The lower floor of the new building has been spoken for, and the upper floor will be divided into living or office rooms. The block will be substantially built and will be an ornament to that section of the business district, which is fast coming to the front in the way of substantial buildings.

MR. WALLIS WILL HAVE HOUSE-WARMING

Invitations are out for a house-warming to be given by "Daisy" Wallis when he opens his well residence on East Eleventh street. There are about 100 invitations issued, and about 100 invitations issued, and fair. There is no date on the invitation, as Mr. Wallis is not certain of the date of the arrival of his Japanese servants, cooks, etc. that are expected from San Francisco, but that it will be the greatest social stag event in Eugene is assured. Mr. Wallis will keep up strictly bachelor quarters for himself, and will employ all told six servants.

FOR SALE, EXCHANGE OR LEASE

Having concluded to retire from the lumber business I offer for sale, lease or will exchange for Eugene or Portland income property, my sawmill, sawmill site, booms, lumber sheds, office, planers, dry kilns and all tools connected with the business. Mill located at river bridge in the center of Eugene city, east and west, and only three blocks from the S. P. R. R.

This is a fine opportunity for some one to go into the lumber business, as there is always a big local demand for all slabwood, sawdust, shavings, cull lumber, as well as the better grades of lumber. Logs are cheap, labor cheap, lumber high.

A good millman can make this property pay for itself in two years, and if he will operate day and night in one year. Greatest opportunity in this part of Oregon for a mill man; best located mill in the state. Capacity, 24,000 feet in ten hours.

When you have this mill you are at the market. Plan and dry kiln—everything needed to make lots of lumber and lots of money. Give this your early attention if interested in your early proposition. I am sure you cannot beat it in the state. The quicker you act the surer you are of making your fortune, for this is a chance in a lifetime.

COMMERCIAL CLUB HOLDS ITS MONTHLY MEETING

The Commercial Club held its regular monthly business meeting last night. Among the questions discussed was that of a poultry show, a Siuslaw railroad, the proposed good wagon road to the Siuslaw, and the proposed trout hatchery on the McKenzie.

The club agreed to lend the poultry fanciers its moral support in a show and a committee was authorized to further investigate the proposition of a railroad to the Siuslaw.

Manager Hartog reported that the petitions for the improvement of the wagon road to the Siuslaw had been duly presented to the commissioners' court.

Fish Warden McAllister's reply to Chairman Dixon's letters on the trout hatchery was read. It was as follows: "Have been in correspondence with the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries relative to their furnishing me with a supply of trout eggs, which I intend to propagate at the McKenzie river hatchery, with a view to stocking said river and its tributaries with trout."

Another letter received later reads as follows: "Mr. Geo. M. Bowers, commissioner of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries at Washington, D. C., has assured me that his department will furnish all the trout eggs I might require and will forward same as soon as they are available, probably in September."

Resolution Passed

The club passed the following resolution: "Whereas, The 1909 exposition at Seattle will be one of magnificent proportions; and

"Whereas, Such events are the means of acquainting the people of the East and Middle West with the wonderful Pacific Coast states, provided suitable railroad rates and stop-over privileges are granted by the transportation companies; therefore be it

The Flower Widow.

Alliea Sayles was troubled. What troubled her was her own secret and was not suspected by any one. In fact, it was not suspected at all that she was troubled. Why should she be? She owned the finest farm in the county, was a college graduate and a country girl. True she was a widow, but as far back as she could remember she had always been an orphan. Her home was with an uncle and an aunt.

What troubled her was this: She had nearly passed what might be considered the best age for women to marry—she was twenty-seven—and was unmarried. Had it not been for her property she might have married long ago. None of the young men of her acquaintance dared to aspire to the hand of the heiress, especially an heiress who was a college graduate. Nevertheless Alliea was a country girl and desired to remain a country girl. If she married she would marry a farmer.

On her return from college she did not think of marriage. She had resources within herself which were greatly broadened by her education. For a time she read books on the lines marked out for her in college and was satisfied. But one morning she awoke to the fact that she was drifting into perpetual spinsterhood. The prospect did not please her. In her childhood and youth she had been deprived of that affection which exists in families and was averse to passing the latter half of her life without husband and children. She thought over the bachelors of her acquaintance and after some deliberation settled on Silas Blakely, a young farmer with little on his farm except a mortgage. On him she resolved to bestow her hand.

