cessfully shoulder to shoulder with men, given the opportunity, and are looking to themselves, for a wonder, to see if the explanation lies within.

"Woman has failed to 'make good' her pretensions to consideration as an independent leader and thinker in the professions and in business. Almost nowhere in the high places do we find women. Very few are they among the physicians of note, few among lawyers and few as executive heads of colleges or holders of professional chairs, few among the ranks of editors. And in the teaching and newspaper fields they have had great opportunities, whatever may be the case today."

"Little Joe" Brown, of Georgia, believes the newspaper is mightier than the megaphone; also that spellbinders sometimes blind themselves. He couldn't make a speech to save himself, but he'll be governor all the same, having defeated the redoubtable Hoke Smith in the Democratic primaries.

Eugene is building faster this year than ever before in its history. Next year will surpass the present, however, of The Guard will miss its guess a mile wide. You might paste this prediction in your hat for future reference.

With a great cereal crop throughout the country, plenty of money in the banks to move it with, and a steadily rising market, even a presidential campaign should create little disturbance in business conditions.

How's this for treason? A Georgian writes for publication: "Reform has had its false whiskers torn off. It stands revealed for the worthless scarecrow it is." But that fellow is in cahoots with a moonshiner.

In announcing his retirement from politics, which he was really never in, perhaps John Hays Hammond was only trying to head off a call from the campaign collector. Oh, fie, John; you ought to chip in.

The late Grover Cleveland was once asked what was the hardest thing he had to do as president. "To retain my self-respect and keep on speaking terms with the political bosses," he replied.

There are charity "workers" in England, as well as on this side. One London institution, recently investigated, was found to have a force of paid officials numbering forty more than its inmates.

When freely expressed, without manipulation, the voice of the people is seldom wrong. It is the faked voice that sometimes bamboozles the careless observer.

A salon of poetry is to be established by the French government. Most editors in this country have one which they would gladly dispose of.

More wheat will be harvested in Lane county this year than for many seasons past. And best of all, the market is steadily moving upward.

New York City and Albany, Oregon, still have street cars propelled by horse-power.

MARION AND POLK COUNTY GROWERS TO DRY CHERRIES

Salem, Or., July 22.—The anxiety of growers regarding the future of the cherry and loganberry industry in this valley, caused by the dull market for these products this year, has been allayed to some extent by the favor with which the drying process is being received and the extent to which it is being practiced.

Several large growers in Marion and Polk counties are drying large quantities of loganberries and experiments in drying cherries. A representative of McClure, Kilton & Company was up from Portland today for a conference with local fruit men. He states that there is a good market for dried cherries, and there is a belief here that the drying plan may solve the market problem.

DON'TS—FOUR OF THEM.

Don't get out of your bed in the morning and go immediately to the window and "breathe deep twenty times" or ten times. Don't stand at all in front of the window just then.

Why? Because while you have been sleeping your blood has withdrawn itself from the skin surfaces and your nerve forces have concentrated themselves at inside centers. If you expose yourself under these conditions, unless you are very strong and robust, you are likely to catch your "death of cold."

Don't take a cold bath the first thing in the morning after you arise.

Why? For like reasons—your blood is not in the surface. It has not been needed there. The bedclothes have kept the skin warm. And a cold plunge at this time, unless you are quite strong, will do you more harm than good. If you take a cold bath immediately after brisk physical exercise, which brings the blood to the outside, or if you take a cold bath following a hot bath, which produces the same effect, you may get some benefit.

Don't drink a glass of cold water as soon as you get out of bed. If you drink anything before breakfast, take a little sip or two of hot water.

Why? Because the stomach is not ready to do business before breakfast. The blood is withdrawn. If you douche it with cold water at such a time, you chill that organ and derange its functions; also, if you pour a lot of hot water into it, you wash out the gastric juices and impede digestion.

Don't take violent exercise before breakfast nor immediately following.

Why? Because your vital forces before breakfast are low and need recuperating from within. After breakfast the processes of digestion should not be interfered with until the stomach gets a chance to begin operations.

But you say—These don't contravene popular beliefs in some respects and the advice of "health magazines" in others. That may be true, but popular opinions may be wrong, and health magazines are not infallible.

We have gathered these truths from a hygienist who has given these matters a lifetime study. In his field he is a good authority.
