MINISTER FAVORS MODIFIED FORM OF PROHIBITION

REV. MR. LEE, SALEM PASTOR, WOULD HAVE BEER SOLD, BUT PROHIBIT WHISKEY — MARION COUNTY HOP DEALER PROMOTES SENTIMENT FOR NEW SCHEME

Salem, Or., July 24.—While he disclaimed any intention to take sides for or against distilled liquors, as compared to fermented, at the meeting to discuss whiskey vs. beer, called by Conrad Krebs tonight, Rev. Barr G. Lee, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, admitted that he is in favor of temperance, and that temperance, in his opinion, consists of restriction and regulation.

He favored plate glass fronts for saloons from top to bottom, the elimination of the dive and the back room, separate places for the sale of malt liquors, and the full and free compliance with the laws by the saloon-keepers. Rev. Mr. Lee expressed the opinion that the time has not come and may never come when absolute prohibition can be enforced. He said that he thought the men behind the present movement are, on general principles, on the right track.

Conrad Krebs made a witty little talk which captured the audience of nearly 1000 people. He said that "all we want is a fair deal—we want the local option law amended so that we will have a chance to vote separately on fermented and distilled liquors. We believe that if the people have a chance to vote whiskey out of business and retain beer, every county in the state will elect to sell beer and not one to sell whiskey."

The speaker referred to conditions in Germany, where, he said, everybody drinks and nobody gets drunk, and advocated giving American babies more beer and less milk. Colonel Hofer referred to the relation of the sale of beer to the future of the hop industry and urged that beer be retained.

Repeated calls for prominent prohibitionists in the audience remained unanswered.

The Lighter Side

"The late Duke of Devonshire," said a diplomat at a Washington dinner, kept a stud and took a calm and dignified interest in the race.

There was a certain sporting paper that kept a large staff of prophets and always prophesied the outcome of important races. The duke, for some reason, put great reliance in these prophets and their prophecies. He always read the paper, and he continually recommended it to his friends.

"But once at Goodwood, at the day's end, a man came up to the duke and said:

"What of your paper, now? Did you see it this morning. Six prophets prophesied that six different horses would win, and here only seven ran, and the winner was the seventh, which no prophet selected. What do you have to say, now?"

"All I have to say," the duke answered calmly, "is there's room for another prophet on that paper."

"Mamma, did you ever notice how Uncle Jasper eats?"

"No dear; it is impolite to watch your uncle while he is eating."

"But you don't have to watch him mamma. You can hear him eat."

The Wrong One.
Lady—I'm looking for a governess for my children.
Manager of Intelligence Office—Didn't we supply you with one last week?

"Yes."

"Well, madam, according to her report, you don't need a governess. You need a lion-tamer."—Life.

"Justin," said Mrs. Wynn.
"Yes," replied Mr. Wynn.
"Will you speak a kind word to Fido and make him wag his tail? He hasn't had one bit of exercise all day."

A Lottery for Dolly.
Margie was industriously sewing for her doll, when she suddenly stopped work and turned to her mother.

"Oh mamma, what do you think?" she exclaimed.
"What is the trouble, dearie?" asked the mother.

"I started to make my doll a bonnet," explained Margie, "and I do believe it's going to come out an apron!"

"Is it all right, boss, to take a chicken in your hands when eatin' it?" asked Sam.

"Well, Sam," replied the boss, with a suspicious look, "if it's your chicken."

"Mother, may I go out to fly?"

"Yes, my darling daughter. Don't go more than two miles high and do go over the water."—Life.

Light Ahead.
A sailor the other day in describing the efforts of a youth to become nautical, said that just at the close of a dark night the lad was out aloft to try if he could see a light.

As he was no great favorite with the lieutenant, he was not hailed for some time; in fact, dawn was beginning to break when "Aloft there!" at length was heard from the lieutenant.

"Aye, aye, sir."

"Do you see a light?"

"Yes, sir."

"What light?"

"Daylight, sir."

Tommie—Yes ma'am; I use the brush to keep the comb stuck in.

ASTIGMATISM.

The Cure of The Eyes By Dr. Francis Lucille Hard.

1. Object looked at.
2. Ray of light.
3. Crystalline Lens.
4. Picture of object on retina.

Astigmatism is a condition which is greatly misunderstood by most people. It is thought to be many things, from something growing over the eyes to the eyes turning in or out. But these are all far from correct.

Instead of astigmatism being a disease of the eye it is an error of Refraction, that is, the rays of light coming from an object looked at do not focus evenly upon the retina, and so cause the object to appear more or less distorted.

In astigmatism the seat of the trouble lies either in the cornea or the crystalline lens. Both of these have a high degree of curvature and in order that the rays of light may pass through them equally in all meridians, must be curved alike all over. But this is not so in many eyes. Either the cornea or the lens curving more in one direction than in the other. This causes the most violent symptoms, such as severe headaches, nausea, dizziness and all the symptoms caused by eye-strain. Many a poor stomach has been dosed with drugs for indigestion, etc. when it was not to blame at all, and a pair of correctly fitted glasses would have relieved all the symptoms. Of course we not saying that all deranged stomachs come from eye-troubles but a large percentage of them do, than is generally known.

Astigmatism requires the most careful attention of the Eye Specialist, because unless the glasses are just right the troubles will be aggravated instead of relieved as should be the case.

Glasses should always set straight on the face, but especially so in astigmatism. The astigmatic lens is not alike in all directions, but is especially ground to fit the curvature of each individual eye. And so if tilted they will be thrown out of adjustment, the rays of light will not enter the eye correctly and the glass might just as well not be worn for the amount of good they will do.
