cerns in the state should be forced to face the music also, as there is a growing suspicion that the milling industry has been quite profitable in the Northwest during the past ten years. If the object of the prosecution is, as Judge Becker stated, to show that the Booth-Kelly Co. acquired a considerable acreage of land illegally, then poor judgment must have been used in the selection of the Agee case as an example.

Judge Taft today informed the notification committee that he would accept the Republican presidential nomination, and, strange to say, there were no evidences of surprise given by the gentlemen who bore the tidings to him. The Guard believes it violates no confidence in forecasting with the most positive assurance that Colonel Bryan will also accept his party's leadership when the news that he has been called is gently but firmly broken to him.

The formal speech of acceptance of Candidate Taft is apparently designed to reassure the big corporate interests of the country. That is its tone in almost every paragraph, as will be seen in its perusal in today's Guard. Reference to "lawful" trusts harks back to the days of Mark Hanna, when there were "good" trusts and "bad" trusts, most of the big combines, however, having the O. K. of the administration.

The Portland Journal calls attention to the fact that the banks of Oregon are holding too much money on hand; that some of the largest of these institutions have 50 per cent or more of their total deposits in their vaults, when it ought to be in circulation. Business would be better and new enterprises would be launched if the large reserves held by the banks were allowed to go into circulation.

Here's consolation for the victims of the mad dog scare. A New Jersey dog-catcher has been bitten 3,000 times by dogs, one of which was Pasteur to have hydrophobia, and the Pasteur experts can find no traces of rabies. The man himself does not believe that animals can communicate the disease to man by biting.

The Standard Oil decision will no doubt, as the Oregonian says, make thousands of votes for Bryan, but it will also swell the Taft campaign fund by hundreds of thousands of dollars. The trusts will not now hold their purse strings so tightly since they realize that their grip upon the country is as strong as ever.

This thing of inviting a fellow to spend a quiet evening at a friend's house and then turning loose on him a phonograph loaded to the muzzle with political speeches is going to break up life-long friendships, if it doesn't increase the number of homicides.

That District of Columbia man was going some, considering that he has no vote, when he figured that 27 states, casting 326 electoral votes, would be carried by Bryan. He may conclude before election to make it unanimous.

Everywhere you go over our state you hear Eugene spoken of as the "best town in the valley." Its growing importance is more generally recognized than that of any other place in the Northwest.

A Virginia girl died the other day just after eating a plate of ice cream, but men who do not care to be called tightwads would rather not refer to the incident before their girl friends.

For a man who is not a politician Governor Hughes surely does manage to keep the politicians aguessing. Just now, it is, how he stands with Mr. Taft, and vice versa.

Hearst isn't likely to get elected to anything, but signs are aplenty that he is going to be the most "cussed" man in the country 'ere the idea of November roll around.

Oregon boys made a good showing at the Olympic games—but that was to be expected. Oregon against the world.

Standard apparently controls, not the oil supply alone, but a job lot assortment of Judges as well.

"THIS IS MY 40TH BIRTHDAY" Mary Anderson de Navarro, the American actress who retired from the stage when at the zenith of her popularity and fame, was born July 28, 1869, at Sacramento, Cal. Her father was an Englishman and her mother of German descent. Her girlhood was passed in Louisville, where she was educated in the Ursuline Academy. In her sixteenth year she met Charlotte Cushman in Cincinnati and to her confided her ambition to go on the stage. From the celebrated actress she received encouragement and after less than a year of study she made her debut at McCallie's Theatre in Louisville. The date was November 27, 1875. Her Juliet was enthusiastically received by a large audience. A year later she went to New York, where she won immediate popularity in "The Lady of Lyons." Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE. Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

"THE HARVARD STOOP" Dr. J. E. Goldthwait of Boston declares that deep trousers pockets are more dangerous to young men than French heels or tight laced corsets to young women. What? Ever see that stoop? They call it the Harvard stoop in and about Boston, but it prevails everywhere. Note the stooping, lounging pose of the young collegian or young man about town. He doesn't seem to know what to do with his hands. So he jams them down into his deep trousers pockets as far as he can thrust them. Note the enforced curvature of his spine. His backbone is a curve of beauty, and his shoulders droop out of all proportion. The stoop may be picturesque in the eyes of the girls, but it is not at all conducive to good health or a manly carriage. Therefore the Boston doctor prescribes shallow trousers pockets when one of these young men comes to him for treatment. He says it is a case for the tailor rather than for the doctor. The stoop is fashionable. Therefore it is popular. The average young fellow is a close copyist of the manners and poses of his set. Because "all the fellows" push up their coats behind when putting their hands in their trousers pockets instead of pushing back the coat from the front, as was the universal custom when we were boys, every young man must perforce push up his coat from behind. The only way to cure the average young man of this custom of hunching his coat up from behind is to start some new way of doing the act. The only way to save young men from the health destroying "Harvard stoop" is to make it unfashionable. When it becomes "the think" for young men to stand up and throw their shoulders back, as they are compelled to do in the military schools, then, and not till then, will the "Harvard stoop" become obsolete. Beneath the rule of men entirely great the college tailor is mightier than the director of the college gymnasium. Because your young American is bound to be in the swim
