SITUATED close to the city limits on the Southwest—only a short distance beyond the Fair Grounds. It adjoins the large tract purchased by J. O. Storey, president of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern R. R., which indicates that it will be in close proximity to the electric road system in the near future. It is bounded by a county road on two sides, and lies beautifully, sloping gently to the northwest, which gives it perfect drainage.

WELCH MAY BUILD ELECTRIC LINE AT MEDFORD

Fred J. Blakely, of Roseburg, will at the next council meeting apply for a franchise for a trolley line in Medford, says the Tribune. At the same time he will apply for one in Ashland and one in Jacksonville. It is the intention eventually to extend the line to Central Point, Gold Hill, Woodville and Grants Pass, making it an interurban proposition. No one of the cities would justify an electric railroad of itself, but an interurban road would be a paying investment. Mr. Blakely will apply for a franchise on Seventh street and on C street, and will be ready to lay rails as soon as the franchise is granted, so as not to delay street paving. The franchise governing all the streets, to Jacksonville, while the Ashland line would come in on C street. A special election for the franchise could be called within ten days, and the work begin at once when granted. Mr. Blakely, through his partner, Jeff D. Heard, applied for a blanket franchise covering all the streets, but it was refused because the streets desired were not specified. Had the franchise been granted, Medford would today boast of a trolley line. Mr. Blakely states that he represents Cleveland, Ohio, capitalists, but he is generally supposed to represent A. Welch, the builder of the Willamette Valley traction line, with whom he has been associated in several enterprises.

HORSE ALLOWED TO STARVE TO DEATH

ANIMAL FOUND IN MRS. MORGAN'S BARN AFTER BEING DEAD SEVERAL DAYS—ITS OWNER NOT KNOWN

Yesterday a horse that had been dead for perhaps a week was found in the barn of Mrs. Martha Morgan, who lives at the north end of Alder street, along side the Southern Pacific railroad. The neighbors for several days previous had detected a bad odor coming from that direction, and upon investigation a horse tied to the manger by a rope and lying dead on the floor was found. Mrs. Morgan did not own a horse, nor did she know that one had been taken to her barn. It had been tied there by some one and left to starve to death. How long it had been there no one knows, as the barn is unused and had not been entered by any one except by the person who took the horse there for several weeks. The officers were notified and the carcass was hauled away. How the horse came to be there and to whom it belonged is a mystery.

SAM HARTSOCK RUNS AFTER POSTCARD THIEF

Corvallis Gazette: An interesting scene took place on Main street yesterday afternoon. It was Sam Hartsock in hot pursuit of two small boys who had stolen postcards at Graham & Wells. For a long time cards had been missed at the store. The two lads finally came to be suspected. They are sons of prominent people, although their names are not known to the Times. They dropped into the store yesterday afternoon and made small purchases. To give them an opportunity, Mr. Hartsock walked to another part of the store, where, while unobserved by them, they were in full view. No sooner had Mr. Hartsock disappeared than each lad seized a package of postcards and made off. Each secreted his package into his shirt as he went. Mr. Hartsock gave pursuit. It took four blocks of swift traveling to overtake them. He seized both, and confronted them with his accusation. They denied, but he started to lead them to an office. Then one reached inside his shirt and brought forth his package of cards. The other confessed to taking the cards, but in his haste to elude pursuit the package had slipped down inside his clothing and disappeared through the leg of his overalls, a story that was subsequently confirmed by finding the package on the sidewalk.
