate, as hay-cutting time is here and they will soon be needed to store away their hay and grain.

An electric storm passed over Lowell on the 13th, and a heavy shower of rain followed, which was a great help to late potatoes and growing vegetation of all kinds. Above Rush Island it is said two inches of rain fell in two hours. There was no damage done.

The government phone line from Lowell to Hazel Dell is being put up, and it will soon be "Hello, Hazel Dell." Next will be the foot of the locomotive.

A. R. Black, of Eugene, has a force of men constructing a first-class trail to Waldo Lake.

The farmers are busy making hay, which is good.