She did not know that Blakely would care to marry her, though she rather thought he would. But, considering she was well to do and he was poor, she knew he would not have the assurance to propose to her. She must propose to him. How should she propose?

One evening Alliea saw Blakely coming up the road, driving the stock from pasture. Hurrying into the garden, she gathered a bouquet and said to it, "I take you beautiful flowers, with your pink and blue and crimson and white complexions, to be my wedded husband." Then, calling to her aunt, she told her to take them to the well and throw them in as soon as Blakely came opposite, making sure he saw her doing so. The aunt took the bouquet, went to the well and when the young farmer passed acted as she had been told.

"Why do you throw those beautiful flowers away?" called Silas.

"They are my husband," said Alliea from the porch. "I'm a widow."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Have you ever heard of the proverb 'Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise?'"

"Yes."

"Well, if you wish to know the meaning of my being married to the flowers, go to your books, and if you hunt patiently you will find out."

With this she went into the house.

Blakely hurried on to overtake the stock which had passed during the brief dialogue, but he knew not of horses or cows; the strange episode had got into his head, and he was filled with wonder as to what it meant. While Alliea had been telling him that she was a widow she had looked upon him kindly, and her voice, which was sweet, still sounded pleasantly in his ears.

Now, Silas Blakely was no fool. His education was good for a countryman, but he neither had the books nor the inclination to hunt through them for any interpretation of such an insane proceeding. One of his schoolmates, however, had gone to college and had become a professor. To him Blakely wrote an account of the episode, asking for an interpretation.

Alliea possibly wished to test Silas' common sense. To hunt for the explanation himself would have been like looking for a needle in a haystack and while doing so his farm would have been sold out under the hammer.

It was a long while before he received the interpretation to the conundrum, but when it came he opened his eyes and his heart started up at a gait of a hundred beats to the minute. The same evening, getting off his farm clothes and into a very respectable outfit, in which, by the way, he looked very well, he went to call on Alliea.

"I have come," he said, "to offer all I have—that is, my farm with a mortgage on it—for the flower widow."

"And how," she asked, blushing and smiling, "did you learn what is meant by a flower widow?"

Blakely told her of his application and showed her the reply, which was as follows:

In India a man often remains unmarried longer than he would desire simply because he cannot afford to pay the sum demanded of his would-be son-in-law. Widows, however, are cheap, and a wily father who finds his daughter is getting on in years while suitors tarry takes advantage of this fact. He marries his girl to a bunch of flowers, which he then throws into a well. Thus the lady becomes technically a widow, and as such she is a bargain in the marriage market. Thus the flower widow is secured as a wife by a suitor who would not have dared offer a small sum for her before her so-called marriage.

Alliea found in Silas Blakely the man she desired for a husband. He not only lifted the mortgage from his farm, but managed hers for her so that both prospered. Through her life Alliea was devoted to her husband and her children, and when the former died no flowers were thrown in the well. She remained a real widow.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon for Lane County.

In the matter of the Guardianship of Harry Weaver, Lester Weaver, and Susan Weaver, minors.

This cause coming on to be heard July 17th, 1908, the same verified petition of John A. Williams, the guardian of the above named minors for a license to sell the interest of said minors in the real property described as follows:

Beginning at the southwest corner of donation land claim No. 51 Notif. No. 7026 in section 33, township 18 S., R. 2 W., run thence north 1/2 degrees east 15.25 chains, thence east 24 chains, south 15.25 chains, and west 24 chains to beginning, containing 36.60 acres, also beginning at the northeast corner of D. L. Cl. 51 Notif. No. 7026 in section 33, township 18 S., R. 2 W., run west 43.30 chains, south 15.10 chains to south line of said claim, east 43.30 chains to s.e. corner thereof and north 36 minutes east 15.10 chains to beginning, containing 64.10 acres, more or less, all in Lane county, Oregon.

And it appearing to the court that it will be beneficial to the said wards that their interest in said real estate should be sold.

It is therefore ordered that said Harry Weaver, Lester Weaver and Susan Weaver and their father and mother, Peter Weaver and Carrie Weaver and all persons interested in their estate appear in this court and show cause, if any they have, why an order should not be made by this court licensing the guardian of said minors to sell the interest of said minors in said land, and that Monday, August 17th, 1908, at the hour of 9 a. m., be fixed as the time for hearing the said petition and any objections that may be filed thereto, and that this order be served on said persons by publication thereof for three successive weeks in the Eugene Daily Guard, a newspaper, circulating in Lane County, Oregon.
