...ODUCTS
...BASIS OF PROSPERITY

...ery about the effect the ...presidential election will ...the business of the coun-...great cereal crops and ...there can be no depres-...therein lies the basis of ...ry. All the farmers of the ...ey will be plentifully ...money next fall and it will ...perity of the railroads to ...products to market ...the farmer market feels the effect of the rising tide of prosperity, and orders from the East for building material are pouring in upon the millmen of the Northwest. After all is said about other resources in this country the crops of wheat and corn are our real reliance, and the prosperity of the nation rests on the income of the farmer from the products of the soil.

Who dares to say that the life of a farmer is slow and humdrum? Now there is Farmer Bryan for instance, at his Fairview farm, which is the great centre this year of all Democratic political activity. He has his own private leased wire, which brings him all the news of the day and night, too, for that matter, and there is a busy staff of reporters there who are ready to chronicle every movement and every word spoken by the peerless one. In the days of our forefathers farming might have been a slow, pokey business, but in the days of Bryan, three-times candidate for the presidency, it is altogether the reverse.

"Enormous crops are being harvested throughout the country. Farmers never were more prosperous. I confidently expect this situation will materially assist in restoring the general business prosperity that prevailed prior to the financial flurry last October," said Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Harriman lines, who reached Portland yesterday from San Francisco, to an Oregonian reporter. "Judging from the weekly reports we have received of crop conditions throughout the Pacific Northwest, it is apparent that the same prosperous conditions prevail in this section."

Wonder if the steel trust intended to pull off a joke when it notified the superintendents of all of its plants not to allow its employes to be asked for campaign contributions? The trusts can control its "supers," but the enterprising campaign hat-passer is no respecter of persons.

An editorial on "Pardoning Criminals," reprinted in the Florence West and other state exchanges, and credited to the Salem Capital Journal, was originally printed in the Guard several weeks ago, and was appropriated by the Journal without credit. Simply an oversight, no doubt.

Kansas Republicans have pulled off their primary election, and the doleful noise from that direction is a combination of walls for the dead and the groans of the wounded, which completely drowns the cheers of the victors.

Mr. Chafin, the "dry" candidate for president, is a smooth citizen who does not believe in chafing anybody's feelings, as he proved by starting out with the declaration that a majority of the voters in every party are good men.

It's a good guess that the scientist who discovered that every piece of paper money in circulation is covered by thousands of disease germs would fall over himself to pick up a dollar bill from a gutter, "even as you and I."

When it comes to platforms, that of the Ideal Feminine Federation party has them all beat a million miles, even though it should turn out to be merely the preliminary advertising of some new beautifying preparation.

Why not have a national trade endurance contest, with Bryan setting type and Taft running a steam shovel, with the editors who called Taft a demagogue for accepting membership in a union before Bryan did the same for judges?

Congressman Nick Longworth says he enjoyed his vacation, but will be glad to get back to work. That "get back to work" will puzzle Nick's friends, none of whom ever knew him to do any work.

Governor Willson's offer of $500 reward for the leaders of the Kentucky Night Riders on their late destructive raids isn't likely to be collected, as "conviction" is one of the requirements.

Never mind names, but wasn't the Prince of Wales infringing on somebody's personal prerogative when he assisted in stoking the battleship Indomitable on its record-smashing voyage home from Canada?

Such men as Harriman, Gould and Rockefeller are united in expressing the opinion upon all occasions that they do not care who is elected president—just so it is Taft.

As Harriman has stated that from now on he intends to work for the good of his fellow men, we are naturally wondering what office he intends to run for.

Every candidate says he wants the "people" to rule, but they differ as to who the "people" are, each and every one contending that "we are the people."

To get right down to brass tacks, it's mighty hard for the average man to tell a statesman from a demagogue by his public speeches.

THIS IS MY 65TH BIRTHDAY

Rear Admiral Clark.

Rear Admiral Charles F. Clark, U. S. N., retired, was born August 14, 1843 in the town of Bradford, Vt., and entered the United States Naval Academy in 1860. During the closing years of the civil war he was attached to the West Gulf blockading squadran, and participated in the battle of Moolie Bay and the bombardment of Fort Morgan. His subsequent promotions were to master in 1866, lieutenant in 1868, commander in 1881, captain in 1896, and rear admiral in 1902. Early in 1898 he was ordered to the command of the battleship Oregon, just built at San Francisco. He left San Francisco in March with the battleshhip Oregon, and arrived with her at Key West, Florida, a distance of 14,000 miles, May 26, 1898, in time to take part in the naval battle of Santiago. This cruise of the Oregon was unprecedented for speed with a battleship, and has takn a prominent place in naval annals.

SMALL FIRES ON THE UPPER RIVER

(Special Correspondence.)

Lowell, Aug. 9.—There seems to be plenty of smoke and fire, but so far the rangers are keeping a close watch. The Rush Island fire loomed up on the fifth and looked dangerous for a while, but it was confined to the old logging grounds along the south side of the river that have been logged off during the last four or five years, and this being the first fire to get started made quite a blaze for a short time.

Dave Lowell, of Big Prairie, and James Sanford and party made a trip to the metropolis last week.

There is said to be more than one hundred people at the Kitson Springs at this time.

Roy Kerns, one of the fire rangers, passed Lowell on his way to the lakes. He stopped on his way near the Stivers place to help look after some fire that seems to be making quite a smoke on the north side of Mount June. Mr. Cannon has been making some investigations of the same fire. It seems to be a long ways back.

It Is Not Advertising Which Survives; But the Things Which Are Advertised : :

THE "cleverest advertisement" you ever wrote may be quite forgotten now, even by the best friends it made for you. It may survive only in the bigger store it helped create.

But it is just as certain that the bigger store of the future is to grow out of the advertising of the present as it is that the store as it now stands is the result, in large measure, of your "forgotten" advertisements.

You have preserved the results of advertising. You must create new results through new advertising.
